TUCKER MEETS HOLLORAN AT BREAKFAST; RIFT STILL CONTINUES

They Do Not Speak Beyond Saying Hello at Symington's Home—At Issue Is 'Slighting' of Mayor.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker and Democratic National Committeeman Mark R. Holloran had breakfast yesterday as guests of United States Senator Stuart Symington, but they gave no evidence of "making up" the disagreement that led Tucker to stay away from Saturday night's Jefferson-Jackson day dinner.

It was "Hello, Ray" and "Hello, Mark" when the two shook hands as about 15 Democratic leaders gathered at the Senator's Creve Coeur home, but they sat at separate tables and did not converse.

Tucker, who felt he had been snubbed by not being asked to serve on the sponsoring committee for the fund-raising dinner, indicated there was no change in the situation and said to a Post-Dispatch reporter as he left the Symington home: "The facts speak for themselves."

Holloran repeated his assertion of Saturday that there had been no intention to slight the Mayor. With a toss of his hands he said: "I just don't get it. Why there should be any fuss over this."

Office Was Slighted. Tucker has emphasized to friends there was "nothing personal" in his reaction, and that he felt the "slight" actually was against the office of Mayor.

"Just how much can you take? This is the third time," he was quoted as remarking, referring to two previous brush-offs by a group of political leaders—in 1955, when he was ignored during a similar fund-raising dinner, and last year, when he was left off the list of delegates to the Democratic national convention.

Holloran had offered Saturday to return the Mayor's $100 check for the dinner, "if he feels slighted or overlooked."

Tucker, asked yesterday if the check had been sent back, replied it had not and added, with a laugh: "If it were, I'd send it along to the National Committee. I know they wouldn't return it."

Steered to Head Table. Yesterday's breakfast was informal and there were no fixed seating arrangements, but it was noted that Senator Symington steered the Mayor to a table occupied by three other distinguished guests—former President Harry S. Truman, House Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, chief speaker at Saturday night's dinner, and Gov. James T. Blair.

Later these four were joined at the table by Holloran and United States District Judge Roy W. Harper and all listened to party talk and reminiscences of the former president. No one mentioned the local party rift.

Others attending the breakfast included United States Representatives Clarence Cannon of Elsbey, William R. Hull Jr. of Weston and Charles H. Brown of Springfield. Mrs. Katie Louchheim, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee; James H. Meredith, who was Symington's campaign manager in 1952; Anthony A. Buford, counsel for Anheuser-Busch, Inc.; Stanley R. Fike, Symington's administrative assistant; Mrs. Tucker, Mrs. Harper, Mrs. Cannon and members of the Symington family.

The "slighting" incident has been viewed as a renewed effort to reduce the Mayor's effectiveness as titular head of the Democratic party in the city.

Bitter opposition to the Mayor among Democratic aldermen reached a peak in their opposition to the proposed new city charter, which he favored. It was defeated by voters last August. Holloran joined the aldermen in fighting the charter proposal.

Anti-Tucker Democrats are said to look on Holloran as a strong candidate for Democratic nomination for Mayor in 1961, whether Tucker decides to be a candidate or not.

SUNSPOTS OBSERVED HERE WITHOUT MAGNIFICATION

Sunspots in connection with an eruption of the sun were observed in St. Louis today without magnification. Dr. Edward M. Brooks, professor of geophysics, reported. He said they were seen south of the center of the sun.

Officials at Wendelstein Observatory in Brannenburg, Germany, said the eruption yesterday covered an area 30 times the size of the earth and was the largest eruption on the sun in 10 years.

Dr. Brooks said it was unusual to see sunspots without magnification. He said the eruption would affect trans-Atlantic cables and compasses and probably the weather. Wendelstein Observatory officials said the eruption also would cause magnetic storms and radio wave interruptions on the earth.

MOSTLY FAIR, WARMER WEATHER IS PREDICTED HERE FOR NEXT FIVE DAYS

WARMER weather is expected in the St. Louis area for the next five days, the Weather Bureau said today in its extended forecast.

The forecast is: Generally fair and pleasant weather is expected in the St. Louis area through Thursday with a chance of showers averaging less than .25 of an inch of rainfall about Friday or Saturday; temperatures will average about 5 degrees above normal highs of upper 40s and normal lows near 32.

MUSEUM SAVES OLD STREETCARS FROM THE TORCH

Old No. 10 and No. 11, once the pride of the city Water Division fleet of streetcars which hauled employees and sightseers from Bissell's Point pumping station to the Chain of Rocks, were saved from the torch today by quick action by the Museum of Transport in St. Louis.

No. 10 and No. 11 have not been used since trolley operations were finally discontinued in 1955. The Water Division, headed by Division Chief Robert J. Skinker, ordered Storekeeper Nikola M. Jakovac to burn them today and salvage metal parts for scrap.

Dr. John P. Roberts, president of the museum, head of the plan and telephoned Assistant Water Commissioner William Smith, who called off the bonfire.

Roberts said the museum would renew negotiations for the cars, built about 1910. He said they represent the transition from the old-time wooden flat-top cars with clerestory or transom windows under the deck roof, to the arched roof type. "They are interesting pieces that heralded the modern era of streetcars," Roberts said.

OBJECT REPORTED SEEN RISING ON COURSE TO MOON

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 25 (AP)—A report by a Swedish officer of a shining object traveling on a spiral course toward the moon was under examination at Sweden's defense headquarters today.

"The best guess so far seems to be it might have something to do with Russian satellite or missile experiments," a staff spokesman said.

"We know that it was no airplane, nor any meteorological balloon," he said, "and the Stockholm observatory has told us it was no meteor."

He said a Swedish army captain at Kortedala near Göteborg, on the Swedish west coast, watched the object through his field glass for 20 minutes.

"We are taking this report seriously since it came from a competent observer," he said. "The captain described the object as a flattened sphere circling moonwards. Its sides were somewhat elongated and there was a flickering glow as from burning exhaust gases from one side."

Marion Peterhansel, a 19-year-old runner-up in this year's Miss Berlin beauty contest, tested the old saying by appealing to men for aid first as a brunette and then as a blonde.

In her natural hair she dropped a valise on the street, scattering its contents. She had to pick up her belongings herself.

She pretended her automobile broke down. No one offered to push it.

She begged a man to break off his conversation in a public phone booth because she had to make an urgent call. She was told to wait.

Then she tried the same test with a blonde wig. Men jumped to pick up her scattered clothing. They pushed her automobile. And she got out the phone booth immediately.

PRESIDENT GIVES WARM WELCOME TO MOROCCO KING ARRIVING IN U.S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—

President Eisenhower warmly welcomed King Mohammed V of Morocco on a state visit today, declaring he hopes the King's trip here would "result in strengthening" relations between the two countries.

Mr. Eisenhower, who has scheduled two long talks with the royal guest, went to Washington's National Airport to meet him. Also on hand were Gen. Nathan Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, an honor guard and a large diplomatic delegation.

The 48-year-old King, wearing a long hooded coat called a jellaba, told the President he was certain American-Moroccan relations would be reinforced by the visit.

The King got the full red carpet reception when the Military Air Transport Service Constellation—once Mr. Eisenhower's Columbine I, pulled to a stop promptly at noon. He had flown here directly from Rabat.

President Eisenhower was waiting at the plane-side, his hand extended, as the Arab ruler descended from the aircraft.

He said, "Welcome, your majesty."

Formal Greetings.

The two heads of state exchanged formal greetings after the playing of the national anthems and a 21-gun salute.

Mr. Eisenhower recalled that Morocco recognized the independence of the United States even before the Revolutionary War was won. The King said the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt visited Morocco in World War II and said that "since then new relations based on mutual respect and understanding have been established between our two nations."

"My visit to your country will strengthen those long-standing relationships in the interest of both our peoples," he added.

For the 35-minute parade from the airport to the President's residence, Blair House, the King rode in Mr. Eisenhower's bubble-topped limousine.

The President yielded the place of honor on the right to the monarch and sat on the left. The King's younger son, Prince Moulay Abdallah, sat between the two chiefs of state.

On arrival at Blair House the President escorted the King to the door and shook hands with him there before returning to the White House across Pennsylvania avenue.

Noontime crowds waved a greeting to the King as the slow moving caravan traveled the historic parade route from the airport. The motorcade moved behind a military band and an honor guard of United States service men.

There also was an honor guard of service men along both curbs. On Constitution avenue the caravan passed beneath a flag-draped arch of fire ladders from which hung the flag of Morocco.

During the next three days, the Moroccan King and an entourage of 17 persons, including his ranking cabinet members, will discuss with American officials United States military and economic aid, United States bases in Morocco, France's bitter dispute with Algeria and other matters.

United States officials would like to see France take up an offer by Tunisia and Morocco to mediate the French-Algerian rebel fight. There is no intention of such mediation.

U.S. TO BE LEFT FAR BEHIND IN MISSILES AT PRESENT RATE, TELLER TESTIFIES

BACK ON SERIES OF QUESTIONS IS RULED SINGLE CONTEMPT ACT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—

The Supreme Court ruled 6 to 3 today that a witness's refusal to answer a series of related questions constitutes a single contempt.

The court so decided in upholding the criminal contempt conviction of Mrs. Oleta O'Connor Yates, a California Communist leader. The contempt charge followed her refusal to answer questions while on trial in 1952 with 13 others on Smith act charges.

The questions dealt with Communist party affiliation of her codefendants.

All 14 were convicted of conspiring to teach and advocate violent overthrow of the Government. But the Supreme Court last June threw out the convictions. It ordered acquittal for five of the group but left the way open for the Government to re-try the remaining nine, including Mrs. Yates.

Separate Appeal.

Mrs. Yates filed a separate appeal from her contempt conviction.

She had been sentenced to a year in prison for each of 11 separate refusals to answer questions, but United States Judge William C. Mathes specified the sentences were to run concurrently.

While it upheld the contempt conviction today, the Supreme Court said she should have been sentenced for a single criminal contempt, rather than 11.

Accordingly the court sent the case back to Judge Mathes in Los Angeles for reconsideration of her sentence.

For the majority today, Justice Clark said Mrs. Yates' "understandable reluctance to be an informer, although legally insufficient to explain her refusals to answer, is a factor to be considered by Judge Mathes as he is her apparently courteous demeanor and the fact that her refusals seemed to have had no perceptible effect on the outcome of the trial." Clark added:

"All of this points up the necessity, we think, of the trial judge reconsidering the sentence in the cool reflection of subsequent events."

First Such Ruling.

This is the high court's first affirmative ruling on whether a witness could be given separate sentences for each refusal to answer a related question.

In the past, most lower courts have taken the view—for purposes of sentencing—that only one offense was involved.

In a dissenting opinion Justice Douglas, joined by Chief Justice Warren and Justice Black, called the case "a shocking instance of abuse of judicial authority" and "without precedent in the books."

Douglas said he would reverse Mrs. Yates' contempt conviction on the ground that "this is a transparent attempt to multiply offenses," adding: "I do not think a prosecutor should be allowed to multiply the contempt by repeating the questions."

Kasper Denied Hearing.

The court also refused to reconsider its Oct. 14 denial of a hearing to John Kasper, the segregationist serving a year's jail sentence for a speech in Clinton, Tenn., in August, 1956.

Kasper was convicted that August on a charge of criminal contempt of an order by United States District Judge Robert L. Taylor in Knoxville, Tenn. The order barred interference with integration of Negro and white pupils in Clinton High School.

In appealing for a Supreme Court hearing, Kasper contended his right to freedom of speech had been violated by the contempt conviction. He also insisted his sentence was grossly excessive. After that appeal was denied Kasper was taken into custody Oct. 18.

Passport Cases.

The court agreed to look into the State Department's power to refuse passports to citizens.

The court accepted for review an appeal by artist Rockwell Kent of Ausable Forks, N.Y., and one by psychiatrist Walter Briehl of Los Angeles. Both were denied passports by Secretary of State John Foster

PRESIDENT WILL VISIT ROCKET RESEARCH UNIT

CLEVELAND, Nov. 25 (AP)—

President Eisenhower will inspect a rocket research facility which is working on fuels suitable for space flight, when he comes here to make a speech tomorrow.

At the Lewis Flight Propulsion Laboratory near Cleveland-Hopkins airport, a spokesman said rocket fuels being tested there could provide "more than twice the amount" of energy in fuels currently used for intermediate range and intercontinental ballistic missiles.

The President will not see much of the actual work being done with fuels. "It isn't safe for anyone to get very close to those fuels," commented Portz, director of information at the laboratory.

President Eisenhower will see some of the first engines in which the "super-performance" propellants have been run.

Portz said there will be no demonstration for the President. In response to a query, he said the rocket engines penetrated Israeli territory in which the "super-performance" propellants have been run.

CAPITALIST USED CAR LOTS PAYING OFF IN RED RUSSIA

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch

MOSCOW, Nov. 25 — That most capitalist of institutions—the used car sales lot—has been discovered in the Soviet Republic of Georgia and because production of passenger cars is low in relation to the demand, some used cars sell for more than new cars.

"The sale of an object for more than its original cost is denounced by Communists as 'speculation' and is technically a crime. For this reason, Zarya Vostoka, the mouthpiece of Georgian Communism, demanded that police break up the used car sales."

He noted that Moskvitches, a miniature four-cylinder car, were bringing 25,000 rubles each. This is $6250 at the official rate of exchange. The car, when it can be bought now in a state shop, costs about 14,000 rubles.

Also on the lot were battered models of the discontinued Pobeda, a larger four-cylinder car, bringing 24,000 rubles each about what they cost new.

Zarya Vostoka said the speculators obtain the cars in Moscow, drive them to Tiflis, the capital of Georgia, and make from 15,000 to 30,000 rubles per car.

SCIENTIST THINKS RUSSIA IS ABLE TO HIT HOUSTON OR SOON WILL BE

Attributes Progress of Soviet to Willingness to Take Risks—Compares Strength of Two Countries.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—

Dr. Edward Teller said today that if both countries maintain their present pace of missile development "there is no doubt that Russia will leave us behind—and way behind."

And already, he said, he believes the Soviets have "or will have in a short time" the ability to hit major industrial centers in this country with an intercontinental ballistic missile. Specifically, he said he believed the Russians could hit such a distant target as Houston, Tex.

Teller, who had a leading part in development of the H-bomb, was the opening witness in a road Senate inquiry into the missile program.

Summary of Testimony.

Among the major points of his testimony:

1. Russia has been able to make such tremendous advances because of willingness to take risks, to gamble in untried fields where there was no certainty the money spent would bring concrete results.

2. In 1946 the United States could have decided to proceed with missile development at top speed, but at that time there was extreme doubt that an effective long-range missile could be developed.

It was "years later," Teller said, before the value of such a missile could be demonstrated. He said when this became clear "quite a bit of energy" was put into the program.

Since then, "the work has been excellent, managed but it came too late."

3. He does not believe the Russians have caught up with the United States in nuclear weapons, but in bombers, radar and other developments the Russians "apparently know as much as we do."

4. In his opinion, there are "many places" where additional money could bring speedier results in United States programs, and this country should be more generous in defense spending.

5. The United States program for the development of missiles and other scientific needs can be accelerated by closer co-operation among the armed services, among companies working on the missile programs and companies which could be brought into the program, and by co-operation and sharing of secrets not only with the United States but with other NATO countries and with other allies.

Risk in Sharing Secrets.

Teller said there was some "danger" in sharing secrets with other countries, but said that in view of Russian advances and scientific knowledge this was not a danger such as might be the case in a field in which the United States has a monopoly.

"We must accept the danger," he said. "The danger of not co-operating would be greater."

The United Press quoted Teller as saying that United States C.B.M. planning was to develop an effective warhead before working intensively on a missile.

"Without a warhead, the long-range missile would not be very effective," he added. The United States, he went on, felt behind Russia because it "waited too long" for the right kind of warhead to be available.

"We did not go ahead with a vigorous program of long-range missiles before we were reasonably sure that a warhead was available," he said. "By that time it was too late" to beat the Russians into space.

Senator Lyndon B. Johnson (Dem.), Texas, chairman of the Senate Preparedness subcommittee conducting the hearings, asked Teller to furnish "a list of priorities" as to what should be done in the present situation.

Steps Teller Advocates.

Teller said he could name several things, but did not want to try to place them in an order of priority. He said one principal thing was to look carefully into ways "to expand and accelerate our missile program."

Acceleration would mean a speed-up in schedules of development of present missiles, he said, and expansion would mean opening broad new vistas in the field "which we sum-

PARIS POLICE FIGHT RIOTERS AT U.S. EMBASSY; 20 ARRESTED

Macmillan in French Capital to Try to Soothe French Indignation Over Arms to Tunisia.

PARIS, Nov. 25 (AP)—Demonstrators and police fought in front of the United States embassy today shortly after Prime Minister Macmillan of Britain arrived to discuss the Tunisian arms dispute with French officials.

Club-wielding police, called out to guard both the British and American embassies, quickly dispersed about 300 young demonstrators who shouted "Algeria is French." Twenty of the youths were arrested.

The youths were echoing the prevailing and angry French sentiment that the small arms Britain and the United States sent to Tunisia will reach rebels fighting French rule in Algeria.

Macmillan himself returned from a series of talks to find the British embassy building ringed with riot troops in steel helmets to the two embassies.

Rightist groups called demonstrations to protest against the United States and British shipment of arms to Tunisia, the former French protectorate.

Police threw heavy gas around the Place de la Concorde, where placards and posters called for demonstrators to gather. There was no trouble immediately, but police were taking no chances.

Submachine Guns. Police reinforcements carried submachine guns in the street, facing the British embassy and at the United States embassy near the Place de la Concorde.

Macmillan plunged into his task the moment he stepped off the plane from London, declaring in a statement he was determined to see that France and Britain stay on friendly terms.

"We are in the same boat—don't let us or anyone else try to rock it," Macmillan said.

Met at Airport. Macmillan was greeted at Orly airport by Premier Gaillard, who is openly angry over what he calls a lack of Western support for France's policies in North Africa. The atmosphere was neither exceedingly warm nor noticeably cool as the two heads of government greeted each other.

The two leaders were expected to extend their talks into the night. Macmillan will return to England tomorrow. Gaillard has hinted strongly that unless some new and solid basis for understanding is found between France and its main North Atlantic Treaty Organization partners, the Dec. 16 NATO summit conference will get a cold shoulder here in the host nation.

Fresh yellow posters were plastered on Paris walls proclaiming "the British and Americans have given arms to the Algerian rebels, via Tunisia."

Demonstrations Called. Two rightist groups issued calls for protest demonstrations. One of the organizations is the extreme rightist Young Nation movement and the other is Jean-Baptiste Blaghi's new Revolutionary Patriot party.

Blaghi in his call said: "Not content to send arms to the rebels by way of (Tunisian President Habib) Bourguiba, Macmillan comes to Paris directly to dictate orders to our government."

The French reaction and the NATO strains were pointed up in Sunday speeches by a French cabinet minister and a member of Parliament.

Defense Minister Jacques Chaban-Delmas told an audience at Bordeaux "we won't put up with the idea that we are first and second class allies in NATO, with those in second place always obliged to say 'yes.' I prefer the risk of fighting to that of servitude."

SPUTNIK I ROCKET TV SATELLITE PUTS ON DISPLAY PROJECT SAID TO BE AHEAD OF GOAL

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 25 (AP)—The rocket of Sputnik I, which scientists say is on its last legs, put on a good show last night for skywatchers in northeastern United States.

A number of accurate observations were reported, among them sightings by the Cambridge moonwatch team, and by several members of the staff of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, which is handling optical observations of the satellite program.

Dr. John White, observatory scientist, said the sighting reports, along with others expected from moonwatch teams in all parts of the United States, will be used in a new computation of the present orbit of the rocket.

He said the I.B.M. electronic brain at Massachusetts Institute of Technology will be given the new data, and its report may enable scientists to make a more accurate prediction of the probable final plunge of the rocket to earth. Although the rocket is slowing down it is circling the earth faster because of its shorter course. It now is completing its orbit every 90 minutes, six minutes faster than the first few days after it was fired into the sky Oct. 4.

U.S. BREAKFAST 'A BIT TOO MUCH' FOR ENGLISHMEN

MANCHESTER, England, Nov. 25 (AP)—Forty Englishmen sat down to their first all-American breakfast today. They found the coffee "superb," the pork sausage "a bit hot for the tongue," the paper plates "flimsy," and the apple juice "smashing." The overall verdict was that American breakfasts were just a bit too much for light-eating Englishmen.

The meal was flown from Kalamazoo to Manchester for the opening of a United States Government exhibition showing how American small city dwellers get along. The menu of sausage, eggs, buckwheat cakes, maple syrup, apple juice, coffee and vitamin pills was called by a Manchester alderman "delicious, but a bit much." "I won't be wanting anything else to eat for some time," he said.

Mayor Glenn Allen of Kalamazoo, whose city was selected as most typically American from among three other finalists—Topeka, Toledo and Evanston—opened the exhibit after breakfast. It is called "Kalamazoo—and how it grew." It will be on tour in Britain for the next nine months.

BONN-U.S. TALKS END ON NOTE OF MUTUAL ACCORD

Both Brentano and Dulles Pronounce Themselves Pleased With Results.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—Talks between Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and West German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano have ended with both men pronouncing themselves pleased with the results.

Brentano flew here Saturday for two days of conferences. The German foreign policy chief, who had interrupted a visit to Rome, headed back for Italy yesterday. On the way, he met briefly with French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau in New York.

The purpose of Brentano's flying trip here was to discuss proposals for strengthening the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Such proposals are due to come before a NATO summit meeting in Paris next month.

Brentano told newsmen he was "really deeply satisfied with the talks." He said there were "differences in nuances" but that "we found that we are going the same way in all questions which really move us."

The United States and Germany, he said, are agreed there should be increased scientific-technical co-operation within NATO and regular political consultation among the alliance's member nations.

Dulles echoed Brentano's expression of satisfaction with the outcome of their conversations. The Secretary said "we found ourselves in accord on major policy questions."

There had been advance speculation that Brentano and Dulles would talk about American ideas for establishing intermediate range missile bases in NATO countries. But Brentano told reporters this question was "not discussed at all."

It was reported the discussions brought understanding that establishment of missile launching sites in Germany would cause no serious problems because, for the time being, at least, such sites would be under operational control of American forces rather than West German units.

SPAIN SUPPORTS DUTCH CLAIM TO W. NEW GUINEA

UNITED NATIONS, Nov. 25 (UPI)—Spain today supported the Dutch legal claim to West New Guinea.

Spanish Ambassador Jose Felix de Lekuieria, speaking in resumed debate on the question of West Irian (West New Guinea), said it appeared that "The Netherlands had a better legal claim to the territory than Indonesia."

Indonesia seeks West Irian as an integral part of Indonesian territory, contending that the Dutch should have yielded it along with the remainder of The Netherlands East Indies in 1949.

Lequeria said Indonesia's territorial claim is invalid. "The United Nations is very far from being an instrument whereby territorial claims can be carried out by one country against another," he told the General Assembly's Political Committee.

NIXON PREDICTS NEW SUBVERSION DRIVE BY RUSSIA

He Calls Red Manifesto a 'Blunt Challenge' Free World Cannot Ignore.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25 (UPI)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon warned last night of a massive economic, psychological and subversive threat by Russia "aimed at the overthrow of all free governments" which will be beaten back only at the price of sacrifice and patient endurance by Americans.

In his second major address of the day on the same warning, Nixon told the National Council of Catholic Youth here that the Soviet drive was signaled by the recent Moscow manifesto which he described as a "blunt challenge the free world cannot and will not ignore."

A few hours earlier, the Vice President told a B'nai B'rith building dedication ceremony in Washington that Russia's economic challenge must not be overlooked in the rush to match Soviet missiles progress.

He seemed confident, however, that Russia's scientific lead would be overcome, departing from his text here to say, "I have faith that in the struggle of freedom, the forces of good will prevail."

Nixon said the manifesto issued by the Communist parties of 64 nations was evidence that the Kremlin was launching "a massive non-military offensive aimed at the overthrow of all free nations."

He predicted "the dictators of Moscow will sharply step up their economic, psychological and subversive activities. They will emphasize again the popular front tactics which fooled so many well-intentioned people in times past."

"Ruthless control and domination of Communist parties everywhere by the men in the Kremlin will again be the order of the day," Nixon said.

"If there was ever any doubt, they have reaffirmed their ultimate goal of world domination by non-military means if possible, by war if necessary."

Nixon said this country must avoid panic, which "can lead to hasty and ill-considered programs," and complacency which "is equally dangerous."

"We must not, for example, use all of our resources for military defense and neglect the equally important needs for diplomatic, psychological and economic defense of the free world," he said.

"And in recognizing the necessity for training more scientists and engineers, we must not overlook the necessity for maintaining a balanced education program which is so essential for the survival of a free society."

Nixon, who has emphasized sacrifice more than any other administration official, said he

REP. THOMPSON LEVELS BLAST AT SHERMAN ADAMS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—Representative Frank Thompson (Dem., New Jersey), said yesterday that residential assistant Sherman Adams "is slowly becoming one of the most controversial figures of our times." Thompson made his remarks in a statement.

In view of the roles taken by Republican statesmen in prior times of crisis, Thompson said, "it is discouraging to find president assistant Sherman Adams stooping to a new low in Chicago last week where he told a Republican forum that Democrats had been brought into the foreign policy discussions only because the American people 'want a bipartisan effort' and then adding 'I am not saying anything about the talents of the people being invited.'"

"Adams is slowly becoming one of the most controversial figures of our time. While the power he wields would have been envied by even Prince Machiavelli, Adams is a dismal failure in his specific tasks such as keeping the President and, in turn, the public, informed of the great scientific strides being made by the Russians."

The council's new officers, elected for two-year terms, are John A. McLaughlin, Kearny, N.J., president; Jean Miriani, Salt Lake City, vice president; John Geismann, St. Louis, treasurer; and Ann Klein, Hartford, Conn., secretary.

BLAZING GASOLINE, OIL SPILL INTO OHIO RIVER

WOODSFIELD, O., Nov. 25 (AP)—Nearly 2,000,000 gallons of flaming gasoline, kerosene, oil and liquid asphalt spilled into the Ohio river near here yesterday as a spectacular fire swept six river barges.

No one was injured as firemen fought nearly 12 hours to bring the blaze under control. Officials have been unable to estimate damage, but the Ohio Highway Patrol said it might run as high as $1,000,000. Cause of the fire has not been determined. The northbound barges were inside the lock at Duffy when the fire broke out. There was no explosion.

Air Traffic Jam Predicted WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—Aviation Week magazine said yesterday the nation's airlines face another winter of widespread traffic bottlenecks because of inability of major airports to handle increasing volumes of air traffic.

The magazine said a survey showed that the problem of overtaxed airways and airports in the next four months might become more severe than ever before.

FACING PRISON TERM, BECK JR. PLANS APPEAL

Convicted of Larceny, Son of Teamsters Union President Can Get Up to 15 Years.

SEATTLE, Nov. 25 (AP)—Conviction of Dave Beck Jr., 37-year-old son of Teamsters Union President Dave Beck Sr., on two counts of grand larceny will be appealed and motions for a new trial will be filed, Defense Counsel Charles S. Burdell said today.

The younger Beck was found guilty Saturday night by a jury of nine men and three women in King county superior court. The jury deliberated six hours and 10 minutes before finding Beck guilty of keeping for his own use $4650 obtained from the sale of two Teamsters Union automobiles.

Beck is at liberty on $3000 bond. His sentence could run as high as 15 years in the state penitentiary.

Neither Beck nor his father would comment on the result. Burdell said he has instructed them to keep quiet. Only remark by Beck Jr. was a gruff, "Hell, no," when asked for comment after the jury's verdict was brought in Saturday night.

His father and mother, who had attended most of the sessions of the trial which began Nov. 12, were in court when the verdict was read.

The elder Beck is scheduled to go on trial in King county superior court Dec. 2 on a grand larceny count of keeping $1900 from the sale of a union-owned automobile.

Burdell said he will move to postpone the trial in view of the result of the trial of younger Beck, on the ground that the father could not receive a fair trial at this time. The motion for postponement will probably be made tomorrow or Wednesday, Burdell said.

The jury foreman, David E. Nutt, disclosed that the jurors stood eight to four for conviction on the first ballot. After several ballots, he said, the vote was 11 to one for conviction on the next to last ballot.

Prosecutor Charles O. Carroll commented: "We will go right ahead and try Beck Sr. on schedule Dec. 2 and will resist all efforts to delay or postpone the trial."

Beck Jr.'s attorneys contended in his defense that he gave the money in question to his father who in turn passed it along to Fred Verschueren Jr., bookkeeper for the Teamsters Joint Council No. 28, for union use.

9 DEAD IN INDIA TRAIN WRECK

BOMBAY, India, Nov. 25 (AP)—Possible sabotage was being investigated today in an effort to determine the cause of the derailment of a Calcutta mail train. The train plunged from the tracks last night 97 miles from Bombay, killing nine persons and injuring 46. Indian railway officials on the scene said a preliminary check pointed to sabotage. BEVAN DESCRIBES U.S. AS FEVERISH, AIMLESS, FEARFUL

LONDON, Nov. 25 (AP)—Aneurin Bevan wrote yesterday that he found in the United States "a desperate feverishness, with no sense of direction, and certainly with no conception of social design." Bevan, who would become foreign secretary if the socialist Labor party regains power, described impressions of his recent visit to the United States in an article in News of the World. "The people of the United States are open, warmhearted, generous and infinitely hospitable," he wrote. "But in a curious way they do not add up to a total social climate that I found in the least attractive." Bevan asserted American advertising created a climate of opinion in which the dominant note was fear. "Fear that you will fall behind in the display of ostentatious personal expenditure, fear that dandruff or body

The social agencies section of the division achieved 105 per cent of the quota, or 11.5 per cent more than it contributed last year. The pledges totaled $43,030, compared with the quota of $40,947. Harold Bourgeois, executive director of Wesley House, and J. A. Wolf, executive director of Neighborhood Association, were the section co-chairmen. Other sections, with the amounts they have pledged, are: schools, $103,876, or 88.2 per cent; accountants, $19,582, 87.2 per cent; hospital staffs and employees, $22,725, 86.9 per cent; dentists, $7453, 79.3 per cent; physicians, $49,170, 79 per cent, and lawyers, $46,780, 56.3 per cent. Missile Inquiry

marize with the one word, "space."

Also on Teller's list were recommendations to look carefully into the preparedness of the Strategic Air Command, increased work on "passive defense" measures such as construction of shelters and distribution of radiation meters, greater use of "a most powerful weapon that we have not developed as we should"—the nuclear-powered submarine, and a start on a long-range program of getting better science education and popularizing science.

Favors Overtime Work.

Teller said the missile program should be accelerated through overtime work at the factories and that he would even like to see "multiple shifts, if they are feasible."

He recommended that the country undertake immediately the mass production of "millions of radiation meters" patterned along the lines of Geiger counters as part of the civilian defense program.

"They are completely practical," he said, "and one can learn to use them in five minutes."

Teller said he wouldn't scrap any of the missile programs now in favor of concentration on one since he has the impression "most of the efforts are thoroughly worthwhile."

"To shut down any one now might result in more disorder than speed," he said.

"The problem is to co-ordinate efforts and eliminate duplication."

He recommended a "strong authority" over the missiles development program, possibly something in the nature of a government-controlled laboratory.

Only Russian Effort Better.

Teller said United States efforts in rockets "have been excellent and are improving."

"The only thing is the Russian effort has been better," he added.

After Teller had described to the subcommittee the conclusions he drew from the launching of the second Russian satellite, he was asked by counsel Edwin L. Weisl:

"Then you believe Russia now has an intercontinental ballistic missile?"

"I certainly cannot say with complete certainty," Teller replied. "But they have said they do. There is every reason to believe they have it, at least at the stage that they have constructed it and tested it."

"To what extent they have operational capability, I do not know. I certainly hope they do not."

Weisl then quoted Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence, head of the radiation laboratory at the University of California where Teller works as a physicist, as saying last week he believed the Russians could hit Houston with I.C.B.M.

"Do you believe that, too?" the counsel asked.

"Yes, sir," said Teller. But he added he wanted to make clear he did not think of Houston as "a pinpoint."

Lessons From Sputniks.

Teller said that Russia's launching of the Sputniks shows that the Soviet Union "is very far along in rocket development." These launchings, he testified, "have great military significance" as well as tremendous scientific significance.

In his assessment of the lessons of Sputnik II, Teller called it "a very respectable achievement."

He said a powerful rocket motor, a good propulsion fuel either liquid or solid, and some guidance was needed to get the "half ton of material" into the air. The guidance would not be as fine as that needed for an I.C.B.M., he testified.

Teller then said it is not known for certain that Sputnik II weighs half a ton, but he said that Russian claims in this respect have generally proved accurate. Some data available in this country indicate the size of the satellite is what Moscow has announced, he said.

It is best not to think that the Soviets are bluffing, he added.

In urging greater exchange of information with United States allies, Teller said that when the United States had an atomic monopoly "it is a fact that some of our secrets leaked to Russia."

"I would not suggest the Russians caught up with us because they stole secrets," he said. "The caught up with us because they worked harder."

Importance of Sharing.

He said nothing was more important than co-operation with allies to "speed up development even if it means some secrets would be lost."

"I believe our allies have a great deal they can contribute," Teller said, adding that he thinks France, for instance, may be ahead of the United States in electronics development.

Teller spoke also of the "excellence" of British scientists in some fields as he observed it on a visit there this fall.

All this talent, as well as the talent in other countries should be brought into play," he said, and commented:

"During the wars the United States co-operated with the British and the Canadians on the atomic program."

"I think the danger is perhaps greater now than it was then—and particularly because it is less apparent because there has been no shooting."

Teller said that the Russians are making a faster rate of advance than the United States in scientific and technological fields because they are not stinting and are "going ahead as fast as they can."

Discounts German Aid.

He said he never believed their rate of progress has come because, as some contend, they took over some German scientists after World War II. In his opinion, he said, "they have done the main job themselves."

The Russian scientist, Teller continued, "enjoys a unique position. He lives as good a life and as secure and comfortable a life you can possibly have in Russia."

"Their scientists are honored and to some extent even understood by the general public. The word science has a connotation in Russia that simply is not present in this country."

"Under these conditions and with practically no limit on expenditures, it is not surprising that the Russians have gone ahead."

Teller said the Russians have even gone ahead in high energy physics.

By contrast with the Russian view of the scientist, Teller said that in America if something is not enjoyed by the man in the street, it isn't considered important.

Good Audience Needed.

"To have good drama in a country, you have to have a good audience," he said. "As it stands now a kid who is interested in science is ridiculed by other students. Science students should get as much admiration as a football player."

Teller said that talent and genius "are nothing but specialized interest," he said. "As a result, sort of interest ought to be developed among grade school children. In this connection, he suggested that scientists lecture to young students and that courses in appreciation of science be established."

He said a good scientist could earn in industry two or three times what he would be paid as a teacher. As a result, he said high schools and elementary schools are left bare of science teachers.

Teller said it doesn't think scientists should be "put on a pedestal." But he said they ought to have more recognition and more understanding by the average person.

Advocates Shelters.

The witness said there are two principal ways the United States can build defenses against possible Russian attack—one, by maintaining an ever-ready retaliatory force and by what he termed "passive defense."

Among "passive defense" measures, he put construction of shelters, building up of stockpiles of food, raw materials, machine tools, transportation equipment and the like.

He said "very much more should be done about shelters," adding that places to protect against fallout could be built relatively cheaply.

He said that he is convinced that with adequate protective defense, "the great majority" of Americans could survive an atomic war. Teller said that if Russia became convinced this country could not be knocked out, it would be much less likely ever to start a war. "We can avert war by real preparedness," he said.

Teller said measures taken under "passive defense" have more permanent value than those used for active defense because they do not become obsolete so fast.

Predicts Travel to Moon.

Teller said he is certain people will eventually travel to the moon and to the planet Mars. He spoke of moon travel by way of illustration in contending that scientists must undertake "impractical" experiments to gain knowledge leading later to practical developments.

"The Russians are advertising they are prepared to go to the moon," Teller said. "When man gets there, he certainly will learn a great number of things, the practical consequences of which we will learn later."

"That is the way the Russians have beaten us," he said, explaining that he meant by engaging in experiments that might not seem practical at the time.

Then, in reply to a question, Teller said that yes, he wants to go to the moon.

"But, if you ask me why," he said, "I don't really know. I'm just curious. I'd like to put an observatory on the moon, and look at the universe."

On the point of what might be accomplished with more money, Teller said the Los Alamos, N. M., atomic laboratory is suffering at the present time by a need to have its budget increased 10 per cent, from $50,000,000 to $55,000,000.

He said he had visited the laboratory within the last few days and that the scientists there need the additional funds right away.

He didn't blame the scientists on the project, or the Atomic Energy Commission which, he said, is "fully aware of the needs."

But somewhere in the complicated processes of government the efforts to get the money available "have bogged down," he said.

"The effect of the Sputniks in this particular case has not made any difference," Teller said. He said similar situations might exist elsewhere in United States research programs.

In his opening statement, Johnson said the subcommittee believes the people should be informed fully of the military situation which faces the United States.

Noting that subcommittee members had been briefed confidentially on developments, Johnson said:

"I have found no cause for comfort in the information we have been given. We do not feel that this information must be withheld from the public."

"I do not feel that we have as much time as we had after Pearl Harbor. But we do have time, determination and will-power to accomplish what we must. I don't believe it is time for either a siesta or for hysteria."

Brucker Optimistic.

Secretary of the Army Wilber Brucker said in a TV interview that development of United States intermediate range ballistic missiles is right on schedule. The weapons should be in production in 1959, he added.

Brucker expressed the opinion this country is ahead of Russia in missiles with a range of 1500 miles, but he conceded Russian superiority on those with a range of up to 800 miles. Missiles with that range, fired accurately from Russia, could travel far enough to knock out most American bases in Europe.

Brucker said also the I.C.B.M. the Russians claimed to have fired successfully last September was a "test vehicle" and not a production-line weapon.

But Dr. Theodore von Karman said in a television interview that Russia could have such a weapon capable of great ball jumpers, for whose return, the state also paid expenses totaling $540.84.

The prosecutor has said he planned to proceed against the sheriff either by an ouster suit or grand jury action.

ROBBERS TAKE $655 IN COIN; OTHERS GET $500 IN PECANS

Coins totaling $655 were stolen from a cabinet and two cash drawers in the Palomino Restaurant and Bar, 4928 North Broadway, it was discovered yesterday.

Police were told the coins ranged from nickels to half dollars, and were in sacks. Entrance was gained by breaking a window.

Sixteen sacks of pecans, valued at $500, were stolen from a storage room at 2417 North Broadway, Jack Ballard, the owner, reported yesterday. The pecans weighed 1600 pounds.

ONLY 8 TRAFFIC DEATHS IN MISSOURI LAST WEEK

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 25 (AP)—Missouri drivers held the number of traffic fatalities to eight last week, giving the state a good edge over last year's record as the Thanksgiving holiday period neared.

Last week's deaths compared with 32 for the same week a year ago. The first 24 days of November this year accounted for 63 deaths against 106 last year and made the total for the year 853 or 147 fewer than a year ago.

The letter ended with a request that Gov. Blair set them straight on the question of whether their bond should have been accepted.

Blair said he had no comment, but that he may have something to say later.

Garnholz said today he did not recall talking to Mr. and Mrs. Pearia, but that he may have.

"The Sheriff does have some discretionary powers in accepting bonds," he said. "However, I see no reason why Mr. and Mrs. Pearia, if they are property owners in Missouri, could not qualify."

The $250 charged by Higgenbotham was 10 per cent of the total bond. Most professional bondsmen in the county charge only 5 per cent, the Post-Dispatch was told, because of competition for the ball bond business.

Garnholz is investigating Post-Dispatch disclosures that Litzinger collected $2366.70 from bondsmen for returning

ONLY 8 TRAFFIC DEATHS IN MISSOURI LAST WEEK

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 25 (AP)—Missouri drivers held the number of traffic fatalities to eight last week, giving the state a good edge over last year's record as the Thanksgiving holiday period neared.

Last week's deaths compared with 32 for the same week a year ago. The first 24 days of November this year accounted for 63 deaths against 106 last year and made the total for the year 853 or 147 fewer than a year ago.

"We, as taxpayers, would like to know who is correct. But we do feel if a sheriff can change a state law and we have so many sheriffs, how can we keep up with the law?"

The letter ended with a request that Gov. Blair set them straight on the question of whether their bond should have been accepted.

Blair said he had no comment, but that he may have something to say later.

G.O.P. CHARGES DEMOCRATS CUT MILITARY POWER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—The Republican National Committee yesterday accused the Democrats of inconsistency on national defense spending and said they reduced U. S. military power to a "dangerously low level" when they were in office.

The G.O.P. committee's attack was in a leading article in a special defense issue of its publication "Straight from the Shoulder." The party organ is sent to more than 350,000 G.O.P. leaders and party workers.

It was made public on the eve of a Senate Preparedness subcommittee inquiry, aimed at speeding up missile programs, under the chairmanship of Democratic Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas.

But another Democratic member of the subcommittee, Senator Stennis of Mississippi, said he hopes the hearings will be non-political and will "point out where the responsibility is (for the missile program) right where the power is, with the President."

Power With President.

In a television interview, Stennis said nobody but the President has the requisite power over all the services, the Defense Department, Atomic Energy Commission and Budget Bureau to make the necessary decisions. He said this power must be delegated to some one person and he hopes to find out whether it has been delegated to Dr. James R. Killian, recently named as the President's missiles adviser.

Stennis said, "With all deference to Gen. Eisenhower's opinions on military matters, he has discarded his role of general now, pulled off his uniform and taken on all the other international responsibilities of office. . . . No one man has the imagination or knowledge to cope with this matter. He must have his scientific and military advice given him."

Stennis said Congress "certainly hasn't held back authority or money."

He said the Administration elected not to use some money that was appropriated and "Congress can't under the Constitution spend money, but just appropriate it."

Inconsistency Charged.

The Republican publication, however, accused Democrats of inconsistency.

The Republican article said a few months ago Democrats in Congress were complaining that the Eisenhower Administration was too lavish in defense spending. Now, it said, they are calling for "crash" programs which would cost many times more than funds they refused to approve last spring.

"When these persistent, if not consistent, Democrat critics express their views on the problems of national defense today," the article said, "they invite attention to their costly blunders of the pre-Korean period."

"While condemning the Eisenhower Administration one day for doing too much and the next day for doing too little, they prefer to forget that it was they who reduced our military power to a dangerously low level by imposing cutbacks which affected every branch of the armed forces between 1946 and 1950."

Korea, Pearl Harbor Cited.

The article said when the Democrats were in power they "failed to provide the military strength to meet effectively the attack on freedom made in Korea in 1950 (as they had failed to make us ready for the attack on Pearl Harbor nine years earlier)."

"One result of the short-sighted Truman economy program in national defense," the article said, "was a serious lag in the development of new weapons. Research and development by the armed forces suffered from the meat-ax cuts as did other activities, but the damage here was lasting."

In support of this contention, the article quoted several military leaders. Among them was Adm. Arthur W. Radford, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who was quoted as saying: "In the period 1945 to 1950, Defense Department appropriations were pared way down. We lost a lot of time that we could never make up moneywise on research."

MAN MISSING AFTER FIRE, BLAST IN KANSAS CITY

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 25 (AP)—A business man was missing today as firemen searched ruins of the seven-story Eight-O-Four Grand building and the three-story Sterling building in the downtown district.

Allen O. Gore, a co-owner of a printing firm in the larger building, apparently was killed when an explosion touched off a fire that destroyed the two buildings Saturday night.

Fire Chief Ed Grass said the loss would exceed $500,000. Firemen and the police arson squad were seeking the cause of the explosion and fire.

POPE GIVES VIEWS ON AID FOR DYING

VATICAN CITY, Nov. 25 (AP)—Pope Pius XII said yesterday a doctor legitimately may halt artificial respiration for a dying patient in some cases if the patient's family requests it.

The Pope defined those cases as when the family might feel the attempt at resuscitation "constitutes for the family a burden which in conscience they cannot accept."

In such an event, the Pope said, the halting of artificial respiration would not be euthanasia—mercy killing—"which would never be legitimate."

The Pope made his statement to several hundred Italian and foreign doctors and anesthetists at an audience.

The Pontiff also said that artificial respiratory methods could be used to allow a dying patient to receive the last sacrament of the Roman Catholic church. He said that a yes or no answer could not be given to the question whether the Extreme Unction of the Church was valid if not administered until the blood was ceasing to circulate, or after circulation had stopped.

The Pontiff said medical authorities must decide whether the ceasing of circulation represented the moment of death; whether this represented the moment when the soul separated from the body although some organs might still be functioning.

He said the question of the moment of death of a person in deep coma, whose blood circulation had been maintained for days only by artificial methods, was not within the competence of the Church to decide, but was for medical decision.

He said he was answering questions asked by Dr. Bruno Haid, chief of the anesthesia section of the surgical clinic of the University of Innsbruck, Austria.

The questions, the Pope said, dealt with moral problems of resuscitation techniques used to artificially continue respiration and blood circulation in cases of paralysis of the circulatory system as result of injury or illness.

Dr. Haid asked, in cases of deep unconsciousness, including those which in the opinion of a competent doctor are without hope, has the anesthetist the right and has he the duty to apply modern means of artificial respiration, even if against the will of the (patient's) family?

"In ordinary cases," the Pope replied, "it is to be conceded that the anesthetist has the right to proceed in that way—but he does not have the duty to do so unless this is the only way of fulfilling other clear moral obligations."

SENATOR KENNEDY BOOMED FOR PRESIDENT AT BANQUET

BOSTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—United States Senator John F. Kennedy (Dem.), Massachusetts, was boomed last night for President at an Italo-American gathering to honor him.

Gov. Dennis J. Roberts of Rhode Island said, "I will help nominate Senator Kennedy for President at the 1960 convention." A spokesman for Gov. Foster Furcolo of Massachusetts said, "The Governor wants everyone to know that he will walk hand in hand with Senator Kennedy in 1958 and 1960." Kennedy was presented the award of grand officer of the Italian Republic at a hotel banquet.

REPORT ON TEACHERS' PAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (AP)—The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching reported yesterday that the teaching profession is "slowly withering away" as a result of comparatively low pay.

In its fifty-second annual report the foundation said teachers were leaving the profession and young people were reluctant to enter it. Between 1940 and 1954, the report said, the real income of lawyers, physicians and industrial workers rose from 10 to 80 per cent but the real income of faculty members dropped 5 per cent.

gram Kennedy had repeated his assertion that his only immediate goal is re-election.

TWINING URGES NATO TO RETAIN MANNED PLANES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—Gen. Nathan F. Twining told NATO scientists today that the safety of the free world depends on the maintenance of manned bomber forces until ballistic missile weapons can be perfected.

"The problem of maintaining technological superiority" in the face of recent Russian technical advances, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff said, is one "for the entire community of free nations."

Twining said development of intermediate and intercontinental missiles is proceeding under "the highest national priority," but he added: "Meanwhile, we cannot discard systems of known capability for those not yet in operational readiness. In effect we must travel two roads simultaneously."

Twining made the remarks in an address prepared for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization advisory group for aeronautical research and development.

Eisenhower's Message. President Eisenhower said in a message read by Gen. Twining the organization's work "becomes more important in each passing year to the safeguarding of peace and security."

"Moreover, it serves as a model for others in practical and productive co-operation for the benefit of the whole NATO community," the President's message said.

Donald Quarles, deputy Secretary of Defense, said the advisory group has done very important work in developing NATO's light fighter project for perfecting an inexpensive light plane of limited performance.

Quarles said recent events demonstrate the importance of co-ordination if the free world is to maintain leadership in science and in application of science to man's welfare.

He added that there must be a re-examination of security requirements for a proper balance between free exchange of information and the safeguarding of vital secrets.

Cites Need for Union. Lt. Gen. J. M. Piatte of the French army, chairman of the NATO standing group which directs the advisory group, said recent events made it imperative that the free nations unite their efforts toward greater co-operation in the use and exploitation "of our combined scientific potential."

"The success of the Western world is irrevocably linked to the free exchange of ideas," Piatte said.

Lt. Gen. Donald L. Putt, deputy chief of staff of the United States Air Force for development, told the group civilization is in an era of development of both manned and unmanned weapons which will operate in space.

Morocco King

tion here at the moment to pressure, or even advise, the French government along this line.

Mohammed V comes here almost directly from talks at his capital, Rabat, with President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia, another pro-Western Arab leader. The United States and Britain recently supplied a small quantity of arms to Bourguiba in the face of angry French protests.

Mohammed and Bourguiba agreed in their talks to try to mediate between France and the Algerian rebels. This offer was almost immediately rejected by French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau, but it has caused a political split in the Radical Socialist party of French Premier Gaillard.

Strasbourg Conference. Gaillard contended it would be unwise to accept the mediation offer without much more information. Despite this, the Radical Socialist conference at Strasbourg Saturday urged the Gaillard administration to "take the initiative for negotiation with Tunisia and Morocco" in order to try to work out ways for settling the Algerian uprising.

Three other issues of importance are expected to arise before the King ends his visit with the President next Thursday morning and flies to Williamsburg, Va., to begin a national tour. These issues are:

1. Economic aid—Mohammed reportedly wants the United States to boost the $20,000,000 annual total of United States assistance.

2. United States bases—The Air Force has four bases in Morocco and the Navy has one. Agreements for these were negotiated with the French government which controlled Moroccan affairs and held protectorate rights until last year.

Mohammed opened negotiations with the United States several months ago on new agreements.

3. Military aid—Mohammed has an army of around 38,000 troops which has been equipped by France. He may bring up the issue of getting guns and ammunition from the United States.

By the United Press. Tonight President and Mrs. Eisenhower will entertain Mohammed and his official party at a state dinner in the White House.

While in the United States Mohammed wants to meet the humble as well as the mighty. He has invited to a reception here a group of about 150 persons who simply wrote the Moroccan embassy expressing an interest in him or his country.

He also wants to follow the lead of Britain's Queen Elizabeth II and take a look at an American supermarket. He will visit a department store and some average American homes as well, and will visit several United States cities and points of interest.

While here Mohammed will do some sightseeing around Washington and historic Williamsburg and Jamestown, Va. From there he will fly to Dallas, Tex., take a side trip to the King ranch and the Kingsville, Tex., naval air station.

He also will visit Los Angeles and San Francisco, Calif., Offutt Air Force Base, Nebraska, Niagara Falls, N.Y., and New York City.

Accompanying the King here were Foreign Minister Ahmed Balafout; Moulay Hassan, a brother of the King; Prince Moulay Abdallah, a son; National Economy Minister Abderraim Bouabid; Defense Minister Ahmed Lyazidi; Public Works Minister Mohamed Douir, and Gen. Mohammed Ketani, chief of staff of the royal armed forces.

The State Department, trying to avoid a new ruckus over gifts, has informed Morocco that only President Eisenhower and two other top officials are prepared to swap presents with Mohammed on his visit here.

The other two officials are Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who visited Morocco earlier this year, and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. The gift edict was given to the Moroccan embassy recently.

WELLSTON OFFICE TO GIVE FULL STATE JOB SERVICE

The Wellston office of the Missouri State Employment Service, at 1600-Hodiamont avenue, starting next Monday will provide complete employment service, including handling of initial claims for unemployment insurance. It was announced today by Charles G. DeLargy, St. Louis office manager.

New Ceramic Solved Missile Problem, Russian Paper Says

MOSCOW, Nov. 25 (AP)—The newspaper Soviet Aviation says Russia solved a major problem of the intercontinental ballistic missile—the tremendous heat it generates in flight—by using “sweating walls” and a new form of ceramics.

The missile's combustion chamber and the jet nozzle are protected from high temperatures by porous walls through which liquid is forced under pressure, the paper said yesterday. This liquid evaporates and cools the walls.

The new form of ceramics is called “metallo-ceramics.” The paper said it was ceramics (silicon such as clay) and 10 to 20 per cent cobalt powder heated to very high temperatures.

The article, by V. Parfenov, a major in the Soviet Engineering Corps, was based on materials used in ballistic rockets. It said metallo-ceramics were used in the body of the rocket as well as in the lining of the rocket's jet nozzle.

Discarded Materials. He said the Russians turned to ceramics after discarding wolfram, rhenium, platinum, molybdenum, chrome and gold in their search for something that would withstand tremendous heats generated by rockets in their flights through the atmosphere.

All failed to meet the requirements of fire resistance and weight, he said.

Experiments showed, Parfenov said, that a layer of ceramics around the nose of a rocket protected it from heat but ceramics were found too brittle and unable to withstand the vibration.

“A percentage of cobalt introduced into it to protect its plasticity solved the problem,” he said.

(The reference to the materials being used in the body of the rocket would indicate this is the Russian solution to the problem of bringing a rocket back from space into the earth's atmosphere. Scientists call this the re-entry problem, since the tremendous speed of the missile would cause it to burn up like a meteor in the friction caused by the resistance of the atmosphere.

In his speech to the nation on Nov. 7, President Eisenhower said the United States had solved the re-entry problem. He showed the television audience the nose cone of a rocket he said was fired hundreds of miles into space.

“Virgin Material.” (The materials used in the United States nose cone never were detailed. But Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, commander of the Army's ballistic missile agency, said the cone contained a “virgin material.”

In Washington, Dr. Joseph Kaplan, chairman of the United States Committee for the International Geophysical Year, commented that “this report does not provide sufficient information” for an opinion as to whether the Soviets have actually solved the re-entry problem.

(Gordon Harris, public information officer of the United States Army ballistic missile agency at Redstone Arsenal, Huntsville, Ala., commented: “Our position is that the article contains nothing new. The technology is known to us. We consider our techniques for the problems discussed in the article as superior.”)

LUTHERAN COUPLE LOSES IN FIGHT TO ADOPT A CATHOLIC

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (UP)—A middle-aged Baltimore couple of Lutheran faith today lost their Supreme Court fight to adopt a two-year-old Roman Catholic boy.

The court in a brief order denied a hearing to Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Frantum. They must now give up the child, Burton Stevens, to a younger Roman Catholic couple.

Frantum, 54, and his wife, 48, have been foster parents to Burton since he was less than two months old.

The Baltimore Welfare Department refused to consent to the adoption because of the couple's age and difference in religion. The boy's mother asked that he be brought up a Catholic.

This decision was upheld by the Baltimore Circuit court and the Maryland court of appeals.

GRAVES MAN SAID HE ROBBED ARE OPENED, FOUND EMPTY

PLAINFIELD, Wis., Nov. 25 (UP)—Authorities today dug into two graves which Ed Gein said he had robbed and found them empty. Bones were found on top of one casket.

Diggers found no body in the grave of Mrs. Eleanor Adams. In the second grave, that of Mrs. Mabel Everson, the casket also was empty, but there were bones on top of it.

Both women died in 1951.

Gein, 51, who admits killing two women, said he obtained at least eight other skulls, death masks and other parts of human anatomy from fresh graves.

NAMED TO AVIATION POST Ralph W. Kummer, aviation editor of the old St. Louis Star-Times, has been appointed general manager of Bay Aviation Services Co. at San Francisco International Airport. It was announced today. The firm has the franchise for fixed base plane operations at the airport.

Kummer has been in charge of public relations and advertising for Hiller Helicopters, Inc., at Palo Alto, Calif., for the past eight years. He is a graduate of the University of Missouri School of Journalism.

TOMMY MANVILLE DIVORCED

RENO, Nev., Nov. 25 (UP)—The latest marriage of Tommy Manville ended today in a Nevada divorce court.

Pat Gaston Manville, a former Texas showgirl, won the decree from Thomas F. Manville Jr., on grounds of extreme mental cruelty. The court approved a sealed agreement settling property rights. The couple was married May 5, 1957, in New York City.

Second Chance to Vote. MANILA, Nov. 25 (AP)—Residents of 122 Luzon precincts, unable to vote in the Philippine general election Nov. 12 because of Typhoon Kit's rain and wind, will get another chance in a special election Dec. 1. The outcome will not affect President Carlos Garcia and other major winners, but a few congressional races may be changed.

MAN ACCUSED OF OPERATING TAVERN WITHOUT LICENSE

St. Louis police raided the basement of a residence at 1112 North Second street early yesterday and arrested Richard Lange, a laborer, on suspicion of operating a tavern without a city license. He was released on bond for appearance Dec. 2 before Police Magistrate Harry J. Cassin.

Police reported they confiscated eight bottles of beer and three half-pints of liquor in the room, which contained a bar, chairs and tables.

Fuchs Studying Missiles

LONDON, Nov. 25 (UP)—Convicted atom-spy Klaus Fuchs is studying recent missile developments in space travel with the hope of resuming work for the British Government when he gets out of jail, it was reported yesterday by the Sunday Express. Fuchs is serving a 10-year term for passing British-American atom secrets to Russia after World War II.

CAR WRECKED IN STAGES, DRIVER SLIGHTLY BRUISED

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., Nov. 25 (AP)—An automobile hit a soft shoulder on a country road yesterday and struck a small tree, throwing the rear seat from the vehicle. It lost its rear wheels 15 feet beyond that. The back part of the body was sheared off 30 feet farther ahead.

The car continued another 150 feet where it crumpled up. City Marshal James E. Sullivan said it was the worst automobile wreck he had ever seen. Kenneth D. Allard, who said he had fallen asleep at the wheel, walked away with only minor cuts and bruises.

REDS BELIEVED READYING REICH MISSILE SITES

BERLIN, Nov. 25 (AP)—Intelligence sources say Russia has made East Germany a key base area for launching nuclear missiles against vital targets in western Europe in case of war.

The 22 Russian divisions garrisoning Communist East Germany are known to be equipped with short-range missiles for tactical use.

Western intelligence sources now believe the Russians are readying East German launching sites for their new intermediate range ballistic missiles (I.R.B.M.).

The Soviet I.R.B.M.s, whose ranges are estimated to be up to 1000 miles, could strike from East Germany at the west European capitals, the main NATO defense bases and targets throughout the British Isles.

Nuclear Warheads. These missiles could be fitted with either atomic or hydrogen warheads, these sources say.

It could not be learned here if any Soviet I.R.B.M.s have shown up as yet in East Germany. But such missiles, mounted on mobile carriers, could easily be moved into prepared East German launching sites.

Allied experts report that the Soviet ground divisions in East Germany — comprising 400,000 men in six armies—recently have been streamlined and re-equipped for atomic warfare. In tanks, transport and some categories of light weapons, the Soviet divisions generally are superior to their NATO opponents.

The United States divisions on the NATO line now are

Margaret Shocks Palace By Skipping Queen's Party

LONDON, Nov. 25 (AP)—A London newspaper says displays of independence by Princess Margaret are causing a stir in Buckingham Palace.

The Sunday Express reported that Margaret is determined "to establish that not only is she a princess, but a woman of personality in her own right." The newspaper said the Princess shocked Queen Elizabeth II by going out on the town last Wednesday instead of staying at the palace to celebrate the tenth wedding anniversary of the Queen and Prince Philip.

Other close relatives attended the palace party. Margaret was invited, but changed her mind at the last minute, the Express said. Instead, the Queen's 27-year-old sister went to the theater with friends and then dined at the fashionable Savoy hotel.

She showed up at the palace just before the party ended. The Express gave this account: "Her midnight arrival at the anniversary party came as a particular shock to the royal family when they found that, in addition to going to the theater, she had gone on to supper, and that she had gone to a public restaurant for this."

Margaret failed to attend the royal showing of "Les Girls" two weeks ago with the Queen and Prince Philip, despite the fact that she reportedly had no other engagement. She saw the movie last Thursday with her own friends.

High-spirited and gay, the Princess often has been the center of attention at dances and parties. Interest in her has grown since she bowed to family and church and publicly rejected the love of Royal Air Force Group Capt. Peter Townsend, a divorced World War II hero, two years ago.

Buckingham palace informants today described as nonsense reports that Margaret has made a tearful new appeal to the Queen for permission to marry Townsend.

Sources at the royal court suggested similar reports could be expected in anticipation of Townsend's expected return to Europe. Some informants here expect Townsend to visit London again within the next several weeks at the end of a round-the-world trip.

and rocket arms, the East German news agency A.D.N. reported.

The radio was quoted as saying the United States is ready to make such a gift to the Bonn republic and this could easily become the spark that would touch off the West German "atomic-powder barrel."

RUSSIAN MARSHAL IN E. REICH SAID TO BE PROMOTED

BERLIN, Nov. 25 (AP)—Marshal Andrei Grechko, commander of Soviet forces in East Germany, today was reported under orders to go to Moscow to become deputy defense minister.

Western intelligence sources said yesterday that the Soviet commander will be replaced in East Germany by Army Gen. Zakharov. Presumably this meant Gen. Matvei V. Zakharov, who as recently as three weeks ago was commander of the Leningrad military district.

A promotion for Grechko at present would surprise many Western observers, since in the past he has been identified with ousted Soviet Defense Minister Marshal Georgi Zhukov.

Zakharov is regarded as a close associate of the new defense minister, Marshal Rodion Malinovsky. During the last stages of World War II Zakharov was Malinovsky's chief of staff.

Grechko commanded the large Soviet establishment in East Germany for four years.

BALTIMORE'S ADVERTISING TAX CHALLENGED IN SUIT

BALTIMORE, Nov. 25 (AP)—The validity of Baltimore's new advertising tax was challenged in court today by the A. S. Abell Co., publishers of the Sunpapers and operators of television station WMAR-TV.

The company asked the city circuit court to prohibit city officials from putting the 6 per cent tax into effect Jan. 1, as scheduled.

Injunction proceedings filed in the court contend that two ordinances embodying the tax violate the constitutional guarantees of free speech and press.

The injunction suit also said the tax ordinances deprive newspapers, radio and television stations and other advertising media in Baltimore of press and speech freedoms guaranteed by the Declaration of Rights of Maryland.

MARTIN URGES AIDING SCIENCE STUDENTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—Joseph W. Martin (Rep., Massachusetts, minority leader of the House yesterday suggested the federal government foster a science student program.

"The country would find it profitable," Martin said in a statement, "by having the federal government pay for the education each year of the top five students in each congressional district who show talent in this field."

Martin said the students could be selected by competitive examinations held at the high school and junior college levels.

"Appointments would, of course, be nonpartisan," he said, "and the selections, based on the merit tests, would be made by the United States Department of Education. The students would be assigned to accredited scientific universities and research institutions."

Martin said he intended to file a bill to accomplish this purpose when Congress reconvenes in January, adding "I believe the very small cost involved would be more than justified by the results." He did not estimate the program's cost. He said the plan embodies a principle similar to that of the military, Navy, Air Force, Merchant Marine and Coast Guard academies where the government educates its service officers.

"Certainly in this atomic age the scientific field is equally important," he said.

Martin said that encouraging more of United States youth to enter the field of science "would not only be helpful in continuing our supremacy in the missile field, but would also contribute materially to our industrial leadership in the new atomic age."

RUBINSTEIN GIVES ALL HE HAS—EVEN HIS WRONG NOTES

LONDON, Nov. 25 (AP)—One of the world's greatest pianists admitted today that he hits a lot of wrong notes.

"There are two kinds of concert pianists," said 67-year-old

Artur Schnabel, "the methodical ones with no heart who never hit a wrong note, and the one like me who give it all they've got — and hit wrong ones."

The Polish-born musician, visiting London as the last stop on his current European tour, said in an interview: "The good pianist is not just the one with an extra octave in his pocket. He has a drop of blood, too. I'm one of those and I wring out every drop."

LYDON IS FOUND GUILTY, MAY ASK FOR NEW TRIAL

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 25 (AP)—William Lydon, suspended Chicago policeman, was found guilty Saturday night of conspiring with former state auditor Orville Hodge to defraud the state.

The jury of seven men and five women imposed a $2000 fine after deliberating four hours and 20 minutes. The jury could have imposed a five-year prison term or a one-year jail term.

Lydon's attorney, J. H. Welner, said he probably will ask for a new trial.

Lydon was accused of obtaining false bids on state house remodeling projects in a conspiracy to defraud the state of $88,787 in fake warrants. Others named as conspirators in the indictment were Hodge; Hodge's assistant, Edward Epping; and Edward Hintz, former Chicago banker. Hodge, Epping and Hintz pleaded guilty and are serving prison terms.

Lydon's attorney contended in closing arguments of the week-long trial that his client was Hodge's dupe.

The 49-year-old ex-policeman was head of the Fabric-Craft Sales Co. of Chicago which had contracts for remodeling Hodge's office. The state house remodeling commission authorized the work.

The warrants were made out in the name of Elmer Bretz, contended he was not entitled to the money and never received any. He said Lydon later asked him to alter documents and get out of town because "this thing might blow up."

Robert Oxtoby, special assistant attorney general who assisted the prosecution, said Lydon and Hodge worked together to take cash from the state house commission.

He contended Lydon provided such administrative details as bids, specifications and contracts and that Epping carried false warrants to Chicago for Hintz to cash at the Southmoor Bank and Trust Co. and to then assign to accounts for Hodge and Fabric-Craft.

6 CONGRESSMEN IN SUPPLY PLANE CROSS SOUTH POLE

McMURDO SOUND, Antarctica, Nov. 25—Six Congressmen flew over the South Pole yesterday exactly two weeks after they had crossed the North Pole. The members of the House subcommittee on transportation and communications were in an Air Force Globemaster, which dropped supplies to a South Pole station.

Oren Harris (Ark.), Democrat, chairman of the group, chatted on the radio with Dr. Paul A. Siple, the station's scientific leader. Lt. Col. Dixon J. Arnold, the plane's pilot, reported a three-ton Weasel vehicle suspended from three 100-foot parachutes was dropped neatly. The load also included 7000 pounds of food and clothing.

Other subcommittee members were Representatives Steven B. Derounian (Rep.), New York; Robert Hale (Rep.), Maine; John J. Flynt Jr. of Georgia; Samuel N. Friedel of Maryland and Torbert H. MacDonald of Massachusetts, all Democrats. The group is the first bipartisan committee in Congressional history.

HINTS ON GROCERY SHOPPING GIVEN BY HOME ECONOMIST

Hints on grocery shopping in a period of high food prices were given to members of the Fontbonne College Alumnae Association yesterday by Miss Theresa Carmody, associate director of the college's home economics department.

Be careful of bargains that end in "9", since 89 cents is only a penny short of 90, she told the group. Note the contents of a package in weight since some packages have remained the same size, but are now as little as one-half full, she said. Knowledge of stores is also important, she pointed out, since a recent survey showed that the same standard item had seven different prices in seven different stores.

Miss Carmody also said that grocery shopping has become a family affair, offering a treat to the youngsters and an outing for all. Most families shop once a week, with the weekend the most popular time. With food prices at a record high, it is a good thing the family can find some recreation in shopping, she added.

1500 U.S. TROOPS RETURN FROM 6 YEARS IN GERMANY

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (UP)—More than 1500 officers, men and dependents of the Second Armored Division returned today from more than six years in West Germany, en route to new assignments at Fort Hood, Tex.

The main unit aboard the transport General Buckner when it docked at Brooklyn Army Terminal was the First Medium Tank Battalion, Sixty-seventh Armor. The men and their families got a cheering welcome from hundreds of friends and relatives at dockside.

Most of the returnees will take leave before reporting to Fort Hood, an Army spokesman said. The remainder will go to Fort Hood after processing, which is expected to take most of the day.

MISSOURI PRISON INMATES TO HAVE 4½-DAY HOLIDAY

By The Post-Dispatch Jefferson City Correspondent.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 25—The 3216 convicts in the state penitentiary, or assigned to the prison farms, will have a four and one-half day holiday this week to celebrate Thanksgiving, under a schedule announced by Gov. James T. Blair today, for all state departments.

Warden E. V. Nash said work in the prison shops will halt at noon Wednesday and will not resume until Monday morning. The same schedule will be followed on the farms.

The prison Thanksgiving day dinner will include fried spring chicken, candied sweet potatoes, giblet gravy, cranberry sauce, cream peas, pumpkin pie and coffee.

The convicts will have recreation ground privileges Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

PRODUCTION IN U.S. RUNNING AT RECORD RATE OF 1956

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—America's total output this year is running at the record rate reached at the end of 1956, the Commerce Department said yesterday.

The Government report showed no increase in actual volume, as occurred last year. Earlier studies indicated a rise on the basis of current dollar value in 1957 is due entirely to inflation.

Last year's gross national product—the total volume of goods and services produced in the country—rose from an annual rate of about 408 billion dollars at the start of the year to 426 billions by year's end. The Commerce Department report said the 1956 high point has been maintained so far this year.

SUCKED IN JET INTAKE, LIVES

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 25 (AP)—A ground crewman was sucked into the air intake of an F-86 Sabre jet fighter plane yesterday but lived. Airman 2C, Curtis L. Large suffered scalp cuts, a broken arm and shock.

The accident happened at Richards-Gebaur Air Force Base near here. Air Force officers said quick action by the pilot, Lt. John F. Gaylord, in turning off the engine saved Large's life. Suction from the engine drew Large about 12 feet into the intake as he started to inspect the plane's wheel blocks, witnesses said.

REVOLT REPORTED AGAINST SPAIN IN IFNI ENCLAVE

RABAT, Nov. 25 (AP)—Moroccan nationalist sources yesterday reported a rebellion in Ifni, a Spanish enclave in south Morocco. They said six Spanish military posts have fallen. Comment was lacking from Spain, which was ceded the 741-square-mile territory in 1860.

The nationalist sources gave this account: Disorders broke out last Friday. The territory, with a population of about 40,000, had been restive since Spanish authorities arrested 90 nationalists five months ago and deported them to the Canary Islands. Violence centered at Sidi Ifni, the capital.

Spain rushed reinforcements by plane from the Canary Islands. There were casualties on both sides, their number as yet undetermined.

Morocco's King Mohammed V, who left yesterday for a visit to the United States, ordered the opening of talks with Spain over Ifni a month ago. The talks are believed to have broken down.

MOSCOW, Nov. 25 (AP)—Tass announced today French writer Louis Aragon was awarded the Lenin peace prize on his sixtieth birthday in recognition of "his services in the struggle for preserving and strengthening peace."

The Communist committee of the international Lenin prizes met Nov. 5 and 11 to make its choice, according to the announcement.

Among Aragon's works translated into English are the poem "Red Front" and the books "Bells of Basel" and "The Century Was Young." In 1954, Aragon was the poet laureate of the French Communist Party.

INDUSTRY'S AID TO COLLEGES IS TOPIC OF C. OF C. SURVEY

Questionnaires seeking information from businesses in the St. Louis area on their policies and procedures in giving money to colleges and universities have been mailed by the education committee of the Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis, it was announced today.

Purpose of the questionnaires is to obtain information for a composite report on what firms in this area are doing toward support of colleges and universities.

"Colleges and universities are turning more and more to business for financial support," Eugene R. Kropp, chairman of the committee, said. "A great many firms, through trusts, foundations or other means, have made contributions because they feel that the schools need help if they are, in return, to continue to supply competent graduates to business."

RENT COLLECTOR ROBBED OF $400 BY ARMED MAN

George Voelter, a rent collector, was robbed of more than $400 today by an armed man who accosted him in the hallway of an apartment building in the 2700 block of Delmar boulevard, Voelter reported to police.

Voelter said the man apparently was lying in wait for him. He regularly visits the building to collect rents for the Fellerbaum Realty Co., 722 Chestnut street.

After drawing a pistol, the robber withdrew from Voelter's overcoat pocket a large wallet containing between $400 and $500 of rental money, the collector said. He also stole $30 belonging to Voelter.

The robber ran across the street after the robbery, Voelter said, and was last seen in an alley. Voelter, 75 years old, lives at 4945 Fairview avenue.

Two young robbers were arrested and $114 was recovered by an alert off-duty policeman who followed the pair when he saw them run into an alley in the 3600 block of Olive street early yesterday.

The prisoners, booked as Charles Little and Melvin L. Smith, each 17 years old, were identified as the youths who held up George Rieker, night manager of the Heater Rent-A-Car Co., 3655 Olive street, a few minutes earlier. The robbers, both armed, stole $1 from Rieker and $113 from a cash register and a safe.

Patrolman Robert Scott, Lucas Avenue District, off duty and in civilian clothes, was driving in Olive street at 12:30 a.m. when he saw the youths run into an alley. Suspicious at their haste, Scott drove into the alley, identified himself as an officer and arrested the pair.

Youths Admit Holdup. Little carried a loaded revolver and a box containing the cash, Smith had a knife, and directed the officer to a point in the alley where he had tossed away a revolver. Following their identification by Rieker, the youths admitted the holdup, police said. Little said he lives in the 5900 block of Hamilton terrace. Smith gave an address in the 4700 block of Easton avenue.

Mrs. Justa Arbolov, 70 years old, was walking in the 3900 block of California avenue early last night when a youth about 16 years old snatched her purse and fled, she reported to police. The purse contained $5. Mrs. Arbolov lives at 3850 Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Lynn Stafford, 2944 Sheridan avenue, was dragged into an alley in the 800 block of Beaumont street Saturday night by a man, who struck her on the head and fled with her purse containing $2. She was treated at Home G. Phillips Hospital for a scalp wound.

A robber, who was struck on the head with a hammer and fell through a plate glass window, fled with $50 yesterday after pointing a revolver at Tony and Peter Lograsso, operators of a drug store at 4272 W. Finney avenue.

The robber, holding one hand in his jacket pocket, ordered Tony Lograsso to place the contents of the cash register in a bag. He then ordered the brothers to accompany him to the door. Peter Lograsso picked up a hammer and struck the robber on the head.

Clutching the bag of money, the robber fell through the plate glass and walked away. Tony Lograsso followed him, but returned to the store when the man drew a revolver.

Identified as Robber. Police recognizing an automobile in which a robber fled after obtaining $55 in a holdup in a sandwich shop at 2270 South Vandeventer avenue early yesterday, stopped the machine a short time later and arrested the driver, who was identified by the robbery victims.

The prisoner was booked as Fred N. Oliver, 19 years old, who has a record as a juvenile offender. The $55 was recovered from Oliver, who gave an address in the 2700 block of South Broadway. He was identified by two employees of the restaurant.

Clifford Tucker, bartender in a tavern at 1501 St. Louis avenue, East St. Louis, was robbed of $30 last night by a man armed with a rifle. The robber forced three customers to stand with their hands on the bar while he stole the money from the bartender.

James Bennett, attendant at a service station at 901 St. Clair avenue, East St. Louis, was robbed of $104 early yesterday by a man who brandished an automatic pistol, then scooped the change out of a cash register, he reported to police.

Bennett, who lives at 278 North Eighty-fifth street, East St. Louis, said the robber first asked for change for a dollar. The robber, described as being about six feet tall and wearing a trench coat, forced him into a rest room, then fled on foot.

ation efforts in an Israeli convoy incident last week. Jordan charged the Israelis violated the armistice agreement by sending a convoy of benzene to a hospital in the Mount Scopus demilitarized area within the Arab part of Jerusalem. Jordan said the armistice agreement forbids transporting explosive material into a demilitarized zone.

Israel then asked to negotiate with Jordan, citing a section of the armistice agreement applying to the movement of traffic on roads in the Bethlehem-Jordan area. Col. Leary relayed the request. Jordan rejected it.

The Arab Government's repudiation of Col. Leary as a truce observer yesterday was accompanied by an announcement that Jordan will take the convoy matter to the U.N. Security Council.

Foreign Minister Samir Rifai said he had been "informed of openly partial recommendations and views" expressed by Col. Leary. He added that the United States officer had been biased on previous occasions.

The demand that Col. Leary be replaced raised the possibility that Jordan might boycott the U.N. Mixed Armistice Commission which deals with its Israeli border clashes. Israel already boycotts the commission.

Leary succeeded Canadian Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns as acting head of the truce supervision group when Burns took over the United Nations Emergency Forces in Gaza.

New trouble on the Jordan border followed recent Egyptian and Syrian propaganda charges that Jordan's King Hussein was negotiating secretly with Israel.

Kidnaping Attempt. Israel charged that Jordanians yesterday fired on three Israeli laborers near Yarbiv village and tried to kidnap them.

An Israeli spokesman said Jordan has tried three kidnapings in retaliation since Israel took an Arab villager into custody because he was a "habitual infiltrator."

In another complaint, Israel said Syrian soldiers yesterday fired machine guns at Israeli field workers near Tel Azaziat in northeastern Israel, fatally wounding one.

But Syria said the Israelis launched the attack "in an attempt to plow Arab lands by force." The farmers marched in behind an armored car which opened fire on Arab farmers working the area, Damascus said.

On another border dispute was between Arab countries. Lebanon was reported preventing all Palestinians living in Syria from crossing its frontier.

Lebanon recently has tightened border control to prevent arms from being smuggled from Syria to anti-government forces in Lebanon.

WARNS U.S. AGAINST LOSING RACE TO CONTROL WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—Dr. Edward Teller said today weather control is a field in which he expects great progress in the next decade or so. He said this country should make certain Russia does not get ahead in that area.

"What kind of world would it be if Russia could control the weather and we could not?" he asked at Senate hearings on the United States missile program. In such a situation, he said, the Russians could produce gainfall in their country and perhaps rob the United States of moisture in the process.

Senator Lyndon Johnson (Dem.), Texas, quipped: "I might say the way the weather's been acting lately in Texas, some people think they already control it."

7 TRUCK FIRMS INCREASE FREIGHT RATES IN SOUTH

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—Seven motor freight carriers, acting with the assent of the Interstate Commerce Commission, today increased their charges on shipments within the South and between that territory and the southwestern and Middle Western territories by 4 to 7 per cent.

The commission said it had advised these carriers last Friday it would not interfere with the proposed hikes, on which the truckers gave public notice a month ago.

The commission in late September blocked a proposed 5 per cent increase in trucking rates between the south and eastern territory because, officials said, this increase would have been applied only to selected areas, rather than generally.

RUNAWAY HORSE AT PARADE INJURES MANY SPECTATORS

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Nov. 25 (AP)—A horse ran away at the annual Mother Goose parade in suburban El Cajon yesterday and injured numerous spectators.

Ten were treated at hospitals. Others were bruised or cut. Five of the hospital patients were children.

The runaway horse had bolted from a riding stable, frightened by the noise of the parade. It brushed spectators, and at one intersection ran through a crowd. Women and children were knocked down as they attempted to escape.

AUTHOR GEORGE DAVIS DIES

BERLIN, Nov. 25 (AP)—George Davis, American novelist and magazine editor, died of a heart attack today in Lazarus hospital. He was 51 years old.

He was author of the 1931 best seller "Opening of a Door." He later became fiction editor of Harper's Bazaar and was also connected with the magazines Flair and Mademoiselle. In 1951 he married singer Lotte Lenya.

Formally Opening Outdoor Rink

MRS. MARK C. STEINBERG (third from right), widow of St. Louis investment broker and philanthropist, watches with MAYOR RAYMOND R. TUCKER yesterday as Mrs. Steinberg's granddaughter, 9-year-old LUCY RENARD, cuts ribbon officially opening Steinberg Memorial Skating Rink in Forest Park.

STEINBERG ICE RINK IN PARK DEDICATED

The $1,000,000 Steinberg Memorial Skating Rink in Forest Park was dedicated yesterday afternoon in ceremonies observed by about 3000 persons. The rink opened for public use Nov. 11.

Mrs. Mark C. Steinberg, widow of the St. Louis investment broker and philanthropist, formally presented the facility to the city. Two thirds of the rink's cost came from a charitable trust established by Steinberg.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker accepted the rink on behalf of the city. Tucker said the rink, already a popular recreational facility, was an appropriate memorial to Steinberg. Tucker recalled Steinberg's interest in sports and in the youth of St. Louis.

A gold lifetime pass to the rink was presented to Mrs. Steinberg. Members of the Forest Park Figure Skating Club and the Missouri Skating Association put on an exhibition of speed and figure skating.

Guests and officials at the ceremony included Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman of Temple Israel; Mrs. Edward G. Brundage, director of public welfare; William Webb, executive secretary of the St. Louis Labor Council, and Commissioner of Parks and Recreation Palmer B. Baumes.

Because of his dedication ceremony, there were no morning or afternoon skating sessions at the rink yesterday. The rink was open last night.

ACCORD SIGNED BY PAKISTAN AND LEBANON

BEIRUT, Nov. 25—Lebanon and Pakistan issued a joint communiqué last night announcing their agreement to strengthen security of their two countries against "any form of subversion now threatening them."

President Iskander Mirza of Pakistan left here for Karachi yesterday after a two-day official visit.

The statement pledged Pakistan "to co-operate with the Arabs for the realization of their legitimate aspirations in all that conduces to their development, independence and unity."

This is particularly significant because, on the one hand, Pakistan is a member of the Baghdad pact (Britain, Iran, Iraq, Pakistan and Turkey) which the Cairo-Damascus axis of Arab nationalism has fought bitterly. On the other Pakistan is a Moslem but not an Arab state.

Mirza visited here, at Lebanon's invitation, on his return from a trip to Spain. While here he had talks with ambassadors of all Mideast members of the Baghdad pact.

RUSSIAN LOAN TO ALBANIA

MOSCOW, Nov. 25 (AP)—Soviet Russia has agreed to extend credit of 160,000,000 rubles and technical assistance to Albania for the development of Albanian industry and agriculture, the Soviet press said yesterday. The Russians value the ruble at 25 cents.

Albania's Premier Mehmet Shehu was among visitors to Moscow for the celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the and subsequent Communist conferences.

24 DIE IN ALGERIAN FLOODS

ALGIERS, Nov. 25 (AP)—At least 24 persons drowned and 21 are missing after heavy rains flooded northern Algeria last week, incomplete reports said yesterday.

Hundreds of persons were rescued, mainly by members of the 400,000-man French army fighting the Algerian rebellion. Most of the dead were soldiers drowned on rescue missions.

Actress Ethel Jackson Dies. EAST ISLIP, N.Y., Nov. 25 (AP)—Actress Ethel Jackson, the original theatrical "merry widow" in this country, died Saturday night in a nursing home. She was 80 years old. She appeared in the first production of "The Merry Widow" in this country in 1907.

REDS PLAN TO PUT 'TANK' ON MOON TO TELEVIEW TERRAIN

LONDON, Nov. 25 (UP)—The Soviet Union has plans to land a "mobile laboratory" on the moon within "the next five or 10 years" to beam television pictures back to the world, the Moscow radio said last night. The broadcast said the laboratory would be mounted on caterpillar tracks and would "resemble a small tank."

TV pictures relayed to earth would allow "millions" of TV viewers to see the moon's landscape close up from their living rooms, the radio said.

It said the laboratory also would aid scientists in selecting the most suitable spot to land rockets carrying human passengers.

MAKARIOS SPEECH ON CYPRUS, MIDEAST

The Cyprus and Middle East problem was to be discussed by Archbishop Makarios III of Cyprus at a luncheon today at Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson.

The luncheon, sponsored by the foreign trade committee of the Chamber of Commerce, was the concluding event in the prelate's three-day visit here. He was greeted by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker and other city officials at a reception this morning at City Hall.

At a dinner last night at the Sheraton-Jefferson, the Archbishop, who was barred from the island of Cyprus by the British because of his leadership in the union-with-Greece movement, was presented with a silver and gold plaque in recognition of his struggle for his people's freedom.

The plaque has a cross with two olive branches and a woman trying to break out of binding chains.

Dr. Nicholas D. Matsakis, who presented the plaque, said the Greek Orthodox Church prelate was a "symbol of freedom."

George E. Mylonas, professor of art and archeology at Washington University, said excavations in Cyprus show that the people there have been Greek for more than 2000 years.

Archbishop Makarios was celebrant yesterday at a mass at St. Nicholas Greek Orthodox Church, 4957 Forest Park avenue.

The highway patrol identified the tanker driver as Joe Lee Mills, son of J. L. Mills of Mt. Croughan, owner of the vehicle. The truck turned over and Mills was thrown out. His injuries were reported to be serious.

MARINE BEAT 3 MEN
'TO RUN BETTER BRIG'

YOKOSUKA, Japan, Nov. 25 (AP)—A Marine sergeant charged with cruelty toward Navy prisoners admitted today he beat two sailors and a fellow Marine "to run a better brig."

Sergeant Tommy G. Flint, 23 years old, Silas, Ala., former warden in the brig at Sasebo naval base in southern Japan, said roughing up the prisoners was regular policy and the brig officer was aware of it. Flint, one of 14 Marines being court-martialed for alleged maltreatment of prisoners, said Capt. Milton C. Kramer told him "I know what's going on down here... If it is going on don't let me know about it."

No charges have been filed against Kramer.

Seaman Carlos E. Vota, 18, of Amarillo, Tex., told the five-man special court-martial board "Flint hit me in the stomach" and forced him to stand in a crouch, holding a ruler on the backs of his hands at arm's length.

Admits Hitting 3 Men.

A second seaman, John A. Reed, 19, Cleveland, O., also told of being struck by Flint.

Marine Pvt. Jon J. Taylor, 19, Phoenix, Ariz., said Flint slugged him in the stomach and forced him into a torturous squat position.

Flint, who pleaded not guilty last week to the maltreatment charge, admitted hitting Reed, Vota and Taylor.

"To run a better brig?" demanded Prosecuting Officer Lt. Leo F. O'Brien, Kansas City, Mo.

"Yes sir," Flint replied.

"Disgrace to Marine Corps."

Questioned as to why he hit Taylor, Flint said "he was a disgrace to the Marine Corps, being a thief, sir." Flint said he slapped Taylor two or three times. He said Taylor would not stand at attention, would not say sir and cried in his office.

Flint admitted hitting Reed and said "I punched him in the

THEOLOGIAN SEES FAD OF WESTERNS
AS 'HEALTHY' SIGN

CHICAGO, Nov. 25—A theologian said here last night that the growing desire for westerns on the part of moviegoers and television viewers was indicative of a cultural yearning for a "deeper sanity."

Dr. Robert E. Fitch, dean of the Pacific School of Religion in Berkeley, Calif., said the same deduction could be made from the increased interest in Shakespeare among the better educated.

It is characteristic of both Shakespeare and the western, he said, "that they reject a false complacency, that they welcome significant adventure with all its hazards, and that they hold fast to the distinction between the clean and the unclean."

Dr. Fitch addressed the opening session of the three-day national convention of the Religious Education Association of the United States and Canada, comprising some 2500 Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish leaders in the fields of religion and education.

stomach two or three times... It seemed he wanted to learn the hard way."

Flint said Vota asked to be punched to prove he was in good physical condition and "a man."

Flint's defense counsel, Lt. (j.g.) Charles E. Anderson, Cincinnati, O., said "we admit he violated brig regulations," but contended that technical assault by a brig guard on a prisoner did not necessarily constitute maltreatment.

Flint is the first of eight Marines to be tried by special court-martial. Conviction could mean a sentence of six months at hard labor, forfeitures of pay and a bad conduct discharge.

The Navy has already tried six Marines on the charge by summary court-martial. Four were convicted and two acquitted. Two men will be tried by general courts-martial.

DEEP SNOW FALLS OVER WESTERN, SOUTHERN TEXAS

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 25 (AP)—A snow called the "heaviest in 30 years" fell in western and southern Texas over the weekend.

A record 14 inches of snow paralyzed Concho county in lower west central Texas. About 300 motorists were stranded in Eden, Tex.

Laredo on the Mexican border, had some snow, the first since "about 1945."

The tomato crop around Laredo was ruined and the chili weather frosted winter vegetables in the lower Rio Grande valley area. It was too early to assess damage. Eden Weather Bureau observer G. H. Stiser said it was the most snow he had seen in 30 years. The snow melted rapidly yesterday as temperatures rose to the low 50s. Snow in the area around Eden ran from four to eight inches.

Khrushchev Offers to Give U.S. Plans for Sputnik Rocket if Americans Will End Cold War

Hints Russians Have Targets in This Country Pinpointed With Poised I.C.B.M.s — Asserts Soviet Union Wants Peace, However.

By BOB CONSIDINE

World Copyright 1957, International News Service.

MOSCOW, Nov. 25.

SOVIET COMMUNIST party leader Nikita Khrushchev, in the course of a lengthy talk with Publisher William Randolph Hearst Jr. Friday, offered to give the plans of Russia's Sputnik-launching intercontinental ballistic missile to the United States if America ends what he calls the prosecution of the cold war.

He hinted that the Red Army's general staff has principal American targets at home and overseas pinpointed with poised intercontinental and other rockets.

He stated blandly that Russia could "tomorrow" put up "10 or 20" new Sputniks, and reminded his listeners that each Sputnik means the expenditure of the kind of super missile the United States does not yet possess.

"We do not want to continue the arms race," said Khrushchev.

"We Have Already Won." "We have already won over you. We have the absolute weapon. We have the most modern rockets. I say this not to intimidate the United States or any other nation. But it is just a fact that we have the I.C.B.M. and various other rockets of all sorts and systems.

"We have all the bombs, the A bombs and H bombs. In this respect we have proved our superiority.

"If war should break out—and it could be started only by the United States because no other nation would dare—this could lead to a great war," Khrushchev continued.

"Your cities and bases could be stricken from the face of the earth. The very fact is not a threat. It is simply that we are obliged by circumstances to take the defensive. "And remember, your overseas bases are yours but they are surrounded by the peoples of those countries. You will see one day they will awaken from their slumber and recognize the folly of depending on NATO and such alliances for their protection.

"War on U.S. Soil. "The people of the United States now living never fought on their own territory. They do not understand war. They must understand that the next war, if there is one, will not be fought in Africa or Europe or Asia or some place like that. "But from the very outset, and immediately, it will be fought on United States soil.

"The I.C.B.M. permits this. We might strike Norway or Denmark or places like that, but they are not the main adversary. The main adversary is the United States. The American people would suffer huge losses in any I.C.B.M. war. Then your own marines could launch lesser rockets from closer positions.

"But to repeat, we do not want to compete in this field of arms. We want a renunciation of war, with the necessary controls to follow."

Khrushchev spoke with Hearst, this writer, and Frank Conniff, Hearst editor, in his big office high in the main headquarters of the world Communist movement—the party's Central Committee building. A simple nameplate on his door reads: "Comrade Khrushchev."

Asked About Syria Crisis. Hearst asked Khrushchev if he was prepared to produce the evidence he recently said he possessed that American diplomacy goaded Turkey into threatening Syria.

"Mr. Hearst," he said, wagging a chubby finger at the publisher, "you are a good friend of President Eisenhower and Secretary Dulles. Ask them. They know. They have the authentic proof."

"We received our information through third and fourth parties. Eisenhower and Dulles have the authentic proof."

Hearst said he had spoken to the Secretary of State and that Dulles denied such proof existed.

"We have irrefutable proof," Khrushchev insisted. "We would give it to you here and now but we do not want to deprive ourselves of this material just now."

I asked him to assay the Turkish-Syrian situation as of now, a month after Russian leaders predicted that the American-Turkish attack on Syria would take place Oct. 27.

"The situation is not yet changed there but it is in decline," he answered. "Whether it continues to decline depends on the United States. They started it."

Says Monopolists Want War. Hearst asked, "Do you really believe the United States wants war?"

Khrushchev regarded Hearst for a time and replied: "What is the United States you speak of? The people? Certainly they do not want war. They are afraid of it. So is the American bourgeoisie, some of its capitalists, its intellectuals and so forth. They do not want war.

"But the monopolists do! They profit by it. They forget that a cold war can become a hot war."

Hearst turned to Victor Sukhodrev, the young interpreter, and said to him, "Tell Mister Khrushchev nobody wants war. We realize it would mean catastrophe."

"If that is so what prevents

ALSO President's Aids Killed Candid Report

Robert Cutler Led Suppression of Appraisal of Red Strength.

WASHINGTON.

IT DOES not really matter very much whether presidential aid Robert Cutler was silly enough to say that Aviation Week was "treasonable" for publishing what the Russians already knew—that our radar installations had picked up sure evidence of Soviet missile progress as early as 1955. But Cutler himself does matter, as a symbol of what has gone wrong with the American government.

For Cutler has been a key figure in the Eisenhower Administration's "daddy knows best" policy. And the extent of the Soviet lead in weaponry, which threatens the United States as it has never been threatened before, is a direct outgrowth of that policy.

The story goes back to the months immediately after President Eisenhower's first inauguration. In those months, the President and his chief subordinates were suddenly and brutally exposed to the accumulating evidence that the Soviets were threatening to surpass this country in airatomic power, which had previously been an American monopoly.

First Reaction.

The President's first instinctive reaction was that the American people ought to be apprised of the danger, so that a united country could prepare to deal with it. On the President's instructions, a plan known as "Operation Candor" was prepared.

Later, Cutler himself wrote about the demise of Operation Candor. "The thesis was," he wrote, "that the American people could take bad news; they would be more self-reliant, more understanding, more ready to bear the costs of defense . . . things progressed so far as sketching out an operation known as Candor. But other and, I think, wiser counsels prevailed."

The wiser counsels were largely the counsels of Cutler himself. Cutler's chief allies in the killing of Operation Candor were AEC Chairman Lewis Strauss and Treasury Secretary George Humphrey. Strauss shares with Cutler a mania for secrecy—even when the supposed "secrets," like the rate of Soviet missile-testing, are certainly not secrets from the Soviets.

Humphrey's Belief. Humphrey sincerely believed, and no doubt still does, that high spending and high taxes are a greater threat to American security than Soviet hydrogen bombs. He was quite aware that, if the people were "officially apprised of the facts" they would demand a far higher level of defense effort.

Cutler, Strauss and Humphrey, all of whom had great influence with the President, thus persuaded him to drop Operation Candor. And once the decision to be less than candid had been taken, it was never reversed. On the contrary, Operation Soothing Syrup was substituted.

When, for example, the radar installations described in Aviation Week picked up irrefutable evidence that the Soviets were years ahead of this country in their missile program, every effort was made to hush up this fact. And all sorts of pleasing pap about how the military posture of the United States had "never been stronger" was put out.

Those who attempted to examine such claims in the only

GALLUP Public Wants New Look at Defense Policy

Poll Shows Even Split on Calling Special Session of Congress.

By GEORGE GALLUP

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 25. In the wake of the Soviet satellite and missile accomplishments, the typical American today is convinced that there is a need to take a new look at United States defense policies.

And while the public is evenly divided on the question of whether President Eisenhower should call a special session of Congress, one out of every two Americans thinks that the President should request the Armed Services Committees of Congress to meet at once to consider changes in our defense program.

Those are the highlights of a nationwide survey, just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

26 Pct. Satisfied.

Reporters for the Institute put this question to a carefully selected cross-section of adults across the country: "Are you satisfied with the present defense policies of the United States—or do you think there is a need to take a new look at our defense policies?" Here is how their replies added up:

Satisfied 26%
New look needed 53%
No opinion 21%

Analysis of the survey results indicates that a person's views are influenced to some extent by political considerations.

Proportionately, considerably more Democrats than Republicans say that our defense policies should be reappraised.

Rep. Dem. Ind.
Satisfied 35 20 27
New look needed 42 59 55
No opinion 23 21 18

Should Committee Meet?

Persons questioned in the survey were next asked: "Do you think President Eisenhower should request the Armed Services Committees of Congress to meet at once to consider changes in our defense program?"

Kennan Urges Neutral Germany To Break Unification Deadlock

Former Envoy Says Such a Move Would Shift to Soviet Union the Onus of Delaying Reasonable European Accord.

By KENNETH LOVE

© New York Times News Service LONDON, Nov. 25.

GEORGE F. KENNAN called on the Western powers last night to consider proposing the neutralization of Germany to break the deadlock with the Soviet Union over German reunification.

He said a withdrawal of foreign troops from East and West Germany and the turning of Germany into a neutral area would shift to the Soviet Union the onus of delaying a reasonable European settlement.

Kennan spoke in the third of a series of radio lectures for the British Broadcasting Corp. The address was entitled "The Problem of Eastern and Central Europe."

Asserting that a settlement of the German question was the key to solving the problem of the Eastern European countries, the former United States Ambassador to Moscow said:

"I am inclined to feel that the German question still stands at the center of world tensions; and that no greater contribution can be made to world peace than the removal of the deadlock over Germany; and that, in fact, this deadlock is not removed the chances for peace are slight indeed."

Kennan said Nikita S. Khrushchev, first secretary of the Soviet Communist party, himself had "murmured things" about a possible mutual withdrawal of forces from Europe.

Object of Rivalry. The former diplomat said it was plain that there could be no Soviet withdrawal from East Germany and Eastern Europe unless the entire area could in some way be removed as an object in the military rivalry of the great powers.

Kennan is the author of the United States post-war "containment" policy to halt Soviet expansion. He is professor of history at the Institute for Advanced Study in Princeton, N.J., but is spending the present academic year lecturing at Oxford.

He said yesterday it was the "indefinite retention of American and other Western garrisons on German soil which lies at the heart, or close to the heart, of the difficulty."

Noting that no peace treaty had yet put an end to all the powers in Germany of the World War II victors, Kennan said:

"Might it not just be that the only politically feasible road to unification and independence for Germany should lie precisely through her acceptance of certain restraints on freedom to shape her future military position in Europe?"

"And, if so, is it not just a bit quixotic to cling, in the name of the principle of German freedom and independence, to a position which implies the sacrifice of all freedom and all independence to many millions of Germans, namely the people of East Germany, for an indefinite time to come?"

West's Reunification Terms.

The West's terms for German reunification, as Kennan defined them, include the free election of an all-German government that must have no restrictions on its domestic or international policies.

He said the West had insisted specifically on the freedom of an all-German government to determine its German adherence to the North Atlantic pact, which was regarded as a foregone conclusion. Western forces would presumably remain in Germany under the Atlantic framework, he said, while Soviet troops withdrew from East Germany.

"Moscow is being asked, by implication, to abandon, as part of an agreement on German unification, the military and political bastion in Central Europe which it won by its military effort from 1941 to 1945, and to do this without any compensatory withdrawal of American armed power from the heart of the continent," he said.

Acknowledging that the Soviet leaders might not want

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

History Lesson

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

All this "clamor" by our public officials about Russia being "first" in the field of science leaves me a little cold.

This isn't the first time we have come out second best. Pure science is not and never has been a secret. Any country with vast natural resources and the willingness to spend the money could make an H-bomb.

While we are cramming a little mathematics down the throats of our budding scientists, we might teach them a little basic history. The science of electricity is the oldest known, going back to 500 B.C. Nothing was done in this field of research until the eighteenth century when English, French and German scientists laid the groundwork for the science of electricity as we know it today.

The telephone is the brain child of a seventeenth-century Englishman. Bell merely improved on the improvements of others. A European scientist, not R.C.A., discovered radio.

The first patent for television was issued in Germany. A French woman and her husband discovered radium. A Frenchman developed margarine so the poor man could have a spread for his bread. Rayon also is credited to a Frenchman.

The truth is we were not even first in America. The Indians were. We did not even discover it; an Italian did. So why all this fuss?

I don't think the Russians are going to blow everyone off the face of the map any more than we intend to. Right now the only thing that seems likely to blow its top is John Foster Dulles.

EDITH S. BRADY.

Marion, Ill.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

One simple fact has become very apparent in the last month. The Russians are working harder than we are. From the kindergarten to the grave they are giving forth more productive effort than we, and this is an infallible formula for achieving supremacy not only in the field of satellites and ballistic missiles, but also in any field of endeavor.

We cannot seek refuge in our democratic way of life and assume that the system itself is the great provider. Democracy is not designed to work without productive effort on the part of its people. We had better discard our aims toward less work and more play and instead work considerably harder if we expect to maintain our position in the world.

Poor Answer on Schools

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The proposal by Gov. Blair for solving our school building problems by raising the local bonding limit for school purposes from 10 to 15 or 20 per cent is most inappropriate because:

1. It will solve the problem only in the wealthier school districts. Many school districts in this state have an assessed valuation of less than $3000 per pupil. In all such districts a limit of 20 per cent would provide less than $600 per pupil for school buildings, which is wholly inadequate.

2. It will greatly increase the taxes on property. Property is now bearing more than its share of the cost of local government. We cannot go ahead and continue to increase taxes on property, which means largely a tax on homes and farms, without a day of reckoning.

The only way to meet our school housing problem is for the state government to make a substantial contribution toward the cost of school buildings.

We have long recognized the fact that education is a state function. Such a concept is not properly executed by the Legislature placing the total cost of school buildings upon local property. Such a plan would mean that education was a local and not a state function.

Not Arches, Missiles

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

If all the alarming statements you have printed in your paper are true, then how can you at this time print an editorial exhorting the Mayor and other officials to "get that arch in the sky," when what we so patently need are missiles in that very location?

Since we are in such a precarious position militarily, would it not be wiser to let the building of the arch wait? Is it fair for our local desires to take precedence over the national needs?

Against Itself

The Eisenhower Administration now finds itself attacking its own former position on offshore oil in court, as it earlier found itself attacking in court its former position on Dixon-Yates.

Both these objects of present attack by the Department of Justice, on grounds of illegality, were pet projects of President Eisenhower's. He threw behind them all the weight of his office and his personal prestige.

The offshore oil deal was a campaign promise. The grab for the oil-rich submerged lands off the coasts of California, Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi, Alabama and Florida had been going on some 10 years when Mr. Eisenhower entered the picture, but he was unfamiliar with most of the essential facts.

The candidate for President did not even know that the United States Supreme Court had already settled the constitutional point in dispute. It had ruled that paramountcy over the coastal waters surrounding the United States was an adjunct of national sovereignty. But the states' rights cry raised by those states which hoped to rake in millions from the maneuver appealed to Candidate Eisenhower's general philosophy that state government is good and Federal Government a necessary evil.

He promised that if elected he would turn over the offshore oil lands—popularly but erroneously referred to as "tidelands"—to a handful of coastal states.

Similarly, the Dixon-Yates deal grew out of President Eisenhower's bias against public enterprise, reinforced by the almost virulent prejudice of his assistant, Sherman Adams. Dixon-Yates was Mr. Eisenhower's attempt to reconcile his statement that TVA was "creeping socialism" with his campaign pledge to maintain it "at maximum efficiency."

Here, as in the offshore oil legislation, he committed all the power and prestige of his office to a venture which his Department of Justice now is obliged to attack in court as illegal. He ordered the contract made to force high-priced private power into the TVA system. He overrode the independence of two independent agencies of Congress to do it—the Atomic Energy Commission and TVA.

In the offshore oil case Candidate Eisenhower expressed his repeated opinion that the oil-rich submerged lands properly belonged to the states. In a speech at Houston, he championed the claim of Texas to the Gulf of Mexico out to a distance of 10½ miles. The Submerged Lands Act of 1953, quickclaiming to the states the Federal Government's rights to the lands under the coastal waters, was one of the first-fulfilled campaign promises of the Eisenhower Administration.

Congress left the extent of the area ambiguous. It said merely that the states owned the offshore lands out to their "historic boundaries." Since these historic boundaries are in dispute, the ambiguity was an open invitation to trouble.

The Department of Justice now is contending in the suit before the Supreme Court that no state's claim, including Texas', goes out beyond the three-mile limit. That has been this country's long-standing position in international law and the basis of our foreign policy respecting freedom of navigation. From wherever the states' alleged ownership ends to the edge of the continental shelf, where the relatively shallow waters covering the skirts of the continent drop off into the canyons of the sea, the Government has asserted its dominion by Act of Congress. In some cases this distance is as much as 150 miles.

Offshore oil and Dixon-Yates have become major embarrassments of the Administration. They have obliged the Administration openly or by implication to attack its own judgment as ill-advised, its own statements as unfactual, and its own action as illegal. They are concrete examples of what can result when large generalities based on good intentions are confusedly and ineptly brought down to particular cases.

Question for Texas

State Senator Henry B. Gonzalez ended a 20-hour filibuster in the Texas Legislature last week, and was then defeated in his one-man effort to hold up a bill permitting the state Attorney General to help school boards fighting federal school integration suits. Senator Gonzalez is one of the few Latin Americans ever to serve in the Texas Senate. His area in south Texas is for integration and San Antonio, with a large Mexican-American population, was the first large Texas city to practice integration.

We cite these facts to ask a question: How do Texans, always proud of their patriotism, feel when fellow citizens of Latin American descent lead the way to uphold the law of the land and the ideals of democracy?

Footnote to a Football Season

Saddened Missouri Tiger fans can comfort themselves that the ending of Saturday's sixtieth football game with Kansas was as traditional as the game itself. Last year about this time, Missouri won a final-minute victory against gambling Jayhawks, and gave a proper salute to Don Faurot, who thereupon retired as coach. This year the tables were turned: Last minute again, Kansas behind this time, and Coach Chuck Mather had already resigned. The result? Almost inevitable, we would say.

Friendship and Foreign Aid

Representative Otto E. Passman of Louisiana has returned from an international inspection of foreign aid projects with a remarkable misunderstanding of their purpose. The Democratic Congressman says:

I've seen enough to convince me that the way the program is operating is rather like pouring water down a rat hole. With all our spending, I don't think we have made a friend.

Mr. Passman is a veteran water-down-a-rat-hole type of critic of foreign aid, so there is nothing surprising about his opposition. But when the chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee which handles foreign aid suggests that the purpose was to buy friendship, how many other Americans may also think that aid fails when it does not produce friendship?

Friendship is to foreign aid about what a chromium strip is to an automobile. It may be a nice accessory, but the car runs well without it. For the purpose of foreign aid is not to make friends but to help create an economic base for free, stable and, if possible, democratic governments. The purpose is to assist other peoples to prepare a better life for themselves.

These peoples may not fall over backward from sheer gratitude. They may even turn out to be "neutralist." But the chances of their becoming hostile, or Communist, will certainly be more remote if their economies are progressing and their standards of living are rising.

In return for foreign aid, hope is a more practical bargain than back-slapping. No American, least of all a foreign aid subcommittee chairman, should be under any misapprehensions about that.

Beyond the Etiquette

A good deal more than a petty dispute over party etiquette was involved in Mayor Tucker's absence from the Democratic fund-raising dinner. Mayor Tucker stayed away, along with Comptroller Poelker and Aldermanic President Gunn, because National Committeeman Mark R. Holloran and his allies in the party machine seemed determined to humiliate the Mayor and thereby repudiate what the Mayor stands for in local government. Mr. Tucker did well to bring the issue into the open.

Mr. Holloran represents the party's ward leaders, the city's patronage-grabbing "county officers," the members of the city's legislative delegation and many labor union business agents, including the Teamsters, who fought so furiously against the Mayor's proposed new Charter. For the first time in several jousts with Mayor Tucker, the party professionals won that one. They are now exhibiting the political conceit that frequently comes before political defeat.

What Mr. Holloran and the ward heeled do not understand, apparently, is the order of causation in St. Louis Democratic affairs. If the Democratic party is strong in this community, it is because of candidates and officials like Raymond R. Tucker. If the Democratic party becomes weak, it will be because it repudiates men like Raymond R. Tucker and reverts to narrowly partisan leadership.

This is an old story in politics. The organization men, flushed with the success brought to them by candidates whose appeal is broader than that of the party, begin to feel that they can do without those candidates. Then it takes the votes of the people to remind them that a party is made by its record in public office, not by its committeemen and precinct captains.

In Philadelphia, in Chicago, in Pittsburgh and other cities some of the newer and more successful party leaders appear to have learned this lesson. They win elections by backing candidates and officials who stand for a greater integrity than the party's, a broader outlook than the party's, a greater devotion to the general public welfare than the party's.

And in St. Louis? If the lesson is not learned here, if the party machine begins to consider itself bigger than the leaders who brought it overwhelming victory, then we can be sure the outcome will be what it always has been. Sooner or later, the voters will turn to a party which will back the kind of public officials they have repeatedly shown they want.

Big Test Coming

The new baby chimpanzee at the Zoo bears a memorable name. Director Vierheller's original Pancho was one of the most versatile of his madcap charges. The Pancho of the early '50s dearly loved to run a lawn mower. Decked out in overalls and a straw hat, he was a whiz at the controls of a farm tractor (scaled down). No one needed to tell him how to use a water sprinkler on a hot day. Then three years ago they elected him "Mayor of Chimpville" and he had a great time presiding over the council.

The new Pancho, to tell the truth, comes from lesser histrionic stock. Mary, his mother, is a retired performer. In her day she had her chance at the footlights, but now she is primarily the amiable and loving parent. It might well mean more for Little Pancho if she went into tantrums and would not allow anyone to look at her nine-day-old son. As for his father, Charley, he is not on hand to pass out cigars. Charley, said Mr. Vierheller, "was sold to a Florida animal farm. He didn't make the grade in our show."

To put it simply, the new Pancho is long on environment, but short on heredity. It looks like a good chance to test an age-old question.

'Plebiscite,' Venezuelan Style

Venezuelan exiles in New York report that Venezuelan police killed several students in breaking up a demonstration at the University of Caracas recently. The authenticity of this report cannot be known. All news from Venezuela is heavily censored, and very little is heard from that country unless the news is good.

Silence there is a sign of dictatorship. There is probably no heavier-handed authoritarianism in the New World, not even in Cuba, than the Government of President Perez Jimenez. Yet even in a country made wealthy by oil, and even for a government known for its ability to "get along" with American oil companies and steel interests, there is anxiety.

President Perez Jimenez's present problem is how to get himself re-elected. He has canceled presidential and congressional elections scheduled for Dec. 15, and proposed instead a "plebiscite." A plebiscite, by his definition, is a referendum in which voters can vote only for or against the President—and in public.

The General-President evidently came by this definition in 1952, when there was a secret election. Early returns showed an overwhelming vote against the dictatorship; then censorship was imposed, and later the Government counted the ballots for itself and announced it had won.

A Venezuelan "plebiscite" will be, in effect, a means of intimidation. Venezuelans know it, and all the peoples of the hemisphere should know it. If the Dec. 15 election is held under the proposed terms, the sister Republics of the New World can discount the results in advance.

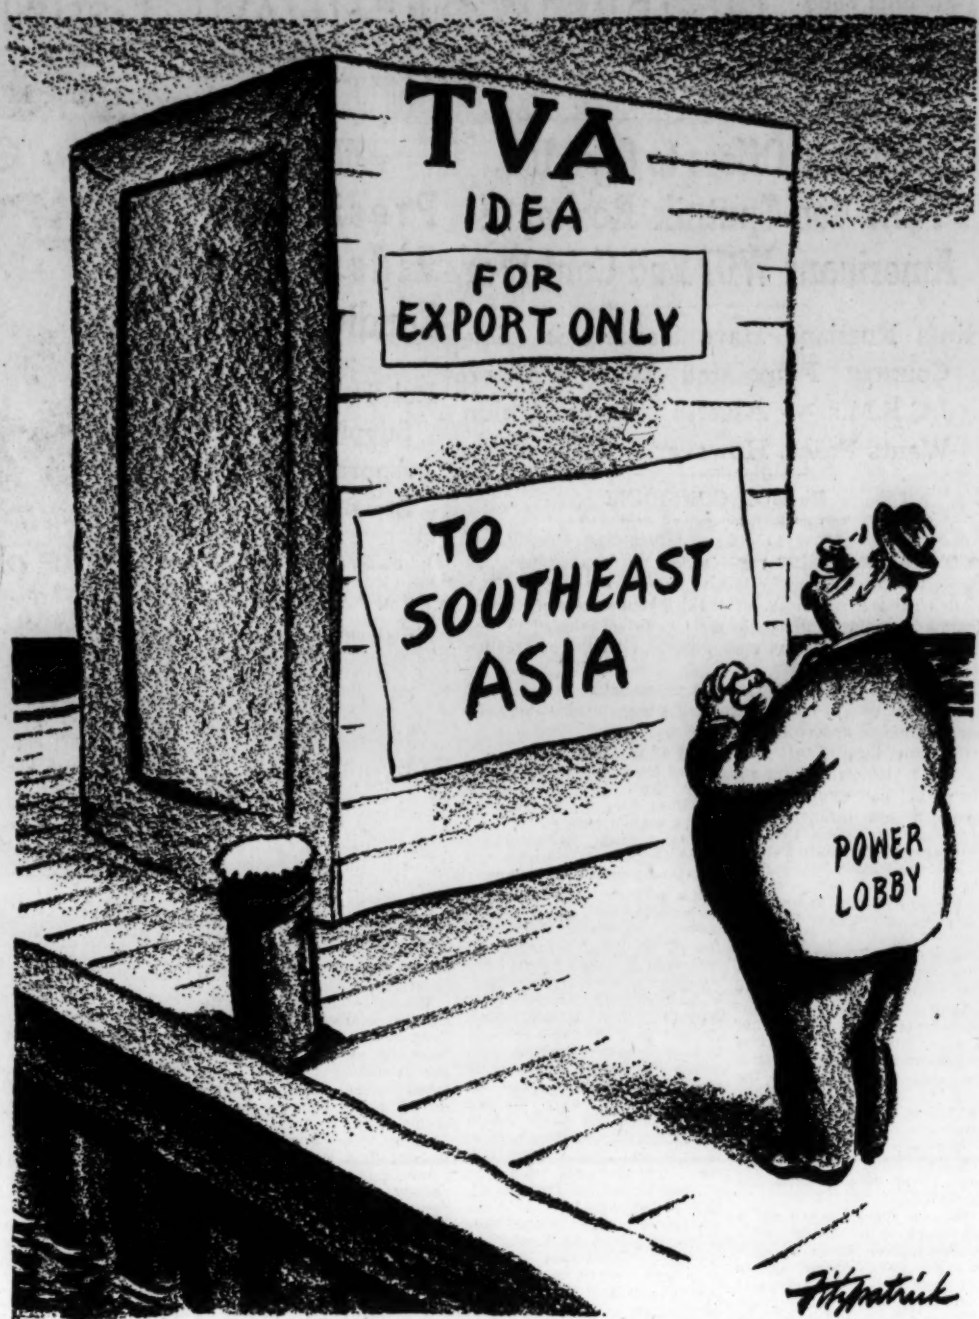

To Enforce Honesty at Springfield

Gov. Stratton has just made what is probably his most important appointment in nearly five years and the best indications are that he has made an excellent choice. The appointment is for the new Illinois post of Auditor General, created by the Legislature on recommendation of Dr. Lloyd Morey and others who joined in efforts to clean up after the Hodge scandals. Frank H. Whitney of Springfield is the appointee.

Mr. Whitney's job will be to post-audit all offices and agencies of the Illinois State Government. This means that it will be up to him, during the six years of his term, to see that no looting, large or small, take place without prompt disclosure and immediate reckoning. Before this, no one audited the State Auditor and judging by the record of Orville E. Hodge, the Auditor spent very little time auditing any other official.

Illinois's first Auditor General is a professional accountant and has the endorsement of fellow accountants. He is also Commissioner of Finance in the City Government at Springfield.

Gov. Stratton has now to appoint, under the same law, an Audit Advisory Board of three citizens, three public officials and three accountants. If he names a board with the qualifications of the Auditor General, Illinois ought to be well equipped to see that no other Hodge blots public life.

The Index of Boredom on TV Between Book Ends

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Ratings going down, and many who watch are tuning out their minds, ad executive says; too many quiz shows, singers and westerns, too few Shakespeares; all concerned owe industry help to make it a rounded entertainment medium.

John P. Cunningham, President of Cunningham & Walsh, Inc., in a speech to the National Association of Advertisers

Many leaders of public opinion charge television today with mediocrity—with catering to the lowest common denominator of people's interest—trying to please all the people all the time. It is charged with being run by rating slaves—that's us, I presume.

It is charged with shameful imitiveness—as one critic put it, a case of the bland leading the bland. Discount this criticism how you will—as coming from the cognoscenti—yet I submit it reflects a public temper. People are slow to find voice, but ultimately they get what they want even if they have to pay for it.

Imitation has lately become alarmingly intensified. Take the quiz shows. Starting around 1950, we have today reached an all-time high of almost unbelievable number of 64 quiz and audience participation quiz programs every week.

It looks as if the living rooms of America will become noxious with the smell of smoking guns. "The ratings of 'Gunsmoke' and 'Wyatt Earp' have done it, ma'am. The ratings, went thataway—Up! I predict that in a few months most of them, however, will go thataway—Down!

Old Vic Drew 15,000,000

And the worst of it is they'll probably drag the original good ones down with them. Western opposite Western, adjacent to Western, and on top of Western. Fifteen of them!

I believe that this smother of sheriffs will rapidly increase the boredom factor among large segments of viewers at the expense of advertising efficiency.

A swarm of singers has taken over the air space recently evacuated by comedians.

These shows ran about four or five a week until two years ago, and have reached a record high this fall with 14 shows per week.

Now what about culture? Last spring William Shakespeare tangled with Lucille Ball. Lucille outpointed Shakespeare by 41.6 to 10.9—four to one.

Since then we have heard little of further network plans for the former immortal Bard of Avon.

Yet this superb performance by the Old Vic troupe was probably seen by 15,000,000 people.

Yesterday's Top Ratings Down

Is this failure? Yes—according to the ruthless law of the decimal point. No—according to all the less distinct laws of artistry.

Now what does all this amount to? How much should we be concerned? Our primary obligation is to the sales curves of our companies, of course.

But it is much too easy to say—"I buy by ratings," or "Give the people what they want—I'll buy it." I maintain that our obligation to TV goes much, much deeper than that.

It might be worthwhile to take a look at what has happened to top ratings while all this has been going on.

As you see, they are down. Top ratings today would all be medium ratings five years ago. The top five shows had a rating in 1952 of 57.9. They're down this year to 41.5.

What does this mean?

Of course, there are a lot more people in the lower ratings of today than there were in the higher a few years ago. More people are viewing. There are more shows and much more competition among shows. You don't get the same per cent of audience coverage with any one top show that you used to.

It also suggests that imitative shows divide up the total audience. It points out the opportunity for exceptional programming.

As advertising men, we must be interested in all TV—not only in our own programs. We want it to be a strong, well-rounded medium.

A multiplication of the same type of show, such as the present wave of singers, quizzes and Westerns, can only narrow the base of television, restrict its power, its values to the people.

Way to Eternal Showers

The time has come when we advertising men have an absolute obligation not to add another singer to the herd or another quiz show to the cluster or another Western to the swarm unless it is a better one.

I'm brash enough to say that anybody who buys another Western, unless it is a marked creative departure from the pattern (as "The $64,000 Question" was to the quiz field two years ago) ought to turn in his gray flannel suit and go to the eternal showers.

The 10,000,000 to 20,000,000 people who like Shakespeares better than Lucy have every right to their minor share of their own airwaves.

This kind of program isolates the right markets in the right mood for certain products.

Some of us may want access to these markets. Even those who don't, want a full-rounded medium, not a narrow-based one. The networks want this, too. And they are certainly trying. For the sake of TV's future, we must encourage them where we can.

Dream World to Reality

Our agency's research shows clearly that the grumbling is not confined to professional critics.

The Index of Boredom has been rising steadily.

But people are long-suffering—they will watch programs that bore them—but they tend to tune out their minds—which is bad for advertising.

TV is in for a much greater expansion beyond the dream world of romance and cowboys, fairy stories and love-songs.

And, as the broad medium of communication that it ought to be, it will face the realities of life:

Wider and deeper coverage of the United Nations. Many more such hours as the Khrushchev hour on CBS last spring. Televised Congress and courts. Have we forgotten how the McCarthy hearings once outraged everything on the air at that time?

We are trustees. We must never forget that the airwaves do not belong to the advertisers—nor to the networks—nor to the FCC—nor to the Federal Government.

They belong to the people of the United States.

Love Letter to Andalusia

SOUTH FROM GRANADA, by Gerald Brennan (Farrar, Straus and Cudahy, 282 pp., $4.)

This is a travel book so generously marked with joie de vivre and contemplative insight that it might be called Mr. Brennan's love letter to Andalusia. Cyril Connolly has declared it "almost in the same class as Norman Douglas's 'Old Calabria,'" which is high praise indeed.

Gerald Brennan went to the village of Yegen in the Alpujarra region of Spain's Andalusia after World War I to escape an England petrified by class feeling and by rigid conventions as well as, in his case, poisoned by memories of his public school. Finally out of uniform, he set out with 2000 books and a little money to acquire an education.

In well-watered, equitably proportioned, high-set Yegen he found his inexpensive lodgment, and there between 1920 and 1934 he lived, from time to time, for some six or seven years—among people most of whom got enough to eat yet whose standard of food, dress, and comfort (except for two or three of the leading families) "was below that of the poorest English agricultural laborer or factory workman." But they were rich in what counted hugely for them: "the primitive community feeling."

Spain is not unique in being a land of contrasts, and Mr. Brennan wisely avoids the appearance of striving for singularity. No attuned reader, however, could help relishing the sun-and-cloud-shadow alternations of starkness and suavity, austerity and sweetness, in these varied pages.

Item: Near Malaga, "up on the crumbling hill, devoured by the yellow light, the Moorish Castle was alive with beggars and gipsies; they dug their caves in its walls and sat delousing one another in the sun among whiffs of orange flower and drying excrement."

And another: "In Yegen itself, each of the flat gray roofs had a small chimney projecting from it, and from each of these chimneys . . . issued a plume of blue smoke emanating from a fire made of rosemary, thyme, and lavender."

"South From Granada" shows most readably that Mr. Brennan has used his library (for deciphering the palimpsest of history) and his affectionately prolonged observations with taste and penetration.

Like the best of such writers, he is worth reading for style alone; but like them, also, he makes the land his love—this is his fourth book on Spain—gleam with new light, whether he is pouring out beer "like the Vedic soma" or exploring Almerian broths like a wry Joyce or saluting Granada itself, "with its elegance of site and detail, of tint and shape, that evoked Tuscany and Umbria rather than the harsh and tawny lion-skin of Spain."

In Mr. Brennan, the D. H. Lawrence of "The Sea and Sardinia," the Sean O'Faolain of "South to Sicily," the Carlo Levi of "Christ Stopped at Eboli" have a redoubtable shelfmate.

On Civilized Tipping

THE COMPLETE IMBIBER, edited by Cyril Ray. (Rinehart, $5.)

Here's a handsome tome devoted to what the publishers call "the art of intelligent drinking." Although it is British in origin with mostly British contributors, the book is so witty and contrives withal to be so informative on the subject of civilized tipping, that one should savor its chapters as one does a good wine.

Many delightful tidbits linger after the book has been laid down—Robert A. Hager's minatory account of "Dry America" in the Prohibition era; Paul Holt's urbane advice on what to wear when drinking fine wines, some chucklesome quizzes a la Kinsey for imbibers, and several stories bearing on the pleasures of the grape.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Sputniks May Aid Sagging Economy

IF IT were not so serious a situation, the old quip about every cloud having a silver lining might be hauled out. It is true, however, that the Russian Sputniks that caused so great consternation among our people, and so great a blow to our national pride, have a potential double-barreled good effect.

They alerted us and our government to get going in the rocket and missile field, and the extra spending on defense should help to revive our sagging economy and avert a deep recession.

As of now, Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy sees a need for about a $2 billion increase in defense spending to boost the total figure to around $40 billion in the forthcoming budget to be proposed to Congress.

It could be a fortuitous circumstance if the extra spending helps to check the slow-down manifest by lagging orders and lay offs and causing unemployment and other injurious effects.

Meany's Warning.

These led George Meany, AFL-CIO president to warn that they add up "to potential danger" and to say:

"Unless America acts now, it means suffering for workers' families and widespread trouble for the entire economy."

Until very lately, when economists such as Dr. Arthur Burns, formerly chief economic advisor to President Eisenhower, began to tell the truth and call the present period a "recession," there had been a noticeable hush-hush except from such avenues as the Wall Street Journal.

In recent weeks the Journal has, in its fine tradition of factual reporting, recounted the disturbing signs in one industry after another. The latest deal with the situation in the Pacific coast aircraft industry with a reaction affecting a host of smaller subcontracting industries.

Subcontractors Hit.

Cancellations of prime contracts and the stretch-out on payments by the government imposed by the treasury department to keep under the national debt ceiling are responsible for the slowing down of the aircraft industry that has ramified back to subcontractors who make airplane and missile parts.

Nor can this slump in the smaller, subcontracting industries be quickly remedied, even with the acceleration of spending now proposed by the Eisenhower Administration. It takes about six months for this business to get back to the subcontractors when the new orders come in.

Interestingly enough, the economic situation in the aircraft industry was telegraphed by the political grapevine here several weeks ago. Politicians necessarily keep close watch on economics, for economics affects votes.

Cry From G.O.P. Chiefs.

Republican leaders in California were sending word back here that they were being hurt by the slack in aircraft and were warning of Democratic gains, projecting them into next year's important state and congressional elections.

The political effects are important, not only as regards a state which now ranks second with Pennsylvania in electoral votes but also as regards two top Republicans.

One of these is Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who is running for the 1960 Republican presidential nomination. The other is the party's Senate leader, William F. Knowland, who is already campaigning for the governorship of California to be decided in next year's election.

Just One Illustration.

California is just one illustration of what is going on in the economy and carrying over into politics. Indeed, political considerations as well as Russian Sputniks are factors in pushing party leaders into action on the economic front.

From the course of events, it now seems clear that other measures to loosen credit and stimulate production and check the down-turn will be required than the contemplated increase in defense spending and the recent cut in federal reserve discount rate from 3½ to three per cent.

Arthur Burns, who had so much of a part in checking the 1953-54 recession as the President's chief economic advisor, explains that this one is different in several particulars. Among them is that industry then was running to capacity but has an overcapacity now, that there is an incipient recession in Europe, which was not the case then, and that the business community is gloomier than it was three and four years ago.

MEXICAN ARTIST

DIEGO RIVERA DIES

His Violent Paintings, Communist Politics Made Him Controversial Figure.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 25 (AP)—Diego Rivera, whose violent paintings and defiant politics made him a controversial figure in the world of art, died of a heart attack early today in his studio at suburban San Angel. He would have been 71 years old Dec. 8.

Until phlebitis paralyzed his right hand and arm several weeks ago, Rivera was working on three paintings. Only members of his family and his physician were present when he died. He is survived by his fourth wife, Ana Guitierrez, and two daughters, Ruth and Guadalupe.

Rivera had been in and out of the Communist party since 1922. He returned only last year from Russia and proclaimed that Soviet medicine had cured him of cancer.

From his earliest days Rivera expressed defiance in his controversial paintings. At times he wore a pistol while he worked in public.

One of the last major controversies which he stirred was in 1950 with a painting the Mexican government had commissioned for an exhibition in Europe. Government officials withdrew the exhibit when they learned that the painting showed United States soldiers committing atrocities in Korea.

Rivera did murals for the California School of Fine Arts and the San Francisco Stock Exchange and the Rockefeller approved his plans for paintings for the new Rockefeller Center in New York.

The Rockefellers objected to painting in a picture of Lenin. The mural was refused to be removed but offered to add Lincoln. The mural was rejected and later destroyed, but Rivera was paid in full.

Later Rivera repeated the Rockefeller Center painting at the Fine Arts Palace in Mexico City, adding the Rockefellers themselves to the design.

Another controversial mural was for the Del Prado Hotel in Mexico City. A hand held a scroll reading: "God does not exist." Many who saw it objected strongly and students erased the writing.

He was born in Guanajuato, Mexico. His father was a rural school inspector of Spanish blood and his mother was a mixture of Indian and Spanish. Rivera studied in Madrid from 1907 to 1911 and then spent 10 years in Paris, where he flirted with the cubist movement but was not diverted from his strong, naturalistic style.

He returned to Mexico in 1921 and began the erratic association with the Communist party which was to continue until his death.

He made his first trip to Russia in 1927. The Mexican Communist party expelled him in 1929 and he was not formally readmitted until 1954, although for years he had championed Communist causes.

WEALTHY OILMAN H.L. HUNT MARRIES DALLAS WOMAN

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 25 (UP)—Oilman H. L. Hunt of Dallas, one of the world's richest men, was married yesterday to Mrs. Ruth Ray Wright, a longtime Dallas resident and the daughter of an Oklahoma oilman. It was the second marriage for both.

The ceremony was a quiet one with only six persons—the bride and bridegroom, two witnesses and the minister and his wife—in attendance. It took place in the home of the minister of Lakewood Methodist Church, of which the new Mrs. Hunt is a member.

Hunt, a former Illinois farm boy who was acclaimed the world's richest man in 1954, with a fortune estimated up to $400,000,000, has known Mrs. Hunt "quite some time, more than five years," according to a spokesman. Hunt is 68 years old and his wife is "somewhere in her 40s," the spokesman said.

Hunt's first wife died May 6, 1955, after a stroke. Hunt has six children and the former Mrs. Wright has four.

CATHOLICS HONOR

JUDGE M'CALLAN

Acclaimed as Outstanding Layman at Men's Council Dinner.

Circuit Judge David A. McCallan was honored last night as an outstanding Catholic layman at a testimonial dinner given by the St. Louis Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Men at the Chase Hotel.

Judge McCallan, president of the National Council of Catholic Men, was described as a man whose decisions "have always been dictated by his strong conscience" in the main address by Donald Gunn, president of the Board of Aldermen.

Gunn said the judge had shown outstanding ability as a lawyer and judge but that his real talent was in the leading part he has played in Catholic action in the community.

Explaining why men give as much time as they do to work for the church, Gunn said: "First is the realization of the worth of the treasure we possess. Secondly is the generosity of the soul which makes us want to share it and, finally, the interpretation of these motives into accomplishments."

Judge McCallan, who helped organize the St. Louis council, is the first St. Louisian to head the national organization.

Martin H. Work, executive secretary of the national council, said Judge McCallan was an outstanding delegate to the World Congress of the Lay Apostolate in Rome last month. He was named to the governing board and to the directorate of the International Federation of Catholic Men.

Judge McCallan was presented with a small statue of St. Thomas More, former Chancellor of England, by George E. Helfers, past president of the St. Louis council.

Among the 400 guests who attended were Mayor Raymond R. Tucker and Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter.

CONWAY PAINTINGS

OF EUROPEAN TRIP

100 Watercolors Go on View Tomorrow at Schweig Gallery.

By GEORGE McCUE

Approximately 100 watercolors that are the result of a leisurely journey made by Fred Conway through several European countries last summer go on view tomorrow at the Martin Schweig Gallery, 4657 Maryland avenue.

Conway's painting tour took him to France, The Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, Germany and Italy, and the varied qualities of these places emerge in the paintings they generated. In Paris, Conway painted the same Notre Dame, Pont Neuf, banks of the Seine and confusion of ancient buildings that legions of artists have found irresistible, but he invests these perennial themes with a new excitement and a vibrant, tingling kind of magic.

Titles Omitted.

The generally blithe spirit of the paintings is further carried out through the omission of titles. The only title on the premises is "Red Form," which applies to an oil and wax painting shown last spring at the University of Illinois exhibition of Contemporary American Painting and Sculpture.

There are three other oils, of which the largest is one reminiscent of Conway's "Paris," which received one of the top prizes in the current Missouri Show at the City Art Museum. Both are concerned, at least partly, with a fisherman beside the Seine whose unrewarded but unremitting efforts are an aspect of the timelessness of Paris. This work is a sensuous interplay of light gradations and surface textures—developed with the palette knife and by scraping through the paint layers in some areas with a razor blade. This and the other oils were done in St. Louis from notes.

However, this is primarily a watercolor show, and these paintings, done on location, are charged with light and energy. The imposing towers of Notre Dame frequently occur. In one work, they are seen from nearby, jutting into a golden sky. In another, they take form—hazily across the river, their solid mass offset by an arching bridge in the foreground.

Detail Not Explicit.

The structures in these and other paintings are often readily recognizable, but are not explicit as to detail. They are captured in a few swift brush strokes; another few strokes, and human figures take their places in the designs. At times, underlying pencil sketches show through the transparent colors, contributing their touches of outline and direc-

'KING OF DIAMONDS'

OPPENHEIMER DIES

South African, 77, Was One of World's Wealthiest Mining Figures.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Nov. 25 (UP)—Sir Ernest Oppenheimer, "king of diamonds" and one of the world's wealthiest mining figures died at his home in near-by Brentenhurst today. He was 77 years old.

Oppenheimer was chairman of the Anglo-American Corp. of South Africa and De Beers. He also was president or founder of some 50 mining enterprises in South Africa comprising the world's biggest mining group.

Oppenheimer, famous for his near one-man rule of the diamond industry, sought seclusion in his personal life. "People always try to make out that I am a romantic figure," he once told a reporter. "Nothing of the kind. It isn't even as if my story were one of rags to riches. I was never all that poor."

His death was announced at a Carlton hotel meeting called to discuss erection of a memorial to former South African Premier Jan Christiaan Smuts. Leif Egeland, former South African high commissioner to London, made the announcement and the meeting was postponed.

Oppenheimer was born in the German market town of Freiberg in 1880, son of a cigar merchant who had six sons and four daughters. He left Germany at the age of 16 and became apprenticed to the diamond firm of Anton Dunks-Buhler, where he learned to sort and grade diamonds.

He was sent to South Africa in 1902, as that country was recovering from the Boer war, and set his sights on making a fast £50,000 and retiring. Today, the 90 companies controlled by his group have a market value estimated reliably at $1,440,000,000.

Oppenheimer became mayor of Kimberley, but was forced from office at the outbreak of World War I because of his German birth. Later he was knighted by Britain for war services.

SENATOR WARNS OF OIL CARTEL CONSENT DECREE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—Senator Joseph O'Mahoney (Dem., Wyoming), said yesterday he had received indications that the Government is negotiating a "consent settlement" of the international oil cartel case.

O'Mahoney expressed doubt, however, that the Justice Department would agree to a waiver of the anti-trust laws in the case, which involves overseas production and marketing arrangements of the major international oil companies.

O'Mahoney's comments were made in a statement and in a letter to Attorney General William P. Rogers, which the Senator made public.

Last year, O'Mahoney conducted an inquiry for the Senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee into the emergency program for supplying oil to Europe after the closing of the Suez canal last year.

Recalls Assurances. In a letter Nov. 20, O'Mahoney said he received assurances from the Justice Department last March that the Government was pressing for trial of the international oil cartel case "with utmost vigor."

He said "it appears that a consent settlement is being negotiated and that, at least with reference to some of the defendants, a consent decree is expected in the near future."

O'Mahoney said he had been informed that, in connection with a recent request for postponement of court proceedings in the case, one of the defendants had filed an affidavit alleging:

"... That it appears to be the policy of the Department of Justice not to question, from an anti-trust point of view, the past or present joint activities of American oil companies related to foreign production, refining or transportation of crude oil and petroleum products."

Matter for Congress. O'Mahoney said in his statement that he was confident Rogers would wish "to discuss this charge" and added:

"If the Department of Justice, in fact, is considering a waiver under the anti-trust laws of the 'past or present joint activities of American oil companies' in their foreign operations, it would seem to be an obvious matter for legislative consideration."

"I personally doubt that the department actually considers

ACCUSED OF THREATENING TO KILL FOUR IN FOOD SHOP

Scott Tay Day, 2200 block of Margaretta avenue, was arrested suspected of peace disturbance and resisting arrest after police were told he terrorized a cook and three customers yesterday at the Dixie Hamburger Shop, 1731 Chouteau avenue.

Tay Day, a 22-year-old machine operator, entered the restaurant and ordered food, Armand Harper, cook at the establishment, said. He then said he was going to kill Harper and the three customers, and ordered them to line up against the wall, Harper reported.

The cook signaled a passing police car. Two policemen met Tay Day as he was backing out of the shop. Although unarmed, he said: "I will shoot; you will have to kill me." The policemen overpowered Tay Day, who gave no reason for his action.

GRADUATE STUDENT WINS WASHINGTON U. PLAY PRIZE

Royce Adams, 1033 Forest avenue, Kirkwood, a graduate student, won the $50 Sarah Glasgow Wilson prize for the best play produced in "English 16" last year at Washington University, it was announced today. His play was entitled "At Sea."

Also awarded were $15 prizes for acting to Alan Berger, 7535 Wellington way, Clayton, a second-year student in the School of Law, and Miss Lynn Barton, 7300 Richmond place, Maplewood, a student in University College.

The plays were presented in annual competition Friday and Saturday at the University.

granting any such waiver in a consent decree."

O'Mahoney asked if the affidavit meant "that during the recess of Congress the Department of Justice is willing to sign a consent decree by which defendants in the oil cartel case will be permitted to participate in joint production, refining and transportation activities for crude oil and refined products."

O'Mahoney urged that "no consent decree be agreed upon until you have had an opportunity to discuss this matter publicly before the Senate judiciary committee."

NEW AIR TRAFFIC CONTROL PLAN STARTS DEC. 1

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Administration announced today it will put into effect Dec. 1 its new system of controlling air traffic above 24,000 feet.

Most details of the program, which will cost about $20,000,000 for radar and other equipment alone, have been given out previously.

The system will provide (1) "preferential" superhighway routes in the upper air between points where travel is heaviest, and (2) assistance to pilots who wish to travel at such altitudes with flight plans of their own.

C.A.A. Chairman James T. Pyle told a news conference the new service will be of immediate benefit to military jets—which now, Pyle said, fly at tremendous speeds on a "calculated risk" basis.

Pyle said the system later will be available to passenger jets, which are expected to be put into service in about a year.

Until now C.A.A. has offered service of this kind only on the 100,000 miles of designated federal airways and around some major terminals.

The C.A.A. head said the high altitude system is a first stage in the agency's program to improve its air traffic control system for the civil jet age.

"Next step," Pyle said, "will be lowering the floor of the continental control area to 15,000 feet, reaching the levels used by pressurized civil transports, but with control still on an optional basis. This we aim to do by next spring. By 1962 we hope to have the equipment and personnel capability for control of all aircraft at high altitudes over the 3,000,000 square mile land mass of the United States."

The new control system will be optional with pilots in clear weather but compulsory when there is restricted visibility. Pyle estimated it will cost more than $4,000,000 a year for the 800 traffic controllers who have been added to the C.A.A. payroll for the project.

U.S. SINGER TO TOUR RUSSIA

MOSCOW, Nov. 25 (UP)—Metropolitan Opera star Blanche Thebom will make a three-city concert tour and appear in "Carmen" and "Aida" in Moscow next month, the Ministry of Culture announced today.

Miss Thebom will be the second Metropolitan star to sing in the Soviet Union. Tenor Jan Peerce gave several concerts here last year.

CUTLER DENIES MAKING CHARGE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (AP)—Presidential Aid Robert Cutler has denied making an accusation of treason against a trade magazine that disclosed the United States was tracking Russian missiles tests by radar based in Turkey.

In a letter made public by a House subcommittee yesterday, Cutler also denied that he had suggested advertisers boycott the magazine, which he did not name in a controversial off-the-record speech a month ago.

In that speech, given Oct. 26 at a meeting of the Commerce Department's Business Advisory Council, Cutler obviously referred to Aviation Week, a McGraw-Hill publication which carried an article disclosing the existence of the United States radar station in Turkey.

Aviation Week said Russia knew of the station and that only the American people were kept in ignorance of it.

After that speech in Hot Springs, Va., there were reports that Cutler had termed the radar detection story one of the worst security violations in years, and that he had used the word "treason."

The controversy was investigated by the House Government Information subcommittee. That group's chairman, Representative John E. Moss (Dem., California), yesterday made public Cutler's denials, along with a somewhat different version of Cutler's remarks as provided by some of those who heard Cutler.

There was no mention, in the version supplied by some BAC members, of any treason accusation being leveled by Cutler, President Eisenhower's aid on national security affairs.

Moss said members of the council had informed the subcommittee that Cutler charged the magazine with "rendering a great disservice to the nation" and that Cutler "suggested that business men take the journal's alleged disservice into consideration when they place their advertising."

Cutler's Version.

In his letter, Cutler said, "to illustrate difficulties facing a free nation in the continuing struggle with international Communism, I mentioned a story recently published in a weekly trade journal, not identified by me by name (but in which I stated that some of my listeners were probably advertisers)."

Cutler said he remembered saying the publication of the story was "in a category of things prejudicial to our nation and its people in the free world struggle for survival."

"I explicitly stated that the publication of the story was not treason," Cutler said. "I did not state that any advertiser should boycott the magazine."

Moss said he was in no way passing judgment on the information disclosed by the trade journal. But, he said:

"If a responsible Government official alleges that there has been an unauthorized disclosure of properly classified information, his only proper course of action is to make his charges openly and take the steps provided by law."

"Evils of Secrecy."

Moss, who has been campaigning against secrecy in government, said "The questions arising as a result of Mr. Cutler's remarks illustrate the evils of secrecy imposed on meetings of the Business Advisory Council."

"This secrecy is defended on grounds that the Government can obtain candid advice from business men only at off-the-record meetings. When secrecy is extended to dinner meetings at which Government officials are enabled to make remarks for which they are not publicly accountable, the argument for secrecy becomes untenable."

The council, whose members are drawn mainly from the top echelons of big corporations, confers periodically with the Secretary of Commerce in closed session.

Kennan

German reunification on any terms, the former diplomat nevertheless warned: "Until we stop pushing the Kremlin against a closed door we shall never know whether it will go through an open one."

Kennan said that whether Germany was to be neutralized or demilitarized or included in a general European security pact was a problem for the planners. He added:

"I would only say that it seems to me far more desirable on principle to get the Soviet forces out of Central and Eastern Europe than to cultivate a new German army for the purpose of opposing them while they remain there."

Inherent Danger Ignored. Kennan deplored a belief held by some persons that Germany could be left divided. Such a policy, he said, would make permanent the surrender of half of Europe to Soviet domination and it ignores the inherent danger in the West's position in Berlin.

Moscow is maneuvering to shift responsibility for the Berlin situation to the East German regime, he said, so that it can remain "serenely aloof" while East Germany proceeds to make the Western position untenable.

The problem of the Eastern European countries now presents two unpleasant alternatives, Kennan said, because the countries, particularly Poland, are somewhere between "Stalinist" domination and independence.

Before long, he added, the Eastern Europeans must either make further violent efforts to achieve independence or subside into hopeless despondency. The first alternative would present the West with a repetition of its dilemma over Hungary's uprising last year, he said, and the second would mean the permanent loss of Eastern Europe from any normal participation in international life.

A German settlement, he said, might offer hope along other lines.

Wladyslaw Gomulka, the Polish party leader has "only recently promised the Polish people that the day the Americans leave Germany he will take up with the Soviet Government the question of the departure of the Soviet forces from Poland," Kennan continued, "and it is quite clear that as Poland goes, in this respect, so goes the rest of the satellite area."

Unexplored Assumption.

By the Associated Press.

Kennan said another "element of Western thinking about the German problem that might well stand for further examination is the common assumption that the West would be placed at a hopeless military disadvantage if there were to be any mutual withdrawal of forces from Europe."

"It is, of course, impossible to discuss this question in specific terms unless one knows what sort of a withdrawal is envisaged—from where and to where, and by whom and when," he continued.

"In this matter, as is frequently forgotten, there are many possible combinations, and I am not sure that all of these have really been seriously explored by our military planners."

Kennan said he felt the West's calculations in this respect rested on "certain questionable assumptions"—over-rating the likelihood of Soviet attack, underestimating the implications of ballistic missiles, and failure to realize the strategic advantages to be derived from a Soviet withdrawal from Central Europe.

He concluded by criticizing the argument sometimes advanced in Western quarters that a reunited Germany "cannot be trusted."

"I consider this a shallow and dangerous opinion," he said. "If Germany cannot be accorded reasonable confidence in this year of 1957, then I would know of no promising solution to the entire problem of Europe."

Drouth in Eastern India Shrinks Rice Crop, Raises Famine Threat

NEW DELHI, Nov. 25 (AP)—Hunger stalks the dry paddy fields of eastern India.

Drouth has seared the rice crops in a 175,000-square-mile area slightly larger than the state of California. Seventy-nine million people live in that region, most of them—in the best of times—only at a bare subsistence level.

In many parts of this area there is an average of only a quarter of an acre of land to a family. Indian Food and Agriculture Minister A. P. Jain says many of the paddies have lost 90 per cent of their plantings.

"The June rains were a little late and stopped early," the minister said in an interview. "The autumn rains failed, coming a fortnight late. The early and late paddy plantings were damaged. The last bad drouth was in 1950. This one is worse."

The last great famine in India occurred in a part of the area now suffering a food shortage—West Bengal. About 3,000,000 Indians starved to death in 1943.

In the western state of Rajasthan monsoon failure also has produced critical food shortages. There 7000 villages with a population of almost 4,000,000 are affected.

The drouth-stricken area in the east this year includes southern Nepal, Bihar State, northeastern Madhya Pradesh, western and northern Orissa and part of West Bengal State. About 80 per cent of the land under cultivation in this region grows rice. Orissa and Madhya Pradesh usually produce surpluses of half a million tons of rice used to help feed the millions of Calcutta and Bombay.

"This surplus is absolutely gone," Jain said.

The October-November plantings of spring wheat and barley also are expected to suffer because there is virtually no moisture in eastern India, the food minister said.

"The over-all food grain shortage may be 4,000,000 tons," Jain said. "The final figures will be known in December or January."

"By the end of this year we will have released 3,000,000 tons of rice and wheat (much of it from the United States) to feed areas suffering crop failures and to maintain lower prices. From January on we will be eating into our reserves."

He said India was negotiating with the United States, Canada and Burma for more food grains. The severe Indian foreign exchange shortage causes the country to seek this food through purchases in rupees.

"The scare may start in March when we see our reserve stocks going down," Jain said. "We will soon be in the grip of a near famine situation."

The institute had no specific information from the various

Thanksgiving day observance played in the lower operating schedule but spot checks with some steel firms showed a majority planned to cut down operations at least part of the day.

This Thanksgiving, they'll enjoy

Light refreshment

SMART hostess, to serve her holiday guests food and drink on the light, less-filling side! Pepsi—the light refreshment—gets a special welcome from modern, figure-minded people. Never heavy, never too sweet, today's Pepsi-Cola is reduced in calories. And how great it tastes with light suppers and late snacks! Better pick up a few cartons of Pepsi. It refreshes without filling—and that's a refreshing note on Thanksgiving.

Three Pretty Salads for Holiday Table

These three pretty salads help to make your holiday or other special meals sparkle. Green and red predominate in Asparagus Aspic Salad that's so easy to make with canned green asparagus spears, chicken broth and tomato aspic. Tangy orange flavored whole cranberry sauce blends well with the peach halves and nut rolled banana in the Peach Cranberry Relish Salad, and Apricot Crabapple salad combines spicy canned crabapples with apricot halves and cream cheese.

Serve A Tasty Salad
Of Florida Avocados

Some things about holiday dinner are traditional, such as the roast a family has each year on that special day. To avoid monotony, however, serve a new appetizer or salad that tastes good and makes a table decoration.

Florida avocados are a pretty green; halve the fruit and remove the seed; fill with shrimp topped with bright red cocktail sauce and you have a gay appetizer. Or the avocado can be sliced into rings or wedges and served with salad ingredients decorated with a bit of pimiento. Even after the fruit is peeled, the surface is still green enough to provide color. The meat of the fruit is both cream colored and textured.

Avocados are big, prettily shaped and attractively colored so they can be included in handsome fruit arrangements so popular during the holiday season. Just be sure the fruit you plan to eat immediately is slightly soft to the touch. This is the best test of ripeness, since the color of the skin varies with variety.

Avocado Appetizers or Salads.
To prepare Florida avocados: For halves, cut Florida avocados in half lengthwise; remove pit. For wedges, remove peel from halves and cut into lengthwise strips, one-half inch in width. For rings, cut off small slice from narrow end of avocado. Cut into three-fourths to one-inch rings, removing pit. Remove peel. Sprinkle cut avocado with Florida lime juice to prevent discoloration.

To serve Florida avocados:
To serve halves, spoon chilled cooked shrimp into cavities of avocado halves. Top with "Cocktail Sauce." If desired, shrimp may be omitted and cocktail sauce may be spooned into cavities.

To serve rings, place on salad greens. Fill centers with Florida grapefruit or orange sections; garnish with pimiento. Serve avocado wedges with cream cheese balls and French dressing. Or add to tossed salad greens.

"Cocktail Sauce."
One-fourth cup butter or margarine.
One-fourth cup catchup.
Three tablespoons Florida lime juice.

One-fourth cup sugar.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
One-eighth teaspoon tabasco. Combine all ingredients in saucepan; bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Spoon sauce into cavities. Yield: Enough for four avocado halves.

Frozen Peach Dessert

Frozen peaches star in this dessert-to-please-all-dessert-lovers. To make it, melt caramel candies in juice from frozen peaches, then pour sauce over peaches arranged on squares of warm cake. Delicious!

Easy to Make—Exciting

Thumbing through a cookbook won't yield you a newer—or easier-to-make or more exciting dessert—than Caramel Peach Shortcake. Its recipe was developed for this fall and winter 1957 dessert get-togethers, large or small.

For people who really like dessert, Caramel Peach Shortcake has all the important elements—fresh-flavored fruit, a rich brown sauce—it's really a special shortcake that has frozen peach slices arranged on cake squares and topped with caramel sauce. The frozen peach slices are easy, of course—just defrost them. You make the caramel sauce by melting caramel candies in peach juice. And your favorite cake mix—better yet, a frozen all-butter pound cake warmed in the

As Thanksgiving Passes
Christmas Work Begins

Seems as though we no sooner have the Thanksgiving feast out of the way than Christmas "goodies" must be planned. At least, the wise homemaker plans it this way. For in this modern day, with the convenience of a freezer at hand, many foods can be prepared weeks before the holiday.

Perhaps the most time-consuming, yet essential treats for seasonal entertaining are those fancy, little cookies. Because they take time, you might get started on them right away.

Butter cookies are best for freezing so we'll give you two recipes, rich in butter but widely different in character. Smorbakelsarne is the first.

PEAR CHEVRON
SALAD PLEASING

A new variation on a popular theme is offered fruit salad lovers in this Pear Chevron Salad, for it combines slices of juicy fresh pears available during winter and early spring with canned apricots, chopped celery and dates. The result is as pleasant to look at as it is to taste, for it's an interesting blend of sparkling colors. The clear green of the skin of the Anjou and the old ivory of its flesh offers interesting contrast to the golden apricots and the deep velvet brown of the dates. Sour cream dressing adds the final Epicurean touch to the salad that can be the main feature of a lunch or crisp complement to dinner.

You've only to use your imagination a bit and the results will prove "all good things come in pears." Juicy sliced pears are a spicy addition to the traditional Waldorf Salad, and make the popular carrot and raisin salad something special. Next time you serve tuna or chicken salad, circle it with a few slices of ripe Anjou. Comice or Bosc pears for both color and flavor. One of the chief advantages of ripe pears is their versatility—low in calories, too. You can combine them with other fruits or vegetables, both cooked and raw, or with seafood, poultry or meats. Any way you serve them, they're delicious, and they have a knack of turning an otherwise "ho hum" dish into something to exclaim about.

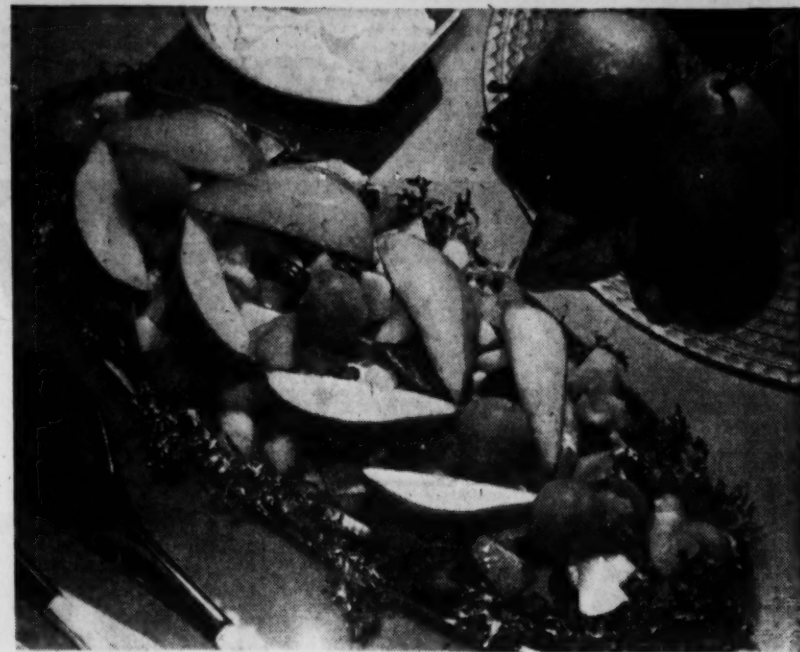

Any of the three varieties of fresh pears are interchangeable in this recipe. The Anjou is fine-grained, spicy and green-skinned, and is available from October through April. Other fresh pear varieties from the Pacific Coast are the Bosc, a lovely, long-necked pear that's russet in color and the Comice, plump, large and green-skinned. If a fresh pear responds to a slight pressure of thumb and forefinger, it's ripe, regardless of color, and should be refrigerated. If not ripe, allow to stand at room temperature until it softens.

PEAR CHEVRON SALAD

Three Anjou, Comice or Bosc pears, cubed.
One No. 2 can apricots.
One cup celery, sliced.
One-half cup chopped dates.
Salad greens.
Sour cream dressing.
Line salad bowl with greens.

Pear Salad—a Variation on a Theme

Sour cream dressing adds an Epicurean touch to pear salad with apricots, dates.

Rye Cracker a Cheese Dipper

A new rye-flavored snack has been introduced here just in time for holiday entertaining.

The taste combines the best features of a cracker and a chip, with special break-resistant qualities that make it ideal for use with dips and cheese.

It is a golden crispy wafer packaged in cellophane and available in groceries and food stores. It has a rye flavor seasoned with caraway seeds. Each package features suggested recipes for dips. One called the "Little Dipper" is simple, tasty, and easy to prepare on short notice. It calls for Three cups creamed cottage cheese.

Three tablespoons mayonnaise.

Three tablespoons milk.

One-third teaspoon onion juice.

Salt and white pepper to taste.

One-half teaspoon curry.

Put all ingredients into large bowl. Whip with rotary beater until smooth. Or two minutes in electric mixer, or use blender at high speed. Chill. Yield three cups.

The bakers suggest the crackers be served alone, for snacks, with beverages, or with hors d'oeuvres, with salads, soups, or with sandwiches in the same fashion as chips.

GOLDEN GLAZE

A spicy and golden glaze for barbecued chicken is easily made by combining two tablespoons each of unsulphured molasses, prepared mustard, Worcestershire sauce, lemon juice and butter, and one teaspoon of Tabasco. Brush the chicken twice with the barbecue sauce during the broiling or baking period.

Wonderful Wonderful COFFEE!

NEW!
"ROTISSER-IZED" MANHATTAN

Just as a honeycomb is composed of cells filled with honey, a coffee bean is made up of cells which contain the coffee oils. It is these oils that give coffee its flavor and aroma.

Manhattan's "ROTISSER-IZING" Process develops ALL these flavor cells—including the RICHER CENTER CELLS—the very heart of the coffee bean.

That is why you get 25% more flavor, aroma and richness in "ROTISSER-IZED" Manhattan—a choice of the world's finest coffees.

Pear Salad

Wash, halve and core pears. Reserve one pear to slice into eighths. Drain apricots, reserving four whole cots for garnish. Dice remaining pears and toss with apricots which have been pitted and halved or quartered, depending on their size. Add sliced celery and dates. Heap salad mixture into salad boat; garnish center with chevrons of pears and four whole apricots. Serve with sour cream dressing. Serves four to six.

Special Sweet Potatoes.

Make something special of sweet potatoes by dressing them up with pineapple chunks and pecans. Put cooked sweet potatoes and pineapple chunks into the baking dish, together, separating each layer with a sprinkling of brown sugar. Add one-half cup of the drained pineapple syrup and bake at 375 degrees F. about 30 minutes.

Shortcake

Caramel Peach Shortcake.

Remove package or can of frozen peaches from frozen storage approximately two and one-half hours before making dessert. Drain juice from peaches (peaches do not need to be completely defrosted) and combine juice with 28 caramel candies (about one-half pound) in top part of double boiler. Place over boiling water and heat until caramels melt. (If this dessert tops off a meal, caramels may melt during main course.) Warm an all-butter frozen pound cake in oven or make a cake with a mix. Cut cake in squares and arrange peach slices on each serving. Pour warm caramel sauce over peaches and serve.

Easy Snack.

Try this ham-n-egg sandwich for an easy snack. Add bits of cooked ham or crumbled bacon to soft scrambled eggs. Heap onto toasted English muffins or hamburger buns and top with slices of avocado. Serve open-face style or top with toasted muffin half.

BEEF POT ROAST IN CHINESE STYLE EXOTIC VARIATION

You may be seeing lots of beef suitable for pot roasting these cold months, for such cuts are plentiful and attractively priced. Pot roast simmered in rich gravy until tender is wonderfully good eating, so we shouldn't tire of it. There are plenty of ways to vary it, too. Have you, for example, tried this Chinese style method? It uses the tantalizing flavorings of brown gravy sauce and soy sauce.

Chinese Beef Pot Roast.

Mix two teaspoons salt, dash pepper, two teaspoons brown gravy sauce and one-fourth cup soy sauce; rub well into a five-pound beef pot roast. Let marinate a few minutes.

Brown meat well on each side in two tablespoons butter or margarine in a heavy roasting pan. Place a low rack under roast. Add one cup water and one-half cup sliced onion. Cover pan tightly and cook slowly on surface heat or in a 325 degree oven for three to three and one-half hours or until fork tender. Add more water if necessary, so as to have one-half to one inch of liquid in pan. Turn meat once or twice during cooking.

It is a popular Swedish cookie adapted to our cookery methods by American test.

Smorbakalarna

(Six dozen)
One cup butter.
One-half cup sugar.
Two egg yolks, slightly beaten.
One teaspoon vanilla.
Two cups sifted, all purpose flour.
One-fourth teaspoon baking powder.

Cream butter and sugar together until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks and vanilla. Stir in sifted dry ingredients. Press through a cookie press onto a lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake at 375 degrees for eight to 10 minutes.

These Holiday Nut Balls are crisp until they literally melt away. Too much flour makes them tough, so use only the amount that is suggested. If the dough is too soft, be sure to chill it thoroughly, then form into balls in palms of your hands. Chilling the hands by running them under cold water helps, too.

Holiday Nut Balls

(Two and one-half dozen)
One-half cup butter or margarine.
One-fourth cup sugar.
One egg yolk.
One tablespoon grated orange rind.
One and one-half teaspoons grated lemon rind.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
One-half teaspoon vanilla.
One cup sifted cake flour.
One egg white, slightly beaten.

Three-fourths cup chopped walnuts.
Candied cherries, cut in eighths.

Cream butter and sugar together until light. Add egg yolk, orange and lemon rind, lemon juice and vanilla; mix well. Add flour, mixing well. Chill thoroughly. Form dough into one-half inch balls; roll in egg white, then nuts. Place on ungreased cookie sheets. Press piece of cherry in center of each. Bake at 375 degrees for 15 minutes.

APPLES PLENTIFUL

Apples, apples everywhere—for this is the season when apples reign as king of the fruits. Choose Delicious (either Red or Golden), Jonathans, or, if you're feeling adventurous, try a McIntosh. The consistency of the McIntosh when cooked makes it especially well suited to serving baked or as applesauce, although its slightly tart flavor gives it a mouth-watering tang for eating "as is."

Cinnamon-Coffee Braid Made With Corn Meal

Have you ever stopped to consider how many times breads form a background for other foods? What would a hamburger be without a bun? Turkey without bread stuffing? Chicken ala king without biscuits or toast points? Or for that matter, what would a mid-morning cup of coffee be without a sweet roll, doughnut or a slice of coffee cake?

Let Cinnamon Swirl Coffee Braid be the accompaniment to your next cup of coffee. Here is really a new "twist" in coffee cake this year. Cinnamon Swirl Coffee Braid is unique in several ways. First, you will find the magical ingredient, enriched corn meal, used to give it a crunchy texture and a wholesome flavor. Then, too, you're sure to notice the unusual swirl effect when you cut the first piece. Before braiding, each coil of dough has been rolled jelly roll fashion with cinnamon and brown sugar inside. That way, the spicy goodness permeates the entire braid.
A drizzle of confectioners' sugar frosting adds the crowning touch to this coffee braid. Then when the neighbors drop over next time and the coffee pot perks out its friendly welcome, cut generous slices of Cinnamon Swirl Coffee Braid and just listen to the "ohs" and "ahs."
Cinnamon Swirl Coffee Braid. (Makes one braid)
Dough: One package or one cake compressed or dry yeast.
One-fourth cup lukewarm water.
Three-fourths cup scalded milk.
One-half cup melted shortening.
One-half cup sugar.
One and one-half teaspoons salt.
Three to three and one-half cups sifted enriched flour.
One egg, beaten.
Two-thirds cup enriched corn meal.
Filling:
Three-fourths cup brown sugar.
Two teaspoons cinnamon.
Softened yeast in lukewarm water. (Use warm water for dry yeast.) Pour scalded milk and melted shortening over sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in one cup flour and egg; add softened yeast and corn meal. Stir in enough more flour to make soft dough.
Turn out on lightly floured board; knead until satiny, about 10 minutes. Round dough into ball; place in greased bowl; brush lightly with melted shortening. Cover and let rise in warm place until double in size, about one hour.
Punch down; cover and let rest 10 minutes. Divide dough

CANDY KISSES GOOD AFTER DINNER TREAT
Candy is a fine dessert, if the candy served is the whole-some variety which satisfies the sweet tooth following a well-balanced meal.
There are many high quality candies on the market which often are more satisfactory than a richer, more caloric dessert as a meal finale. A few chewy candy kisses that are filled with good flavor are excellent examples. Among these are the peanut blossoms, wild cherry, and blackjack caramel kisses. They're available along with a generous selection of other confections, at most candy counters.

BUYING ICE CREAM
If you have a freezer or freezer compartment in your refrigerator, it is more practical to buy ice cream in one-half gallon containers. Ice cream can be stored for 30 days in the freezer before it will show signs of shrinkage or crystallizing.
TOSSED GREEN BEANS
Toss hot buttered green beans with garlic flavored croutons. Serve plain or with a sprinkling of grated sharp Cheddar cheese. Good with scalloped potatoes, creamy macaroni or scrambled eggs and sausages.

4 KILLED IN ALASKA GUARD PLANE CRASH

JUNEAU, Alaska, Nov. 25 (AP)—Four Alaska Air National Guardsmen were killed in the crash of their C-47 transport plane in a snow storm Saturday night.

Their plane crashed near Gustavus, 20 miles west of here on the southeastern tip of the Glacier Bay National Monument.

Five of the seven survivors are in St. Ann's Hospital here. The wrecked plane was returning seven Alaska National Guardsmen for a National Guard conference at San Francisco.

The last report from the plane was a message Saturday at 7:45 p.m., that it was preparing for an instrument landing at Gustavus in a light snowfall. Hours later a ground search party found the wrecked plane with the four crewmen dead. None of the seven passengers were seriously injured. Killed in the crash were Capt. Robert E. Kafader, pilot, First Lt. Dennis V. Stamey, S. Sgt. Floyd S. Porter and S. Sgt. David O. Dial, all of Anchorage.

Granite City Airman One of 12 Uninjured in Canada Crash ST. LEONARD, N. B., Nov. 25 (AP)—An Air Force C-47, loaded with furlough-bound officers and airmen, crash-landed in a hayfield yesterday en route from Goose Bay, Labrador, to Westover Air Force Base, Chicopee, Mass. None of the 12 crewmen and passengers was injured.

The pilot, Capt. Wilfred Allard, said the plane lost power in both engines when the fuel system apparently became clogged with ice. Coming in for a wheels-up landing, the plane brushed through some tree tops. Part of one wing was torn off.

The men on the plane included Airman First Class Raymond C. Thomas, crew chief, of Pekin, Ill., and Airman First Class Samuel T. Apponey, 18 years old of 669 Berkley street, Granite City, Ill., a passenger.

ADMITS HE KILLED WOMAN WHEN ATTEMPTING ASSAULT

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 (AP)—A photographer of infants, accused of killing an expectant mother in her home, has told police he killed the woman while attempting to rape her.

Previously, William Stacey was quoted by police saying he stabbed and beat the woman, Mrs. Darlyne Todd, 16, because he resented her scanty attire.

Mrs. Todd was found dead Friday. She was dressed in a housecoat.

In a lie detector test yesterday Stacey changed the earlier statement and admitted the attack motive, police said.

ASSERTS ARMS CAN DESTROY MANKIND

The United States and Russia already have enough nuclear weapons to make it certain that any general war would result in the destruction of the human race, Edward U. Condon, physics professor and department chairman at Washington University, said yesterday.

Condon, former chief of the National Bureau of Standards, was one of six Washington University participants in a third and final session of the "Science and Public Affairs" series at the Ethical Society, 3648 Washington boulevard.

Addressing himself to the discussion theme, "Science and the Future of Mankind," Condon said there would be no future unless problems of international conflict were solved and world war averted.

He termed it unfortunate that many people seemed aware only of the military applications of science, which was meant to be a search for understanding of nature. He called for greater emphasis on basic research.

Condon was asked whether scientists should work on military missiles. He took occasion to emphasize the point that the destructive power of armaments was so great that the urgent problem was the working out of a political solution so that a cataclysmic war could not happen.

Henry Primakoff, professor of physics, said the use of powerful armaments as a deterrent to war was based on the dangerous assumption that all concerned had a rational understanding of the dire consequences of a resort to force. It is always possible, he warned, that somebody might perform an irrational act.

Barry Commoner, professor of plant physiology, emphasized the necessity of getting scientific facts before the public at large, so citizens would be in a position to reach logical decisions on important questions that are based on technical advances.

The line of communication between scientist and the public is weak at present, Commoner said, and it is essential that scientists be able to give people the facts without having the information filtered through government agencies. Other participants in the discussion included Lothar F. Pinkus, lecturer in zoology; Dr. Walter C. Bauer, assistant in pathology at the School of Medicine, and Alexander S. Langsdorf, dean emeritus of the School of Engineering, moderator.

FATAL FIRE FOLLOWS BLAST

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Nov. 25 (AP)—Fire started by an unexplained explosion late Saturday afternoon caused the death of a University of Alaska woman biologist and damage estimated at $1,000,000 to a four-story business-apartment building here.

Dr. Druška Schaible perished in her third-story apartment in the Lathrop building, which houses the Fairbanks Daily News-Miner and the studios of radio station KFAR and KFAR-TV. Forty persons lived on the top two floors.

FARM-CITY WEEK MARKED BY SOCIAL SECURITY OFFICES

Over 550 district offices of the Social Security Administration are co-operating with farm and business industries in the nation-wide observance of Farm-City week, T. L. Gaukel, local district manager says.

Since the objective of National Farm-City week which started Friday, is to stress the interrelation of rural and urban peoples, Gaukel said the Social Security Administration would emphasize the "oneness" of its old-age, survivors, and disability program.

"Some people do not fully understand that the social security program is the same for the farmer and for the city person," Gaukel said. "Many farmers still think that old-age, survivors, and disability insurance for them and their families is a distinct and separate program from the social security program for city folks."

Illinois has a Rural-Urban Relations Committee for which the co-chairmen are Dr. Walter J. Willis of Southern Illinois University School of Agriculture, and Norman Kraetz, farm service supervisor for Radio Station WGN, Chicago.

Walter Charges Communists Penetrate Congressional Units

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (UP)—The Chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities said last night that Communists have penetrated congressional committee rooms and the offices of individual Congressmen.

Representative Francis E. Walter (Dem., Pennsylvania) reported "a new technique of Communist penetration of government" which he said "is exemplified by the official association of an identified member of the Communist apparatus with agencies and members of the United States Congress."

He did not name the committees or Congressmen involved, but he cited as an example of the alleged penetration the work of a Washington economist, Wilfred Lumer.

Walter said Lumer had been identified by a witness or witnesses "under oath as a member of the Communist party and a former member of a Communist cell in the Office of Price Administration," a World War II agency. He said Lumer had invoked the Fifth Amendment and refused to answer questions about Communist party membership at a closed meeting of the committee last Wednesday.

Denial by Lumer. Lumer promptly denied he was under Communist discipline in his congressional work. In a formal statement Lumer said he "at no time committed any act of disloyalty to my country, and any suggestion that I did is unwarranted and false."

He said, "The committee's statement contains a series of false and libelous insinuations about me."

He said he had invoked the Fifth Amendment because he felt the committee "could not constitutionally inquire into my political beliefs or associations."

Walter said Lumer "has been actively participating in the work of a number of congressional committees and has been serving as consultant and adviser to various individual Senators and members of Congress since" June, 1953.

He said Lumer has been employed by the Public Affairs Institute, a non-profit research organization.

Testimony by Lumer. Walter released a part of Lumer's testimony in which the economist said he assisted "a member" of both the joint House-Senate Economic Committee and the House Small Business Committee. The witness did not mention the name of the Congressman.

Walter said his committee in the last month has uncovered "new aspects" of Communist underground operations on the basis of "connective information" supplied to the committee by Boris Morros, who worked as a counter-spy in Soviet espionage rings. "Many of the facts established by the committee cannot be disclosed at this time," Walter said.

He said the committee was informed that Lumer's superior in the "Communist conspiratorial apparatus" was a Sam Abbott, whom he identified as a party functionary of the District of Columbia.

Lumer said he never knew Morros or took orders from Abbott in his work. He said he also never had any connection whatsoever with espionage activity.

Three Dead in Fire. SANTA ROSA, Calif., Nov. 25 (AP)—A father and two of his three children burned to death yesterday when fire destroyed their frame bungalow about nine miles northwest of here. The dead were identified as James Dickey, 28 years old, and Clayton, 4, and Bruce, 2 months. Mrs. Dickey and the third child, Pamela, 5½, suffered severe burns.

CITES LOW SUBSIDY FOR SMALL FARMS

The major federal costs of price supports and stabilization programs are concentrated in the wheat, cotton and corn crops and in dairy products under a program from which small-scale farms get little benefit, True D. Morse, under-secretary of agriculture, said here today.

"Unfortunately, too many have the false impression that most agriculture prices and incomes are government-supported and on an artificial basis. That is not so," said Morse, a former St. Louisan.

He addressed a luncheon meeting of nearly 200 stockholders of the Federal Land Bank of St. Louis at Hotel Sheraton-Jefferson. The stockholders meeting, attended by representatives of 84 national farm loan associations in Missouri, Illinois and Arkansas, ends tomorrow.

Morse said the total costs of the price supports and stabilization programs totaled $1,900,000,000 in 1956 and more than three billion dollars in 1957, with nearly half the costs incurred on two crops, wheat and cotton.

Nearly 80 per cent of the benefits go to 1,290,000 large-scale farms with marketings of $5000 or more a year, he said, while 12 per cent go to medium-scale farms and only 9 per cent to the 2,681,000 small farms marketing less than $2500 in products a year.

Morse, noting that Congress would convene within 45 days, said the size of surplus products now in Government warehouses and the costs of the support programs call for action. He mentioned three areas of concern:

1. Cotton is not able to compete effectively in price with synthetic fibers due to operations of the law.

2. Corn belt farmers look with growing concern on the spread of commercial corn areas and the great expansion of competing feed grains.

3. Wheat is being "allotted" by law, and more is grown in areas away from the nation's traditional wheat farms.

"While most of agriculture is free and on a competitive basis," Morse said, "these and other distortions due to laws continue to hamper the progress of farmers."

Morse said farmers in the United States should receive about the same average prices in 1958 as they got this year. He said agricultural output would remain high and that per capita income of farm people might show a slight gain next year, partly because of increased income from off-farm employment.

"Over 12 years have passed since the end of World War II and we're rolling ahead on a high plateau of employment and economic activity," he said. "The rice adjustment from war to peace is largely over. Agriculture has yet to make the adjustment in a few crops and dairy products, where laws and administrative actions have kept prices at artificial levels."

FIRES AT ATTACKER IN CAFE

A robber who struck William Cotts, operator of Bill's Food Shop, 1709 South Seventh street, on the head with a blackjack, fled empty-handed last night after Cotts fired a shot at him, police reported.

Cotts was treated for cuts of the scalp at City Hospital. He told police he was struck when the man came behind the counter after placing an order. Cotts said he was reaching for his .38-caliber revolver, which is kept on a shelf, when he was struck.

12-YEAR STUDY OF ONE RETIRED GROUP STARTED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 — Three thousand persons retiring in the next few weeks will report at intervals over the next 12 years on how they get along in retirement.

This nation-wide survey of the problems of the increasing older age group was announced yesterday by Marion B. Folsom, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

As citizens apply for their social security benefits they will be asked if they are willing to make such reports.

A spokesman for the Social Security Administration, which will continue the inquiry after the original questionnaire is handled by the Census Bureau, said the full quota of volunteers is expected to be filled "in a month or so."

The study will give a good deal of useful information to public and private agencies working to benefit the rapidly growing number of older Americans," said Folsom.

Aims of Survey.
Questions will cover the financial situation, housing, health, employment, major expenditure, various activities, and how the retired person feels about things.

The study will find out:
1. How many have enough income from their own resources, including their old age and survivors insurance.
2. What they do if their financial resources run down to the point that they no longer meet their needs.
3. How their chief items of expense change as they get older.
4. What they do if they incur catastrophic medical costs.
5. How long those who were financially independent at the start of their retirement remained so, and under what circumstances they get support from their children, public assistance, or some other source.
6. Their attitude toward retirement and its problems.
7. The things they think of as their greatest unmet needs and how these affect their adjustment to old age and retirement.

First Continuing Study.
From time to time, the Government agency administering old age and survivors insurance has made statistical samplings of beneficiaries, but the Government never before made a progressive study, in which questionnaires go back to the same people.

To add to the significance of this continuing study of retirement, the Census Bureau interrogators will cover the year before application was made for social security benefits. This will give a glimpse of the person on the job to compare with his retirement status.

The new study comes at a time when the number of persons over 65 on social security pensions has increased sharply in comparison with those on the old age assistance rolls, who live on federal and state aid.

More than 8,000,000 persons 65 and over are receiving old age and survivors insurance pensions checks. For the first time in decades, those receiving old age assistance has fallen below 2,500,000, the number now being around 2,498,000.

A study of 17,000 persons who retired under social security in 1951 developed that 95 per cent did not retire willingly—they were forced to retire either by ill health or by employment policies. The new study will show whether that reluctant attitude has changed.

UNITED FUND HOME HELPS UNHAPPY GIRL

A girl, 14 years old, was placed at St. Frances Home for Girls, a United Fund agency, when her mother was confined to the hospital with tuberculosis. At first, she was unhappy and shunned the other girls and all activities in the new and strange surroundings.

The nun in charge of her cottage understood many of the girl's emotional problems and tried to gain her confidence and friendship.

Gradually the girl began to realize someone did care for her and was interested in her welfare. She gradually developed qualities of leadership and co-operation at the home which have enriched her life and helped prepare her for the future.

The girl presently is one of the leaders in the home and takes an active part in the many activities.

4 NEW BAR COMMITTEES

Four new committees of the Missouri Bar Association have been appointed to assist in the association's activities for the coming year, it has been announced.

At a conference at the Missouri Athletic Club, committees were set up for courthouse tours, professional conduct, medical and legal relations and for a permanent headquarters for the association. J. Edward Gragg, St. Louis attorney, was appointed chairman of the committee on medical and legal relations.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

RECORD NUMBER OF BANKRUPTCY CASES FORECAST

© New York Times News Service
WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 —
The administrative office of the United States courts predicted yesterday that bankruptcy cases filed in the federal courts would reach a new high in the 1958 fiscal year.
In the 12 months ended Sept.
30, Will Shaforth, statistical chief of the office, reported a record 77,865 bankruptcies were filed. The previous peak was 63,933 in the year ended
Sept. 30, 1956.

In the first quarter of the fiscal year which began last July 1 filings totaled 20,264, an increase of 25 per cent over the corresponding period of the previous year. About 82 per cent of these bankruptcy petitions were filed voluntarily by individuals, rather than corporations. Economists do regard them as a barometer of the national economy.

Shaforth's report emphasized the steady upswing in automobile accident cases and other damage suits in the last 15 years. He said cases of this category are the major cause of clogged civil dockets in the federal courts.

In the first quarter of this fiscal year 3813 personal injury cases involving citizens of different states were filed.
About one third of them resulted from auto accidents.

These cases come under the diversity of citizenship rule, which permits a litigant to sue in United States tribunals when the other party is a resident of a different state. One suggested remedy for court congestion is abolition of the diversity rule, confining such cases to courts of the state in which the accident occurs.

In the first three months of the fiscal year civil cases between private litigants increased 10 per cent, compared with the early part of the preceding year. Criminal case dockets were in excellent condition, with little fluctuation in the number of new cases.
This has been the trend for 10 years.

REZONING FOR AUTO PLANT TO BE URGED

A recommendation that a tract of land near Valley Park be rezoned to allow construction of a $50,000,000 automobile assembly plant by the Chrysler Corp. will be reported to the County Council on Wednesday by the County Planning Commission, the Post-Dispatch was told today. Approval by the council is necessary to rezone the site.

Hermann F. Wagner, county planning director, said he had polled seven of the eight members of the commission and all favored a change in zoning to permit construction of the plant. The eighth member of the commission was out of the state and could not be reached, Wagner said. The proposal received enthusiastic support at a hearing last Tuesday at Clayton Court-house. Speakers were applauded, and no opposition was expressed.

At the Tuesday meeting Alfred H. Kerth, Clayton attorney representing Chrysler, withdrew the firm's original request that part of the site, a 250-acre tract on U.S. Highway 66 between Sylvan Beach and Missouri Route 141, be zoned for heavy industrial use. He explained it had been discovered that all of the proposed plant's operations would come within the terms of a light industrial category, also sought in the firm's request.

Kerth expressed the opinion that the plant would provide "a great contribution to the economic stability of the area." He said it will be designed to manufacture 900 Plymouth automobiles daily in two eight-hour shifts. Each shift would employ about 2200 workers, he said, with 1900 of them engaged in assembly operations and the remainder in office and other work.

The site, which reaches from Highway 66 north to the Meramec river, now is zoned for single-family residential use on one-acre plots, with a relative small section reserved for commercial and resort area use. It includes Meramec Airport, a busy secondary airfield, and adjacent land.

TALK BY LAWRENCE BUSSARD

Lawrence A. Bussard, deputy director of the Illinois Department of Public Welfare's Mental Health Service, will speak at a meeting of Madison County Parents of Retarded Children tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be in the Recreation Commission building at Rock Spring Park, Alton.

EXILES IN FLORIDA ORDERED MURDER, BATISTA CHARGES

HAVANA, Nov. 25 (AP) — President Fulgencio Batista has charged that Cuban exiles in Miami ordered rebel leaders to kill one of Cuba's top army commanders last Saturday. Col. Firmin Cowley, commander in an area of Oriente province where rebel leader Fidel Castro and his forces are hidden, was shot to death as he rode in an army car in Holguin.

Batista charged last night that terrorists in Cuba are directed by a well-financed "liberation junta in the state of Florida" headed by former President Carlos Prío Socarras.

ADDED $238,000,000 CUT IN FRENCH BUDGET SOUGHT

STRASBOURG, France, Nov. 25 (AP) — Finance Minister Pierre Pflimlin said today he will propose an additional 100 billion franc ($238,000,000) cut in the 1958 budget. The cut would be added to the 600 billion franc ($1,428,000,000) reduction in expenditures already voted by the National Assembly.

SIX DEMOCRATS URGE NEW SUMMIT TALK WITH RUSSIA

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25 (UP) — Six Democratic House members asked President Eisenhower yesterday to consider another summit talk with Russia. They said the horrors of nuclear warfare make such an effort worthwhile. The Congressmen, echoing a plea by the Democratic Advisory Council, a week ago, also called for development by the Administration of a "greater sense of urgency" in meeting the crisis caused by the Russian missile and satellite successes. They proposed strengthening NATO's conventional, non-atomic defenses.

CITY ASSEMBLY IN OKINAWA OUSTS PRO-RED MAYOR

NAHA, Okinawa, Nov. 25 (AP)—Mayor Kamejiro Senaga, a leftist who follows the Communist line, was ousted today by the city assembly of this American island fortress. The vote was 17 to 10.

The 30-member Assembly had thrown Senaga out once before, but could not make it stick. Today's ouster followed four changes in Ryukyu island ordinances by Lt. Gen. James E. Moore, United States High Commissioner, at the request of Senaga opponents. Moore announced the changes yesterday.

The changes called for (1) eliminating the necessity of a quorum in the city assembly when a non-confidence vote is taken against the mayor, (2) allowing the city assembly to elect a temporary mayor, (3) permitting chief executive Jugo Thoma to decide disputes between the assembly and the mayor, and (4) placing public offices "off limits" to convicted felons.

Senaga, who was elected Mayor last December, was served two jail sentences, first under the Japanese before World War II and later under the United States military administration. Last June he disbanded the 30-seat city assembly after it voted no-confidence in him and called for a new assembly election. His supporters won 12 seats in the new assembly.

ST. CLAIR (MO.) MAN KILLED WHEN AUTO TURNS OVER

Farris Williams of St. Clair, Mo., was killed last night when the automobile in which he was riding overturned on U.S. Highway 66 about one and one-half miles east of St. Clair.

Williams's son, Timmy, 15 years old, suffered head lacerations and a chest injury. The car was driven by Clyde T. Williams, a brother of the dead man. He escaped injury as the car turned over twice. Farris Williams was 40 years old.

MAN HIT, KILLED BY AUTO AS HE SLEEPS IN HOME

RESEDA, Calif., Nov. 25 (AP)—An automobile hurtled through a house where a family of three lay asleep last night, killing the husband and father, injuring his pregnant wife and narrowly missing their 2-year-old daughter.

The driver, a neighbor, was booked on suspicion of manslaughter. Police said he failed to pass a sobriety test.

Howard H. Hamilton, 28, an engineer, died en route to a hospital. His wife, Carmella, 24, was critically injured. The crib of their daughter, June, was shattered but the child, pinned between a wall and the car, was unhurt.

The driver, Alex J. Magas, 39, also was unhurt.

SIR ALFRED ZIMMERN DIES

AVON, Conn., Nov. 25 (AP)—Sir Alfred Zimmern, internationally known political scientist who helped shape the League of Nations, died yesterday of a cerebral hemorrhage at his home here. He was 78 years old.

He had been a member of the faculty of American International College since 1949. He came to the United States in 1947 and for two years was visiting professor of international relations at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn.

BUSINESS FIRMS USING FREE DIABETES TEST KITS

St. Louis business and industrial concerns are providing on-the-spot diabetes detection tests for employees with free test kits by the St. Louis Diabetes Association, Dr. William H. Olmsted, secretary of the agency, announced today.

Last year a total of 112,123 test kits were distributed in the St. Louis area, and a total of 327 positive diabetic cases were discovered, Dr. Olmsted said. He invited business and industrial concerns and labor unions to apply for kits through the association's office at 3839 Lindell boulevard.

"The diabetic who follows a careful program of treatment and control of his condition is as acceptable as a non-diabetic in practically every type of employment," Dr. Olmsted said. He said more than 1200 types of jobs in the Federal government had been classed as suitable for diabetics.

Planes Collide, None Hurt.

WOODBRIDGE, England, Nov. 25 (UPI)—A United States Air Force Sabrejet and a Royal Air Force two-seater Meteor crashed in the air near this English air base today, but no one was hurt. Lt. Bernard Maldonado, of Minneapolis, Minn., was able to land his jet and the pilot and navigator of the Meteor bailed out.

STUDY OF HOUSING NEEDS

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 (AP)—The United States Savings and Loan League announced yesterday that a comprehensive study will be made of the nation's requirements for housing and home credit in the 1960s.

The study will be made by the Indiana University School of Business and will be completed in 1959. Some authorities expect the higher birth rate of the 1940s to be translated in a booming demand for home ownership in the 1960s—when these persons will have reached the age of marriage.

SUGAR, COTTON BOWL BERTHS HANG ON THREE GAMES

OKLAHOMA GETS DUKE AS ORANGE OPPONENT

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (UP)—The drama of the Army-Navy game, with a possible bowl bid at stake, sets the style for a double-barreled program of showdown games winding up the 1957 college football season this week.

With Duke officially named yesterday as Oklahoma's rival in the Orange Bowl at Miami, Fla., four major berths still are to be filled and, in addition, this week's games on either Thursday or Saturday will determine five major conference champions.

Still to be picked are both teams in the Cotton and Sugar bowls and the champions in the Southeastern, Southwest, Southern, Skyline, and Border leagues.

Formful Saturday.
After a formful Saturday when only one of the nation's top 10 teams, ninth-ranked Notre Dame, was beaten (and then by eighth-ranked Iowa, 21-13), here's how the major bowls are lining up:

ROSE—Ohio State vs. Oregon.
ORANGE—Oklahoma vs. Duke.
COTTON—Rice or Texas A. & M. vs. Navy or Mississippi.

SUGAR—Rice or Texas A. & M. vs. Mississippi.
Three games probably will settle all four bowl bids. Texas A. & M. (4-1-0) meets Texas on Thursday's Turkey day card and Rice (also 4-1-0) meets Baylor Saturday. If both contenders win, they tie for the Southwest Conference crown and Rice goes to Cotton with the Aggies probably to the Sugar. If one wins while the other loses, winner gets title and Cotton Bowl berth, loser probably gets Sugar.

Meanwhile, Navy is expected to get and accept the other Cotton Bowl spot if it beats Army in Philadelphia's big game Saturday. Also at stake in what promises to be a high-powered game is the Lambert Trophy, emblematic of eastern grid supremacy.

Auburn Plays Alabama.
Mississippi can't be caught by any bowl-eligible team in the Southeastern Conference and is certain to be in some bowl. Ole Miss also will get the league crown if it beats Mississippi State Saturday and bowl-eligible Auburn loses to Alabama.

For the other league titles: V.M.I. can clinch the Southern Conference by beating Virginia Tech, but a loss gives it to West Virginia; Utah can clinch the Skyline by beating Utah State Thursday, but a loss gives Brigham Young a chance to win by beating New Mexico; and Arizona (Tempe) State needs to beat Arizona to avoid a Border title tie with West Texas State.

Auburn and Arizona State both will be trying to finish as the nation's only major unbeaten and untied teams. All told, the "perfect record" list now is down to 16 teams, 13 of which have ended their seasons.

Bowl bids and conference warfare took a back seat last Saturday to "old rivalry" games and generally there were few surprises.

Oregon Is Surprised.

Yale lifted eyebrows by handing Harvard a 54-0 beating that topped any previous slaughter in their 74-year feud, but Princeton took the Ivy League title as expected with its 34-14 win over Dartmouth. Oregon State gained a tie for the Pacific Coast Conference crown by upsetting Oregon, 10-7, on Ted Searle's 17-yard field goal. And North Carolina rallied from a two-touchdown deficit to upset Duke, 21-13.

Michigan State, the nation's No. 1 team, fumbled 13 times (some failing that cost the Spartans their only loss to Purdue) but downed Kansas State, 27-9, second-ranked Ohio State ended a perfect Big Ten season with a 31-14 rout of Michigan; third-ranked Auburn easily downed Florida State, 29-7; and fifth-ranked Oklahoma rebounded from its loss to Notre Dame to trounce Nebraska, 32-7. For Iowa, Randy Duncan passed for one TD and ran for another to pace the win over Notre Dame. Other teams in the top 10 were idle.

Goose Tatum's Stars

Goose Tatum's Harlem Stars attracted a paid attendance announced as only 863 yesterday at Kiel Auditorium. Ernie Banks, Chicago Cubs' shortstop who has been serving as emcee and announcer for Tatum, failed to appear although advertised as an extra attraction.

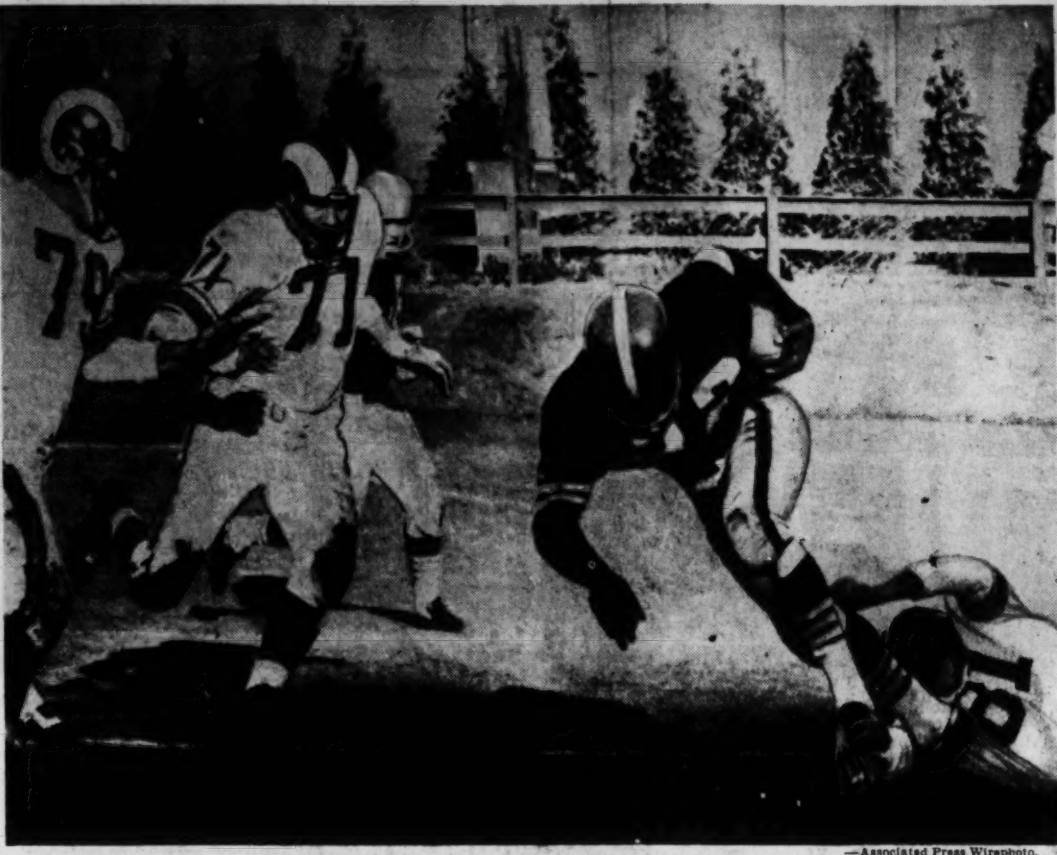

Tatum, clowning as usual, scored 49 points as his Harlem team won, 91-86, over the New York Olympians in the basketball exhibition. Bill Spivey tallied 31 for the losers, whose lineup included Manne Monroe and Wally Turpin, St. Louis amateur stars.

Also among the missing was Chuck Cooper, former Duesenque stand-out, who was to have played with Tatum's club.

Cleveland Browns' Busiest Back Jolts the Rams

Fullback JIM BROWN (32) of the Cleveland Browns, picks up nine yards and a first down as his team whips the Los Angeles Rams, 45-31, in a National Football League game at Cleveland. Brown set a league single game record, rushing 237 yards on 31 carries. Missing tackle is Rams' PAUL MILLER (81), as FRANK FULLER (71) and GLENN HOLTZMAN (79) move in. Brown, 220-pounder, starred last season for Syracuse University.

Rookie Jim Brown Sets Record as Cleveland Whips Pro Grid Rams

CLEVELAND, Nov. 25 (UP)—Jim Brown's best sport is lacrosse, but don't be surprised if this fabulous athlete sparks the Cleveland Browns to the National Football League's Eastern division title.

Brown, rookie fullback from Syracuse, yesterday scored four touchdowns and set a single game N.F.L. rushing record of 237 yards as Cleveland rallied to whip the Los Angeles Rams, 45-31. Brown scored on slashes of 69, one, one and three yards. He also set up Cleveland's last touchdown with a 46-yard run as he boosted his league-leading rushing total to 769 yards in 161 tries.

Brown bettered the old one-game rushing high of 223 yards set last year by Tom Wilson of the Rams. Brown, a 220-pounder who runs 100 yards in 10 seconds, propelled the Browns to their highest point-total since 1954 as they retained their half-game lead over the New York Giants.

New York, defending league and eastern champion, stumbled through a poor second half for the third straight Sunday but defeated the Chicago Cardinals, 28-21. The Giants got all their points in the first half.

They Meet Dec. 15.
While the Browns and Giants whirled toward a Dec. 15 clash, the Baltimore Colts broke a first-place tie with the San Francisco Forty-Niners and Detroit Lions to take a one-game lead in the western race. John Unitas' eight-yard pass to Alan Ameche in the last 47 seconds gave the Colts a 27-21 victory over the Forty-Niners. The Chicago Bears gave Baltimore a big assist by upsetting the Detroit Lions, 27-7, behind Ed Brown's passes and Rick Casares' running.

The Green Bay Packers struck a blow at Pittsburgh's slim hopes of overtaking Cleveland and New York by downing the Steelers, 27-10, on touchdowns by Bart Starr, Howie Ferguson and Babe Parilli. Rookie quarterback Sonny Jurgensen threw scoring passes of 61 and 36 yards to rookie Tommy McDonald to help the Philadelphia Eagles upset the Washington Redskins in the other game, 21-12.

The Browns have 12 rookies but showed the familiar Cleveland trademarks of poise, spirit and alertness while beating the Rams before 65,407 at Cleveland. Tommy O'Connell, Cleveland's only experienced quarterback, was sidelined with an arm injury early in the second quarter. Milt Plum, a rookie from Penn State, replaced him with the score tied at 7-7.

Norm Van Brocklin's two touchdown passes to Elroy (Crazy-Legs) Hirsch and Art Hauser's 29-yard scoring dash with a Brown fumble helped the Rams take a 28-17 lead in the third quarter.

Then Don Colo and Bob Gain, Cleveland's 260-pound defensive tackle, teamed with Plum, Brown and Lew Carter to stun the Rams with two touchdowns in 55 seconds. Plum, who directed five touchdown drives, ended a 66-yard when Brown plunged a yard. Colo then pounced on a Van Brocklin fumble on the Ram seven to set up another Brown one-yarder. Gain's recovery of a fumble set up Brown's three-yard lunge to make it 38-28 and Brown then ran 46 to set up Carpenter's second touchdown of the game.

The Browns, who confused the Rams in the 1955 title game by passing from a double-wing formation, used their famed fullback trap plays Sunday. The Ram line-backers were slashing into the Cleveland backfield from the outside to smother the quarterback. Meanwhile, Mike McCormack and Cleveland's other offensive linemen sprang Brown loose up the middle. On his 69-yard run, Brown dropped the ball, picked it up on the bounce and sped for the season's longest scoring play from scrimmage.

"The Rams were blitzing our quarterback all afternoon," Coach Paul Brown said. "That was their gamble. Our gamble was sending Jimmy up the middle and it paid off. We're proud of him. He's a great one."

Charley Conerly's scoring passes to Frank Gifford and Kyle Rote and Alex Webster's two short plunges produced New York's touchdowns at Chicago. Ollie Matson scored twice on passes for the Cardinals, one play covering 75 yards and the other 62.

Bears' Best Game.
Y. A. Tittle, who threw a 19-yard touchdown pass to Billy Wilson, gave the Forty-Niners a 21-20 lead with his second half-yard scoring plunge in the final minutes at Baltimore. But Unitas then capped an 82-yard march with his victory pass to Ameche. Lenny Moore and L. G. Dupre also scored for the Colts.

Casares scored twice and Bobby Watkins once while George Blanda kicked two field goals for the Bears. But it was Brown's clutch passes that kept them moving at Detroit.

Six Pro Grid Games Draw 240,864 Fans

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 (UP)—THE National Football League attracted 240,864 fans to its six Sunday games, bringing its attendance total for the season to 2,253,145.

The Browns-Rams game drew 65,407 at Cleveland. Other crowds: Lions-Bears at Detroit, 55,749; Colts-Forty-niners at Baltimore, 50,073; Steelers-Packers at Pittsburgh, 29,701; Eagles-Redskins at Philadelphia, 20,734; Cardinals-Giants at Chicago, 19,200.

Pirate and Cardinal Chiefs Warming Up For Trade Negotiations

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 25 (UP)—Pittsburgh Pirates General Manager Joe Brown and Bing Devine, new general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, have discussed a possible player trade by telephone and will get together for a face-to-face meeting soon, a Pirate spokesman said today.

"They are not close to making a trade yet," the spokesman said, "but they have agreed on several basic things. The Cardinals have several players we are interested in and vice versa."

The spokesman said Brown and Devine plan to get together late this week, or at the opening of the winter meeting next Monday at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Devine in St. Louis said conversations were thus far "lukewarm."

U.S. Doubles Teams Beaten

ADELAIDE, Nov. 25 (AP)—United States Davis Cup hopes received another rude shock today when the veteran doubles team of Vic Seixas and Gardnar Mulloy dropped a second round tennis match in the South Australian championships to a pickup combination.

Seixas and Mulloy fell before Trevor Fancutt of South Africa and Graham Lovett of Australia, 7-5, 7-5, 2-6, 3-6, 6-3. The United States setback came after Captain Bill Talbert told his players to show him more tennis and fewer excuses in a sharp dressing down. Only Seixas remains in the singles. The top-seeded Aussie tandem of Ashley Cooper and Mervyn Rose had little difficulty eliminating the United States team of Herbie Flam, Beverly Hills, Calif., and Barry Mackay, Dayton, O. The scores were 6-3, 6-0, 4-6, 6-4.

Truex Breaks Record Winning NCAA 4-Mile

EAST LANSING, Mich., Nov. 25 (AP)—Max Truex, stocky former Olympic runner from the University of Southern California, today won the NCAA cross country championship in a record breaking time of 19:12.3 for the four-mile grind.

His phenomenal time, achieved with the temperature only 26 degrees, shattered the old meet record of 19:36.7 by Charles Capozzoli of Georgetown in 1952.

Truex, from Warsaw, Ind., finished 120 yards ahead of John Macy of Houston University. Truex was a member of the U. S. Olympic team at Melbourne last year.

Jerry Smartt, also from Houston, placed third. Leonard Edelen, Minnesota's Big Ten champion, was fourth and Crawford Kennedy of Michigan State, who won the IC4A run, finished fifth.

Notre Dame won the team championship for the first time in the meet's 19-year history with a low of 121 points. Michigan State, the defending champion, was second in team competition with 127 points.

The first Notre Dame runner was Ed Monnelly, who finished nineteenth in the individual competition and fourteenth in the team race.

Houston was third with 131 points, Syracuse placed fourth with 140 and Kansas was fifth with 158.

Lane Believes He'll Have Some Trouble Making Deals in A.L.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25 (AP)—Frank Lane, baseball's master trader, who was recently appointed general manager of the Cleveland Indians, might have trouble swinging deals in the American League this season.

Lane, who yesterday huddled with Vice President Chuck Comiskey of the Chicago White Sox, has one goal in mind.

"I'm out to get our club a second baseman or a shortstop or both," he said. "I'm willing to trade but I must get what we need and those are our two weak positions."

Lane admitted he'll have trouble trading but hoped to be able to consummate the deals he has in mind.

"Sure I'll have trouble making deals," said Frankie Frank, "you always do. I couldn't do anything with Comiskey but we have a lot of time."

"I'm willing to trade (Ray) Narleski or (Earl) Wynn for infield strength, but I have to get what I want."

The Sox expressed interest in pitchers Don Mossi, Narleski and Wynn but when Lane asked for second baseman Nelson Fox and shortstop Luis Aparicio, the talks ended.

Lane was still disappointed about missing out on infielder Billy Martin, who went from Kansas City to Detroit, in a multiplayer deal.

"I wanted Martin badly," said Lane, "but I know I won't be able to get him now. I have an outfielder to trade but I won't deal for another outfielder just to make an exchange. We need help in the infield and something will break soon."

When the White Sox mentioned center fielder Larry Doby as trade bait, Lane showed interest but said he wouldn't give up a pitcher for Doby.

"Sure, I'd like to have Doby," said Lane, "but I'm not ready to give up the pitching for Doby that I would for an infielder."

Lane said any member of the Indians might be traded with the exception of pitcher Herb Score.

"Score is one player who is not up for trade," said Lane.

Lane also indicated that he'd like to see what's going on in the American League this season.

"I can look around this year," said Lane, "and get my feet on the ground, but next year I'll have to produce."

the necessary passing to go with Kuhlmann's power inside and the anticipated outside running speed of a team whose halfbacks, offensively, could have led the cheers this year.

The participants in the affair were seen joking about the matter at a buffet dinner given by the Reserves after the match, but the intensely competitive feeling among the teams is likely to make the St. Louis portion of the match a lively affair.

Feast of Forgiveness

Moving to heal a scar of war, Israeli Arabs and Jews gather round festive tables for feast symbolizing forgiveness and atonement at Kafr Kasim, Israel, last Wednesday. It was there that an Israeli border patrol killed 49 Israeli Arabs and wounded 14 others while enforcing a suddenly-imposed curfew last Oct. 29.

Dog of the Week

A fox terrier named Susie occupies the front-and-center spot at the Humane Society Shelter as the society's current Dog of the Week. She is about 2 years old and sports a coat with black, tan and white markings. She has strong views on the subject of children and is, therefore, not regarded as a good prospect for a home with youngsters. For others, applications for adoption should be made in person at the shelter, 1210 Macklind avenue.

John Crosby TV Attempt to Make Math Fashionable

NEW YORK, Nov. 25. IF THE SPUTNIKS have done nothing else, they have helped bring eggheads back into fashion. Anti-intellectualism, which has by no means altogether vanished, has at least gone into hiding. Westinghouse Broadcasting, by a miracle of timing, just happened to have on hand a series of filmed programs called "Adventures in Numbers and Space," which is an earnest attempt to make mathematics fashionable. It may not work, but it's an admirable try.

JOHN CROSBY

The program, says Westinghouse boldly, is dedicated to the novel proposition that "TV can inspire children to look, learn and like mathematics." (It can now be seen in New York and on the five Westinghouse TV stations in Boston, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Cleveland and San Francisco. (It is not seen in St. Louis.)

"Adventures in Numbers and Space" has been planned as a part of Westinghouse Broadcasting Co.'s continuing campaign on all of our five television stations and six radio stations to help our nation turn out more scientists, mathematicians and engineers," said Donald H. McGannon, president of the company. "If America is to have as many scientists in the future as our national needs require, then we've got to start now. We've got to reach the children first, for without a solid foundation in mathematics they can't even begin to take up careers in science."

THE SERIES stars Bill Baird and his marionettes and had the help of Prof. Howard F. Fehr, head of the math department of Columbia University Teachers College, who points out that "a bottleneck seems to develop at the junior high school level (in promoting math). The greatest factor is that of motivation. Children do not tend to continue to study a subject that they do not like, in which they do not succeed, and for which they can see no real use. What is needed is a dynamic approach that shows mathematics as an exciting, creative activity in thinking that has marvelous application to all careers in life, as well as being an enjoyable pursuit in itself."

That's a tall order. In the first program, "How Man Learned to Count," marionettes Snarky and Gargle with Bill Baird, started their explorations in cave dwelling days and progressed to ancient Egypt, Rome, Carthage and India. They traced the development of arithmetic from the cave-dwellers' use of simple sticks to the discovery by the Hindus of the zero symbol, one of the important events in the history of mankind as it led to modern mathematics.

ON THE SECOND SHOW, "Quicker Than You Think," marionettes Snarky and Gargle take counting from the early concept of a quantity as a "heap" to electronic calculators which Bill Baird tells Snarky and Gargle are still high grade morons because all the work has to be planned for them. The next program is "Mysterious X," which shows how algebra forms the key for most math in business and industry. Number 4 delves into geometry which the marionettes learn enabled the Egyptians to build the pyramids.

Number 5 delves into some of the familiar uses of mathematics from the dial phone to a housewife arranging the living room furniture, to the numbers of different combinations in a dining card menu.

The sixth, "How's Chances?" explores statistics and probability. Snarky and Gargle go into research samplings and are taught how the Army and insurance companies use probabilities. One episode shows how Seventeenth Century gambler Chevalier de la Mare gave birth to a new branch of mathematics when he got curious as to the probable result of an interrupted card game and consulted the famous mathematician Pascal.

THE LAST THREE are on "sine language" or trigonometry, topology, one of the newest branches of math ("the study of what remains unchanged where you subject a thing to many changes and pressures so that almost everything else changes"), and finally "Careers in Mathematics," which will consist largely of a recap of everything that has gone before and visits with important figures in the world of mathematics who will say how rewarding math careers can be.

Richard M. Pack, vice president in charge of programming, says: "We decided before we started production that kids can absorb a lot more than we parents sometimes give them credit for. Also, this series is aimed basically at the junior high school level. However, we think we can also interest high school students and adults. I like to think of the show as being designed for average youngsters and bright adults."

Amy Vanderbilt Style vs. Fashion

THE GREAT ARCHITECT, Frank Lloyd Wright, in an interview recently, discussed the difference between style and fashion. With mere fashion he has little truck, but he has a deep respect for style. This he believes is integrated with structure.

AMY VANDERBILT

On the other hand, the Italian designer, Simonetta (whom I met in Rome), was reported in a great state of agitation over the more or less recent ability of Americans to take fashion or leave it alone.

She said, when she recently arrived here in the United States, "All over the country I have seen what I have never seen before. . . . Where is the three-quarter sleeve? Where is the lithe (she means "shapeless") waistline, the close-fitting hipline? The shorter hemline? These are not being worn, although we presented them in the last collection."

I SAW all of these things, too, in the spring in Spain. Balenciaga (known there as Elsa), showed the hemline at the kneecap and Spanish ladies attending the collection had that hemline moved down to mid-calf for the same reason that American women are resisting the exposed knee—it's ugly, as the late great Dior himself once said.

I'M WILLING to fly right in the face of fashion, too, and predict that only those with absolutely faultless legs will be seen around in stockings other than those of the various "natural" shades, because these basic tones do disguise leg imperfections.

City's Newest Musical Organization

St. Louis String Ensemble Includes Housewives and Business Men—Debut to Be Dec. 3

By Mary Kimbrough

TODAY, WALTER HELLMICH was outdoors supervising a building project. Barbara Kottmeier was in the advertising department at Mallinckrodt Chemical Co. editing a technical treatise. Paul Stalmann was out talking to a customer about building insulation while his wife was home taking care of their two children. Dan Melillo was checking some test tubes in a chemical laboratory at Warner-Jenkinson Manufacturing Co. Charles Slavik was worried about a lubricating oil problem at the Shell Oil Co. in Wood River and his daughter, Suzanne, was mulling over an assignment at Edwardsville High School.

But tonight, all of them will toss aside their daytime problems and worries, pick up violins and violas and head for rehearsal of the newly-organized St. Louis String Ensemble at Maplewood-Richmond Heights High School.

There they'll meet 21 more musicians, some of them teachers, some of them homemakers, who, with their conductor, Russell Gerhart, are pointing toward the debut of St. Louis's youngest musical organization Tuesday, Dec. 3, at Sheldon Memorial, 3648 Washington boulevard.

From many business and professional fields, from every part of town, have come the musicians, their common bond a love of good music, especially that written for strings alone. Some are former members of the St. Louis Philharmonic and a few participate in both groups.

These part-time musicians find in their hobby a relaxation they covet after long days out in the business and professional world. To all of them, it's hard work, but the kind of work that takes the kinks out of mental muscles and helps evaporate tension-caused headaches.

Hellmich, an architect and builder, likes it so much that he added a studio to his home at 8 Conway road, where he can practice his violin early in the morning or late at night without disturbing the rest of the household. Beginning his musical study when he was a boy, he dropped it as a serious interest after his graduation from the University of Illinois, then picked it up again in recent years.

Now he is taking private lessons from Gerhart, which means long hours of practice in addition to the ensemble rehearsal. As president of the ensemble, he also has to allocate a part of his leisure time to business details.

Barbara Kottmeier, a bride of three months, like Hellmich a former member of the Philharmonic, also is taking private violin lessons, continuing a devotion to music she developed as a high school student in the east.

"IT MEANS no leisurely dinner on Mondays, no Monday night shopping, and having to give up some social life, but if you love music, it's worth it," she says. "By actually participating in it, you get so much more out of it than by merely listening."

"Fortunately, my husband, even though he isn't a musician, is a music lover, so he enjoys attending rehearsals where he can. And he doesn't mind those hurried-up Monday night dinners, either."

The ensemble's only husband-and-wife team, Mr. and Mrs. Stalmann, met through music when both were violinists with the Philharmonic. Both have studied since childhood and their 6-year-old son has had his own violin since he was 3.

Answers to Quiz.

1. South bids three spades. North's single raise is not encouraging but South has enough strength above opening-bid requirements to make another effort to reach a game.

2. South bids two no-trump to show a good hand. He would like to show his six-card suit again but if he rebids three hearts, North with no heart support may pass with the loss of a game.

3. South bids four spades. North has shown a fine hand by bidding three spades although South has offered no encouragement. South with strength in both of partner's suits can try for game.

4. South makes his spade game by setting up a heart in dummy for a club discard. The bidding places West with the ace-queen of hearts and South sees four losers: two hearts, a diamond and a club. But West's failure to open a club has given South the timing on the hand and he can now set up a heart trick before West can gain a club trick.

South takes the diamond king with the ace (a hold-up will permit West to shift to a club), draws trumps and leads a heart, losing to West. He takes the club return with the king and leads another heart, again losing to West. Now he wins the club return in dummy and cashes the jack of hearts, discarding his losing club. A diamond can be ruffed in dummy and game is made with the loss of two hearts and a diamond trick.

Some Date Tips For Teen Girls

By Elinor Williams

GIRLS, DO YOU KNOW that it's not good manners (or good date technique) to ask a boy if he likes you. You can tell if he really likes you by how he acts when he's with you, not by what he says. Remember, "Actions speak louder than words."

In a snack shop or a restaurant, a girl gives her order to the waitress. Exception: When the waitress asks you, the girl, for your order, tell her yourself.

It's proper for a girl to be ready and to open the door when her date arrives. It prevents awkwardness and embarrassment, especially on the first date, because you introduce him to your parents immediately and he doesn't have to introduce himself. Always be ready, first date or not!

It says troubles and misunderstanding if you tell a boy frankly that you'll have "to find out if you can go" when he asks you for a date and you must get permission before accepting his invitation. Otherwise, he won't understand the delay in your reply and might think you're being "hard to get" or perhaps hoping for another invitation, besides his.

You can have fun at home on "house dates" . . . and show consideration for your boyfriend's allowance. He can't provide expensive entertainment for every date, yet if you really like him and if he likes you, you want to be together on Friday night just the same. Have fun at home with games, a jigsaw puzzle, records, TV, refreshments.

Crumb of Comfort

By John Keasler

ONE NEVER KNOWS from whence some crumb of comfort may come—some bright little ray to penetrate the bleakest day, give sunlight to the most desolate spirit and once again send the wings of the Beautiful White Bird of Hope beating wildly in the breast.

For instance, Rock 'n' roll is sick and might well be dying.

So don't fling boulders at the phonograph yet, father—this, too, no doubt, will pass.

The hopeful opinion contained herein is that of Bob Crosby, who is in town these days as a star at the Auto Show.

"Rock is on the way out," Bob said. "The turn seems to be back to—well, music."

► R & R HEADLINERS who, only a few months ago, were packing them in to the last decibel point are finding the going a little tougher. The big stompdown frenzies aren't getting the bookings they were. I forgot to ask if sideburns were getting shorter.

"What do you, personally, think of rock 'n' roll, Mr. Crosby?"

He winced. He seemed to shudder.

"Thank you."

He had another cup of coffee; theorized on the remarkable phenomenon of r & r, noting it had been around for decades—that what he terms real musicians had various terms for it. Thumbing through my notes here I find none of them kindly.

Elementary, let's call it. "Boomp, boomp, boomp," said Robert. "The same thing, over and over. No place." "Square, Mr. Crosby?"

"The lowest."

► AS A DIXIELAND MAN these many years, loyal to and a leader in the cause of jazz, that south-spawned combination of telephatic ad-libbing and way-out reaching,

BOB CROSBY... "THE TURN SEEMS TO BE BACK TO—WELL, MUSIC."

Crosby is admittedly biased in favor of his own art medium. With his Bobcats he is, although only a young-looking fortyish, a longtime institution. He notes with some bemusement a strange facet.

"Jazz is the only truly original art form, just like they say," he said. "But where does Dixieland go over best these days? Europe."

Meantime, how come the rise in popularity of the boomp-boomp medium which pulsed sullenly for years in obscurity and the less discriminating jock joints? The cause was not solely that teenagers suddenly seized upon it as the best way to annoy parents since invention of the nation key.

No.

"It has a beat the kids can hear," said Eddie Miller, longtime Bobcat, a tenor sax and clarinet, et al, man out of New Orleans these many years. "They seized on it. Maybe they were fed up with the cheek-to-cheek music."

"The fads come," said Bob. "They go. This one is going. I do hope." Dixieland stays.

► BOB KICKED OFF in the music field when he was only a teen-ager himself, shifted into high gear fast. Soon, although the youngest in his group, he was band leader. He went on to become one of the most popular singers and bandleaders in the business: Made movies, had a top-rated TV show, has done the whole route. These days he is going, if anything, stronger than ever. Among other things he is a prolific producer of record albums. His outfit has produced many classic jazz records.

He has five children. He himself came from a large family, has two sisters and four brothers, Everett, a business man; Larry and Ted, both reformed city editors, and Harry Lillis Crosby Jr., a horseplayer.

The alphabet has been twisted out of shape repeatedly to produce stories about how Bob does or does not feel worried about being overshadowed by H. Lillis, who also answers to Bing. (Rhymes with "Cling"), as in cash register.)

Watching Bob, a top-notch in his own right, it seemed obvious he need not worry about being overshadowed by anybody, and doesn't. A big, easy-going man, he is troubled by only one fixation. He goes to the same church as does Lawrence Welk, the journeyman finger-snapper and "champagne music" man.

"Everytime Welk takes up the collection," Bob said, ambling over to rehearsal for the Auto Show, "I keep seeing these bubbles rising out of the collection plate."

These are indeed parlous times. But there is always a note of cheer. Think, for instance, of no more "Wake Up, Little Susie." And take heart.

Soble Tells of Contacts With Sterns

He Gave Code Name and Martha Greeted Him With Kiss at Their First Meeting

By Jack Soble

Written with Jack Lotto

WHEN THE DOOR opened, the beautiful stranger threw her arms around me in tight embrace and gave me a long, passionate kiss.

This was my introduction to Martha Dodd Stern, daughter of the late United States Ambassador to Germany, William E. Dodd.

All I had said was, "I am Sam."

This was the code name given me by the Soviet secret police superior to use in contacting her husband, multi-millionaire Alfred K. Stern.

The Sterns, who became my close friends after that first meeting in their swank New York apartment in the winter of 1944, were exact personality opposites. But they were as one in their ardent espousal of Communist causes.

The slightly-built, ever-dapper Stern chased after the Russians to be allowed to do their bidding. Perhaps it was because he was completely overshadowed, thoroughly dominated by his wife.

All this quiet, cultured and highly educated business man had to offer was money. And he was free with it to back Soviet-approved activities. He financed the Boris Morros Music Co. as a business front for Soviet espionage. Likewise, his money helped to create pro-Communist propaganda organizations like the Institute of Pacific Relations.

Gay, vivacious Martha, 11 years younger than her second husband, was always seeking new adventures, and liked to talk about them over martinis.

And it was over a round of drinks that Martha told me a strange story of her twisted loyalty to the Soviet Union.

Apparently to impress me, she bragged how she had spied on her own father for the Russians. She said that during her father's term as Ambassador in Berlin in the early 1930s she had had a love affair with an official of the Soviet Embassy, who actually was an NKVD agent.

At his behest, Martha related, she stole information from the secret files of the United States Embassy—to which she had easy access—and turned it over to the agent.

It was she, with womanly intuition, who first suspected that FBI counterspy Boris Morros was a ringer in our midst. Luckily for Morros the Soviet Embassy in Washington took no action when she reported her suspicions in 1945.

Martha kept me supplied with reports for the Soviet Union and also recruited one of our best espionage agents, Jane Foster Zlatovski.

On one of my visits to their apartment overlooking New York's Central Park, Stern complained to me that he was "not active enough for the motherland." He urged me to arrange a meeting with my contact.

Accordingly I brought "The Professor," Stepan N. Choudenko, to another Stern residence, in Lewisboro, Conn. Stern told "The Professor" he felt he was being "neglected," and urged him to find a business enterprise which Stern could use as a cover.

When we left Stern's home, "The Professor" instructed me to go immediately to Riverside drive and Seventy-second street. He told me to carry a Saturday Evening Post in my hand and "wait for a man carrying a New York Times who will ask you how to get to the George Washington Bridge," about five miles away. At the rendezvous point I met Anne, wife of Gromov, who then was acting as first secretary of the Soviet Embassy in Washington.

Gromov was the Russian agent known as "Al" to whom Elizabeth Bentley turned over Government secrets filched by members of two big capital espionage rings.

Now in our time we've come in contact with a lot of plumbers and a lot of other servicemen. Some have been good and some have been not so hot and some didn't know much of anything—not even their name.

The trouble, as we see it, is that no one worries much about servicing the equipment in their homes until something goes wrong with it—until there is an emergency. Then the home-owner gets on the phone, calls the first serviceman that they find and often isn't happy with the results. We suggest shopping for servicemen before you have an emergency just the way you do for a doctor or a dentist.

Most of us have a family doctor who we know and trust and who knows us and our family. When something goes wrong he doesn't have to waste a lot of time finding out all our medical history, a process that can run up the time and his bill. He knows how our particular system works and what has to be done to keep it working the way it should.

Most of us don't get our fam-

APPARENTLY TO IMPRESS ME, SHE BRAGGED HOW SHE HAD SPIED ON HER OWN FATHER FOR THE RUSSIANS.

The Russian, who later was to be promoted to head of the American section of Soviet intelligence on his return to Moscow, ordered me to meet him in Washington the following Sunday.

We rendezvoused near the Washington Monument and then went to a small restaurant.

GROMOV SAID he had an "extremely important mission" for me.

Although this particular plan misfired, as far as I knew, the thinking behind it indicates the vast scope of Soviet espionage operations.

"We have," Gromov told me, "a group of young people working in various Government agencies and it will be necessary for you to live in Washington in order to obtain reports from them."

The diplomat stated there was a fashionable dress and men's shop in the business section of Washington for sale at a price of $300,000 which would be ideal as a Washington headquarters and cover for the operations.

I told Gromov I was not in a position to account for such a large sum of money and he mentioned Stern as the possible "front man" for the money.

The vastness of the venture frightened me and I felt I could avoid a decision by not keeping the next appointment with Gromov. Consequently, I did not show up the following Sunday as I was supposed to.

Early the following day, "The Professor" phoned that I should meet him immediately. He wanted to know why I had failed to rendezvous. I concocted the excuse that I was on my way to Pennsylvania station when I thought I was being followed and abandoned the trip as a safety measure.

He complimented me on my caution but ordered me to go the following Sunday.

When I finally met Gromov again I informed him I had spoken to Stern, and that he was not able to manage the finances.

I heard nothing more of the Washington project.

Came the summer of 1948, and my wife, Myra, our son and I stood and gaped at the Parliament building in Bern, Switzerland.

For all the world to see, we were three "rubbernecks." But unlike countless thousands of tourists before us, our visit was strictly business—spy business.

A new contact was being arranged for my wife and myself. Our "guide" was Gen. Alexander Korotkov, boss of all Soviet spy operations outside of Russia. And this is how contacts are made:

Korotkov, who also was responsible for Stalin's safety, whispered for us to watch for a man who was approaching slowly.

"The one you are to notice carefully," he instructed, "will stop a few steps beyond us, put his right hand to his forehead, and then retrace his steps."

In a matter of minutes, the scene we were alerted to had occurred.

Korotkov informed us the man was the Russian consul to Switzerland and that he was to be the recipient of our reports thereafter. Instead of the Soviet trade mission delegate in Paris.

For the next year, Myra and I passed along our espionage reports via this new transmission belt, and received funds.

I set up several bank accounts under the anonymity of a number—which is the usual practice in Switzerland—and the Russians made sure I had a ready flow of cash.

THIS ARRANGEMENT went along smoothly until May 1949, when word was sent to me in Paris to drop everything and come directly to Moscow via Vienna. This was the third summons to Moscow in less than two years.

In Moscow I was met and driven directly to an apartment that was made available. Korotkov quickly arrived with his chief assistant, Leonid Dmitriyevich Petrov. The intelligence and secret police boss came to the point.

"I want you," Korotkov commanded, "to go to Yugoslavia and contact Crdze Price."

Price, who was formerly Yugoslav minister to France, was then attached to the foreign ministry in Belgium. Tito, of course, had broken with Stalin.

New Items For Use in The Home

By Lawrence Galton

SELF-STORING Ironing Board: Newest ironing board is built right into a 24-inch cabinet base unit you can install in kitchen or laundry. It lifts out, locks into place at comfortable height, and, when not in use, drops down at each end to slide into its own niche in the cabinet. An asbestos-lined shelf under the board holds iron, sprinkling bottle.

PORTABLE Heating-Cooling Drying: Need extra warmth in a cold room now? Damp basement you'd like to dry out? Newest air conditioning unit—a portable 60-pounder—will do these jobs plus provide cooling next summer. The easy-to-carry unit fits any standard window and offers the usual cooling and filtering. Turn it around in the window, front to back, and it acts as a heat pump to warm a room. Set on floor or table in a damp basement, it dehumidifies, with the heating output from one side offsetting the cooling from the other. The unit also can go along in the car on vacation trips for use in motels and resorts lacking air conditioning.

CONVERTIBLE Dishwasher: A new portable dishwasher-dryer can be used in an apartment or small home and later, if you move or remodel, can be converted into a built-in or under-counter model. Front panels are easy to change for permanent installation. The unit is also said to hold more dishware, silverware, pots and pans than any previous portable. Free-swiveling, snap-on casters allow it to be rolled to dinner table for loading and back into operating position at the sink.

MULTI-USEFUL Pencil: A new wooden pencil now being introduced has a special kind of lead that writes on practically any surface—glass, metal, celluloid, wood, plastic, leather, rubber, all textiles, cellophane tape, even on lacquered and glazed boxes—as well as on writing papers. Its stroke is deep black rather than graphite gray. Thus, it can be used for many purposes around the house—in the kitchen and workshop as well as at the writing desk.

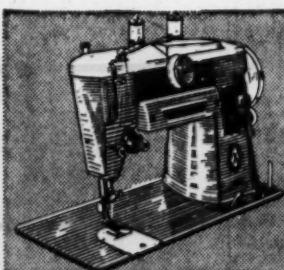

If you'd like further information on any of the above items, write Lawrence Galton in care of the Post-Dispatch, identifying them, giving date of appearance and inclosing stamped and self-addressed envelope. Inquiries must be sent no later than two weeks after the appearance of the item.

Miss Jaeger Married To Joseph Darst Thomas

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

MISS DOREEN JANE JAEGER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Thomas Jaeger of Oradell, N. J., was married Saturday in St. Joseph's Catholic Church there to Joseph Darst Thomas. The bridegroom, one of five children, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Thomas Jr., of Englewood, N. J., former St. Louisans. He is a grandson of Mrs. Benjamin F. Thomas, 224 North Newstead avenue, and the late Mr. Thomas and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Darst. Through his mother, the former Miss Alice Darst, he is a nephew of the late Mayor Joseph M. Darst, Mrs. Edward Chassaing and Eugene Miltenberger Darst. Through his father's family he is a nephew of Miss Elise, Miss Sophie and Henry von Paul Thomas, who live with their mother, and John Richardson Thomas.

The Rev. Raymond York S.J. officiated at the ceremony, which was followed by a reception in the Mirror room of Hotel Essex House, Newark, N. J.

Mr. Jaeger escorted his daughter to the altar. She wore white satin, the scooped neckline bordered in rose point and duchess lace applique, and the bell-shaped skirt ending in a train. A crown of seed pearls held her veil, which was edged with heirloom rose point belonging to the bridegroom's mother. She carried white orchids and Stephanotis on a prayer book.

Miss Gail Skidmore of Englewood, gowned in iridescent ruby red taffeta, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Jane Julia Thomas, the bridegroom's sister, and Miss Valarie Rogers, South Orange, N. J., whose dresses were sapphire blue taffeta. The girls wore matching headpieces and carried gold chrysanthemums and ivy.

Benjamin F. Thomas IV was his brother's best man. Ushers were Stanton Jaeger, the bride's brother, and Joseph Menendez of Brooklyn, N. Y.

The bride, a senior at Paterson State Teachers College, is an alumna of Dwight Morrow High School, Englewood, and attended the University of Vermont. She belongs to Phi Theta Chi sorority. Mr. Thomas, now attending St. Peter's College, Jersey City, is a graduate of St. Peter's Preparatory School and a former student at New York Institute of Finance. His sisters are Mrs. Raymond C. Korpanty (Alice Darst Thomas), Miss Jane and Miss Sophie Ann Thomas. After a honeymoon he and his bride will live in Englewood.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Harrison Culver, 41 Glen Eagle drive, St. Louis Country Club grounds, Ladue, are in Pebble Beach, Calif., guests at Del Monte Lodge.

Party to Honor Miss Elliott

MR. AND MRS. HENRY BELZ and Mr. and Mrs. William Behan gave a theater and supper party for Miss Ann Elliott, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Elliott, 24 Rio Vista drive, Ladue, Friday evening.

Twenty of Miss Elliott's contemporaries enjoyed "The Happiest Millionaire" at the American Theater and then went to the Belz home, 53 Portland place, for supper afterwards. Mrs. Belz used a pink and white theme for her decorations; the supper table was centered with a large silver urn holding pink and white blossoms.

The guests included Miss Nancy Bland, Miss Carol Culver, Miss Judith Trimble, Miss Judith Gissler, Miss Page Sharp, Miss Jane Spoehrer, Miss Gail Steiner and Miss Nancy Sauer and their escorts, Edwin S. Baldwin, Clarence C. Barksdale, Shelby Pruett, Paul Goessling Jr., Charles A. Niekamp Jr., Thomas McMahon, Peter Muckerman, Joseph F. Trigg Jr., William L. Behan Jr., and Barry Jackson.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Mendle, 748 Cella road, Ladue, are en route to Washington to attend a dinner, to which they have been invited by Secretary of State and Mrs. John Foster Dulles, in honor of His Majesty, Morocco's King Mohammed V, who is in the United States for a two-week visit.

The dinner will take place at the Pan American Union. The Mendles left today for the East.

The St. Louis Skidmore College Alumnae Association will entertain Miss Mary Louise Charles at dinner tonight at the home of Mrs. G. H. Badenoch, 219 Clark avenue, Kirkwood. Miss Charles, dean of admissions at Skidmore College, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., is visiting St. Louis schools today and tomorrow to speak to prospective students and their high school advisors. Dr. Val Wilson was recently inaugurated as president of Skidmore to succeed Dr. Henry T. Moore, who retired in June.

Surprise Party for the McCluers

DR. FRANC L. MCCLUER, president of Lindenwood College, and Mrs. McCluer were guests of honor yesterday afternoon at a surprise reception given by the students of Cobbs Hall, an upper-class dormitory on the college campus.

The occasion marked the tenth anniversary of Dr. McCluer's coming to Lindenwood from Fulton, Mo., where he was president of Westminster College.

Others honored at the party were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Harper Cobbs, 4954 Lindell boulevard, in whose honor Cobbs Hall is named. Mr. Cobbs is vice president and counsel of the Lindenwood board of directors of which he has been a member for 40 years.

Yellow, white and lavender chrysanthemums were arranged with greenery in the reception rooms and parlor of the dormitory, the newest on the campus, and organ music played softly. Guests were received by Dr. and Mrs. McCluer, Miss Beth Devlin, Pine Bluff, Ark., president of Cobbs Hall, and by Miss Carol Gardner, Brentwood, Tenn., president of the Student Government Council.

Guests included members of the board, college administrators and faculty together with their families, and the entire student body. Dr. and Mrs. McCluer were presented with a gold-embossed leather guest book bearing their names and "Lindenwood 1947-57."

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Miller, Town and Country, Creve Coeur, have recently returned from a six week's tour of Europe. The Millers sailed on the Liberte in late September and returned two weeks ago on the Il de France. They visited England, France, Italy, West Germany, Switzerland and Belgium.

The Question of Peace

NEW YORK.

IN A RECENT SPEECH, Raymond J. Seeger, deputy assistant director of the National Science Foundation, made several points which I believe are worth thinking over.

Discussing the question of peace, for example, he said: "Peace is a cumulative, unending succession of agreements based upon the agreement to agree. The very word 'peace' comes from pax, a Latin word meaning 'to make an agreement.' Now an agreement involves more than one party... The United Nations are not a building; the United Nations are people, people united for this common purpose and for that mutual objective. A conference table is a tool for initiating peace; an organized group is a machine for implementing peace."

TOWARD THE END of his speech, Mr. Seeger added these encouraging words: "As Pilgrims on this great crusade (the crusade for peace), at times we move doubtfully through the slough of despair and fearfully pass through the valley of the shadow of death; we falter for want of light. We are discouraged because the skies do not open and shower us with special floodlights. Modern floodlights, however, are still measured in terms of candle power. All that we need are candles, but enough of them—one candle burning here, one burning there, candles burning here, there, everywhere—you in your place, I in mine, people in their places all over the world. The total candle power of all dedicated individuals illuminates this great crusade, a crusade of this great crusade, a crusade of freedom among men, and on earth peace."

THIS SPEECH must have been stirring to hear, and it carries the germ of something we should all think about. It shows us our individual responsibility, and I am beginning to think that this recognition of individual responsibility and acceptance of this responsibility is almost an essential. People have been saying more and more of late that peace must begin at home. Each individual must have peace in his heart toward other individuals, and it must extend throughout each nation before the nations can come together in peace. I think this is probably true, and we should direct our thoughts not only to world peace but to peace within our own nation. We should try to educate our brothers here at home to the realization that we are one family throughout the world, regardless of color or creed, and we begin to show this oneness which leads to peace by accepting it at home in our own country.

Martha Carr's

Dear Martha:

I HAVE BEEN MARRIED nearly 15 years. We have a small boy and he is the only reason I have stayed with my husband. Everything I do is wrong and life has become such a routine that I just can't see any reason for remaining with him. Anything I do is unappreciated and it would be a great shock to receive a compliment. He is always telling me how our friends' wives do things and I should learn a lesson from them. This doesn't bother me as much as the fact that he compares me with other women. My health has been on the downgrade from worrying about this, so any advice you can give me will help a great deal.

MRS. B. H.

A. It will be cold comfort, I know, but yours is a familiar problem. So what to do about it? In the first place, try to be as objective as you possibly can. I know it's hard, but if you let your natural resentment of his criticism get in the way, you won't be able to do much to correct it. Analyze his criticisms. Why does he admire the other women? Start checking yourself to see if there is any room for improvement. What about your appearance, your dress, the way you keep house? Make a point of trying to please him and I have an idea your home will be happier. For your son's sake, make that home as peaceful and pleasant as you possibly can. Professional counsel will help you look at your problem objectively and see what, if anything, you can do to save your marriage. Don't walk out without trying your best to make a go of it.

Dear Martha:

THIS IS IN ANSWER to "Uncertain," who was in love with a married man. I could very well be the wife of the man you met eight years ago, also the mother of his five children. And I can say we don't get along because of his cheating. You can have him with my blessings. But don't feel flattered. Because he told me about falling in love with you. And you are only one of many girls he has told me about in the 15 years of our marriage. I put up with him because of the children. If you take him you will be doing me a favor.

VOICE OF EXPERIENCE.

IN ANSWER to Newcomers: The organization to which you refer is the St. Louis Christmas Carols Association which sponsors Christmas Eve carol singing. Your group will be more than welcome to join the project. Telephone Chestnut 1-7472, or write to the St. Louis Christmas Carols Association headquarters, 316 North Sixth street for assignment of a route and the official badge, song books and scarlet collection cans. Voluntary donations are turned over to institutions caring for handicapped and underprivileged children.

It isn't too early to start planning your Christmas season entertaining. Martha Carr's free leaflet will help. Be sure to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

High School Problem

WHAT ABOUT high school fraternities? Mr. and Mrs. K. ask this question because their son has a chance to join one. "Some people seem to look down on them," they write, "but adults join secret societies to their great advantage. Why shouldn't teen-agers be allowed to do the same?"

Why do you suppose that 19 American states prohibit high school fraternities by law, Mr. and Mrs. K.? Why do you suppose that, as early as 1905, only 29 years after they came into existence, the Committee on Secret Fraternities of the National Education Association vigorously condemned such organizations? Why is it that even the National Congress of College Fraternities has, for the past 35 years, opposed high school fraternities? It's because there's been plenty of opportunity to see how these high school fraternities operate.

IN MOST CITIES, they are either forbidden or frowned on, although authorities sometimes close their eyes. They are kept going largely by snobbish parents who think their youngsters may gain some social advantage.

But any educator can tell you that such organizations tend to avoid adult supervision (often with deplorable results), that they encourage habits of extravagance, that they cause disciplinary problems, that they tend to produce cliques, and that they foster allegiance to themselves rather than the welfare of the school.

IN THE OPINION of almost every competent authority, there is no place in the educational world for high-school fraternities. There is, on the other hand, a great need for better social life for a large part of the students in any high school. But for this large part, the fraternities would be no help; they would only make matters worse instead of better.

Emily Post

Noisy Neighbors

DEAR MRS. POST: I think the tenants overhead must be raising future Olympic champions in jumping. We really can't stand the loss of several hours' sleep in the morning. But how, in your opinion, is the best way to register a complaint? We asked our superintendent to tell them, but he refused saying that he can't take sides with any of us. He has, however, confirmed what we suspected, that their children's room is directly over our bedroom. The Overheads are complete strangers.

Answer: I think it best to try to keep discussion of the situation between you and the "Overheads." My suggestion would be to telephone or write Mrs. Overhead, which she would have no cause to resent provided your request is reasonable and made without rancor. You might say that after talking it over, you and your husband have decided it best to tell her about the early morning jumping in her children's room, evidently just over your bedroom, which makes it impossible for either you or your husband to sleep after five (or six) o'clock; and that you would be most grateful for whatever she could do to improve the situation.

Adele Starbird

The Widower as Husband Material

(This is in answer to a letter from a former student.)

Dear Barbara,

IF I HAD written a letter to Santa Claus about you, it would have said, "And please, Santa, send Barbara some nice husband material, preferably a youngish widower not quite out of shock, with a teen-age son."

And now I have your letter and find that Santa anticipated my request. Your widower sounds custom made. Just a few years older than you, sharing the same tastes and belonging to the same faith. Impetuous and aggressive in his courtship, which is what you need, particularly after that calculating machine whom you almost married last year.

You say he has been a widower just a year. I wish I could make you understand how advantageous that is. He is still lonely, and not yet used to his freedom. They say that widowers are like babies—the mortality is high during the second summer. But if they get through two years without re-marrying, they develop a certain immunity. They begin to enjoy the green fields. They roll their eyes warily when a girl tries slipping up on their blind side with bit and bridle (no pun!) and they take off like a young colt. They get more wary with each succeeding year, even when arthritis makes their getaway a little less stylish.

SO MY DEAR, your widower is at the psychological point. And think of the immense advantage of marrying a man who has been a husband for years, who is therefore completely civilized and a perfect social product. The difference between a bachelor and a widower is that the latter has already been through obedience school and field trials. He has been trained to retrieve everything you drop, to carry your packages, to protect you, to stay close beside you, and all with an air of decorum. Nothing improves a man like a happy marriage. You are very foolish to worry about his love for his first wife. It will not be a threat to you if you make him happy. No two loves are alike and no two marriages. Don't pry into the past; respect his memory of her.

A beloved first wife is the most beneficial ghost that can possibly haunt a marriage.

For there are bound to be ghosts, unless you do a thorough job of exorcising. A friend of mine said she never could see why Mrs. Bluebeard made such a fuss over finding seven dead wives in a closet. She might have found one live wife!

As for the young son, I know that you would be a very tender and understanding step-mother.

WHEN I THINK of the men in your life, those I've known about, and those whose existence I've guessed, just as an astronomer surmises from the behavior of a star that there must be a dark star in the background—when I remember your college years and your career years, I think it is time for you to build something solid and enduring. Now at 32 you are at your best. You never looked lovelier than you did the last time I saw you in that simple black dress and sapphire mink stole.

But remember the admonition I've quoted before: "Each year that you live, you will become more particular—and less desirable." Remember all that good advice that Horace, Herrick and Ronsard handed out to young women—I've always hoped it was entirely disinterested—about gathering rosebuds while ye may.

There's one thing I almost forgot to mention—love. It's important, too. So important that if you can't include it, just forget the rest of this letter.

Send me an installment on this serial story soon. I want to know how it turns out.

With much affection,

ADELE STARBIRD.

Suggestions On Feeding Youngsters

By Angelo Patri

FEEDING CHILDREN is a problem for many mothers. Grown people are usually convinced that three meals a day are the correct thing for everybody. Of course, once one thinks about it that cannot be true. Some people do not eat breakfast. I know a man who eats just once a day, at night when his day's work is done. He is as healthy as a trout and just as frisky. His pattern would not work for many other people, though.

Children differ from adults in their need for food and that is where the problem enters for their mothers. Often I get the question: "How often should this child be fed? He won't eat lunch." Or, "He wants to eat between meals." Or, "He won't eat."

IN MY EXPERIENCE the time to feed a child of any age is when he is hungry. If he is a very young child say about two or three, watch and make a note of the times he seems to enjoy his meals most and feed him accordingly. A little one of this age does, no matter how many rules we set, force his family to make allowances for his peculiar needs of one sort or another and eating is a very important one.

Schoolchildren need something to eat when they get home in the afternoon. What that is to be depends altogether on their needs. Each child indicates a preference for something—a sandwich, a cup cake, a wedge of pie, a doughnut with a glass of milk. Whatever it is let him have it. No, it will not destroy his appetite for his supper. He will work or play it off long before that. Active boys and girls need a lot of nourishing food, much more than an adult usually eats these days of fashionable slimness. Don't try to slim down an adolescent boy or girl. That is a dangerous undertaking and only the family physician should order it. He will do that only when the child's health demands it.

WE OUGHT to be especially careful of the adolescent girl and her eating habits. Slimness to the point of boniness seems to be the style. It is not a good style for these girls. They need to build sound healthy bodies against the day when they need all the strength they can muster. There is a line between fatness and boniness and the girls in their teens should watch to see that they do not get too far over the bony line. Anyway whoever said a skeleton was a pretty sight? Or that a half-starved look was attractive? They are far from it.

Here in this land of plenty many children from homes where good food is a matter of course are not eating properly. It would be well to check this and make certain about the children's daily bread.

Safety Suggestions

Don't let the kids or you take portable radios or TV's into the bathroom, for between them, the water and the plumbing it's possible to get a serious shock. Also keep the kitchen radio far enough away from the kitchen sink so that no one can turn the dial on the radio with one hand in the sink water or on the faucets.

Banana Cake A Birthday Favorite

By Edith M. Barber

JUST WHEN WE have decided we have seen every type of cake mix, a new one comes to market. The latest, at least that I have seen, is an instant banana mix. This flavor has always been a favorite in some families.

Banana cake is the choice for birthdays and the new flavor will be welcomed, I am sure, by Mother, who must make the birthday cakes to order. She will be hopeful that the family will like it just as well as her own special recipe. At our house, our favorite for birthdays was a white cake with maple frosting, and I can testify there never was such a wonderful cake as this.

We all like the family specialties of our childhood. As an example of this, there is the Tennessee jam cakes in which brown sugar and blackberry preserves are used with the batter. This was delicious indeed with its caramel frosting. The banana cake is particularly good with an apricot filling between the layers and covered with a real boiled frosting. By the way, if you have a confectioners' thermometer, you will not have to give the thread-spinning touch to the syrup before it is added to the stiffly beaten egg whites.

Banana Apricot Cake.

One package instant banana cake mix, one and one-fourth cups water, two eggs, unbeaten; one package (11 ounces) dried apricots, 2 cups sugar, white frosting.

Empty cake mix into bowl. Add water and eggs. Beat three minutes until smooth and creamy. Pour batter into two eight by eight by two-inch square pans, greased and floured on bottoms and sides. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 40 to 45 minutes. Cool layers. Cook apricots in water until tender, about 30 minutes. Drain, reserving a few for a garnish. Press remaining apricots through sieve. Mix in sugar and cool. Spread cooled filling between layers of cake. Frost top and sides of cake with white frosting, and garnish with apricots.

Tennessee Jam Cake.

Ingredients: One-half cup margarine, one cup light brown sugar, firmly packed; three egg yolks, two cups sifted cake flour, one-half teaspoon baking soda, two teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon nutmeg, one-fourth teaspoon cloves, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one cup black raspberry preserves, one-third cup buttermilk, three egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Cream margarine. Add sugar gradually, creaming until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks and mix well. Sift together dry ingredients and add alternately with preserves combined with buttermilk. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into two waxpaper-lined nine-inch layer pans. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 30 to 35 minutes. Frost with caramel frosting.

Words, Wit And Wisdom

By William Morris

"I WOULD appreciate," writes Bridget Arnold of Fontana, Calif., "information concerning a certain word which bothers me very much. The word is 'mischievous' or, as it is more popularly known, 'mischievous.' I would like to know why this word is so mispronounced."

Our language has many words ending in "ous"—words such as "glamorous," "traitorous" and "heinous." It also has many words ending in "ious"—such as "previous" and "devious." All too often careless speakers—not paying attention to the spellings of the words—add an "i" to the "ous" words. The most common of the resulting mispronunciations is certainly miss-CHEE-vee-us, instead of MISS-chih-vus.

But the fact that this pronunciation is fairly frequently heard does not make it acceptable. No careful speaker would ever make this blunder—nor would anyone who took the time and trouble to note that the spelling "mischievous" could not possibly warrant an "ee-us" pronunciation of the final syllable.

"WILL YOU PLEASE tell me the origin of the term 'hot dog'?" asks Miss Margaret Blee of Chapel Hill, N. C. "Several of my students from the Orient have asked me this question." Most language research points to T. A. Dorgan ("Tad"), one of the first and greatest of American sports cartoonists, as the coiner of the term "hot dog" to designate the kind of wurst which has become the country's best-loved snack. Around 1895 a popular comic song referred to the sausage as "a barker"—from which it is only a short step, linguistically speaking, to "hot dog."

There are two schools of thought on who created the first hot-dog-and-roll combination, though. Some credit Harry Stevens, the Polo Grounds restaurateur, while others claim Charles Feltman of Coney Island first had the inspiration. You pay your nickel (or, today, your 20 cents) and you take your choice!

Meals based on hearty soups help cope with high prices. As the main dish, serve a big soup in which meat, vegetables and broth are all eaten together.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

MOST OF THE PRESENT "human flying" takes place in airplanes, but recently a balloon rose 19 miles, which is higher than any airplane has gone.

The balloon provided the first successful flight by people. A pioneer balloon carried people through the air 120 years before the Wright Brothers flew a heavier-than-air machine at Kitty Hawk, N. C.

THE BALLOON was invented in France by Joseph and Jacques Montgolfier 173 years ago. At first they supposed that smoke made their bags rise. Later it became plain that hot air was the agent which performed the trick.

On a clear June day, a crowd watched at Annonay, France, while a linen bag 35 feet wide (lined with paper and filled with hot air) rose from the ground. No passengers were carried, but that pioneer balloon stayed in the air for 10 minutes. It reached a height of several thousand feet.

A FEW months later Joseph
